

TOO MUCH LIQUOR SOLD

Selectmen Instruct Chief of Police to Enforce Law

The Selectmen, at their regular meeting Monday, took action relative to the complaint that intoxicating liquors are being sold illegally in Weymouth. The secretary was instructed to send a letter to the chief of police. A copy of the letter follows:

Chief of Police: The Selectmen are forced to believe that there is a great deal of intoxicating liquor being sold illegally in the town of Weymouth at the present time. Believing that the same diligence should be observed in suppressing this criminal violation of the law as an enforcing out any other crime, we urge you to do all in your power to enforce the law in regard to such illegal sales.

Selectmen of Weymouth.

Most of the meeting of Monday was devoted to further consideration of the petition of the Bay State street railway for change of location on Front street, Columbian street, Pleasant street and Pond street. On Pond street it will be necessary to remove three or four trees. Voted to grant the petition.

James Campbell of 843 Pleasant street, was granted permission to move on wheels, a small building.

John P. Fisher of 81 Washington street was given a hearing on petition to install a gasoline tank. Granted.

Other Town Business.

Because of the fact that interest on taxes of 1916 begins Nov. 1, Tax Collector Tirrell has received large payments during the past two weeks. No figures are available, but the total is about the usual percentage at this time of the year.

Town Clerk Raymond has been busy getting ready the paraphernalia for the Presidential election next Tuesday. The polls will open at 5.45 A. M. and close at 1 P. M. As the ballot is a long one the returns will undoubtedly be late. The election officers have not been instructed to announce in advance the complete returns, the vote for President as is done in some towns.

Supt. F. O. Stevens of the Water department has installed nearly 500 meters this year, and has recently been conducting some very satisfactory tests as to leakage of water.

Superintendent of Streets Johnson is now doing the sidewalks in Ward Two on Broad and High streets. A good job has been done in shaping up Middle street.

The dump on Main street has received attention from the Board of Health this week, and a great improvement in appearance has been made.

Tree Warden C. L. Merritt has recently had a gang in South Weymouth and Weymouth Landing cutting out the brush on the roadside where infested with moths. He is now at work in East Weymouth, and will go next to North Weymouth. Scouting work for moths on fruit trees will begin next week.

Registration has closed for the Presidential election, and Weymouth has 270 new names on the voting list, a total of 3322 voters.

Agricultural School.

C. L. Merritt, one of the trustees of the Norfolk County Agricultural school at Walpole, attended the meeting of the board on Saturday and is pleased at the progress being made. The county has purchased about 40 acres and have converted the dwelling thereon into a temporary school. The foundation is being put in for a new building. Over 30 are now attending the school. In addition there are 11 who are taking the course at the Weymouth High school, where the teacher is furnished by the county.

VOTERS, AWAKE

Give Your Officials a Little Encouragement.

Editor Gazette and Transcript:

At the outset let me say that what follows vitally concerns every citizen of Weymouth. Do you realize that a special town meeting was called for last Monday night, the purposes for which were legitimate and pressing, and that out of a population of approximately 14,000 less than 100 attended. Therefore on account of no quorum, the meeting was postponed to Monday, Nov. 6, at 7.45 p. m.

Well may people ask, what is the matter with Weymouth? Now as a matter of business—town business if you please—and in the name of Weymouth, I earnestly and respectfully ask all those who have any regard for the town or confidence in her officials, to attend in so far as possible, the adjourned meeting.

The future prosperity and advancement of our good old town depends not so much on the acts of her officials, as on the acts of her citizens. Procrastination, indifference and lack of pride in a people are hard to overcome; but I say to those who are true blue, there is still hope, don't give up the ship!

If you haven't faith in what is right, faith in what is recommended, then come like good loyal citizens to the meeting and say so, and thus put the responsibility for conditions that are bound to arise where they justly belong.

There need be and should be among the citizens of our town more loyalty and devotion to her welfare, else pray tell, how can we expect to go forward and keep pace with our sister towns?

I know you want and expect improvements, because you are continually asking for them, but if you don't get them, what is to blame? If the fault lay with the officials the remedy lay in your hands, and you should to a man exercise the prerogative; but on the other hand, if the hands of your officials, you should not expect or ask them to do impossible things.

The town officials as a whole are doing splendid service, and while there are those who would perhaps measure up to a still higher standard, yet they in order to get results and benefits for the town would deserve, expect, and should have, the confidence, backing and respect of her citizens.

I make this appeal realizing full well that while there may be honest differences of opinion as to what is best needed to better conditions, I am strongly of opinion that the great majority of our citizens, in the last analysis, desire and favor the things which would tend to make Weymouth a "Live, Progressive Town."

The meeting will be called to order at 7.45 p. m. next Monday. I would be pleased to meet you there.

E. W. Hunt.

Parker—Bearce.

Miss Ruth Hazel, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank L. Bearce of 37 Pleasant street, South Weymouth, and Sherman Parker, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward E. Parker of Woburn, were united in marriage at the home of the bride Monday, Oct. 30, at 4 o'clock by Rev. Fred A. Line of the Second Universalist church.

Miss Margaret Parker of Woburn, a sister of the groom acted as bridesmaid, and Harry E. Bearce of East Weymouth, a cousin of the bride, as best man. The double ring service was used. The bride wore a dress of pearl gray taffeta with crepe meteor and hat to match, and carried caryatid stems. The dress of the bridesmaid was of dark blue crepe de shine with hat to match. Miss Alida Baker rendered the wedding music on the piano.

A reception was held at the bride's home. There were guests present from Woburn, Newburyport, Lawrence, Boston, Brockton, Avon and the Weymouths. The house was beautifully decorated with potted plants and cut flowers. The bride was the recipient of many beautiful presents of cutglass, silver, etc. The firm of Harris & Forbes, bankers and brokers, of Boston, for whom the bride worked for several years, presented her with $50. After a short trip Mr. and Mrs. Parker will reside in Fitchburg.

DROWNED WHILE EELING

Boat Was Capsized Near Shepards Wharf

Simon De Young, 62, of Commercial street, East Braintree, was drowned while eeling for eels off Shepards wharf at 9 o'clock last night. The body was recovered later.

De Young with John A. McIntosh of Washington street, Weymouth, were fishing out of a boat, when the boat tipped over. McIntosh succeeded in getting shore. His outcries aroused the neighborhood and boats but out in an effort to save De Young.

For half an hour citizens, firemen and police grappled for the body before locating it. Martin and Leo Frazier dragged out. Efforts of a pulmonologist from the police station were futile.

De Young leaves a wife and two daughters.

TOWN MEETING

Adjournment Necessary Because of Failure to Get Quorum.

Another attempt will be made next Monday evening to hold a special town meeting, but it will be on the eve of the Presidential election and may be as unsuccessful as the attempt on Monday evening of this week. Town Clerk Raymond read the call, and there was a motion that the clerk cast one for George L. Barnes for moderator, but the vote was not unanimous and a ballot was ordered. The total number of votes cast was only 21, of which Mr. Barnes received 20. He was declared elected.

In the front row as usual was Edward L. O'Brien and he immediately moved that the meeting adjourn. He did not believe there were 200 voters present which the law requires. Further he was apposed to special town meetings which he said were usually called to railroad through something that it would be impossible to get through at the annual meeting. One day a year was enough to devote to the town business, he said.

Voted not to adjourn. Fred Rivinius of the appropriation committee, said that the committee recommended that the articles in the warrant be taken up in this order: No. 5, 3, 4, 2 and 6, as there might not be money enough to go round, and the most important matters should be considered first. It was so voted.

Mr. O'Brien wanted to know what the Board of Health needed of more money? What was it doing? Is it for that new disease "paralazation?"

Fletcher Howe raised the point of order that there was no quorum present. The Moderator appointed Frank Ray and Joe Taylor as tellers, and all the voters they could muster were 97, while the new town by-laws require 200 where appropriations are to be made.

Selectman Hawes moved that the meeting adjourn for one week at the same hour, and it was so voted. Adjournment was reached at 8 o'clock.

Those who believe that Weymouth should have another road roller will rally their forces next Monday night and attempt to pass the appropriation. Meanwhile the roller is stored in the barn of the highway department.

Weymouth 34; Milton 0.

Weymouth High tightened her grasp on the championship of the South Shore league Friday afternoon by defeating Milton High at the Cunningham field, Milton; score 34-0. Weymouth has but to defeat Rockland before she can annex the title.

The first touchdown was scored by Mauro, on an end run in the first quarter. He followed this run with a 75-yard run and touchdown greatly assisted by Garafalo.

Weymouth shows the greatest confidence in the use of the forward pass, lateral pass and many other trick plays. Curtin is playing a great kicking game, kicking four out of five goals from touchdowns. Richardson offensive work was very effective.

Lewis, Connolly and Pond excelled for Milton. A feature of the game was Weymouth's excellent cheering section conducted by Charles Gibson '18.

Charles Forest Clark.

Charles Forest Clark, who has been identified with the scrap leather business in Boston for upwards of 20 years, died on Tuesday, Oct. 21, at his home at 294 Seaver street, Roxbury. He had been ill since last June. Mr. Clark was a native of Weymouth, and the son of Henry and Huldah Elizabeth Clark. He began business upon leaving the public schools, and for the past five years had been at 95 South street, Boston. Mr. Clark was a member of Orphans Hope lodge at East Weymouth, and of the Boston City Club. His survivors are a wife, who was Miss Jennie Keene of Boston; a sister, Miss Lullie M. Clark of Weymouth, and a brother, Frank E. Clark, of Los Angeles, California.

Funeral services were held at his home on Friday afternoon at 1.30 o'clock, and the interment was at Mt. Vernon Cemetery, North Abington. Members of Orphan's Hope Lodge and South Shore Commandery acted as bearers.

South Weymouth Trot

Twice on Saturday the track record was broken, both times by J. W. Linnehan's M. L. J., which went one heat in 1.04 and the second in 1.03. The previous record was held by Barney Gibbs, since July 22, when 1.05 was established. Other winners in Saturday events were: J. W. Linnehan's Pavlowa, J. F. Young's The Counsellor, W. H. Foss's Warren H. F. P. Fay's Happy Peter, R. D. Stetson's Trilix S. G. A. French's Pansy Blossom, H. P. Hobart's Jefferson McKerron, S. A. Litchfield's Starling.

I. O. O. F. Degrees.

Crescent lodge, I. O. O. F., is making great plans for an exemplification of all the lodge degrees on the afternoon and evening of Washington's Birthday. It has been arranged that Crescent lodge shall work the initiatory and first degree; that Wilsey lodge of South Weymouth shall work the second degree; and Old Colony lodge of Hingham the third degree. Grand officers and a large number of visiting brethren are expected.

Too Dangerous To Overlook

WEYMOUTH PEOPLE WILL DO WELL TO HEED THE WARNING.

To have good health, the digestion, heart, lungs and kidneys must work perfectly. When there is anything wrong with the digestion, heart or lungs, a very noticeable pain or distress gives prompt warning. Kidney trouble is more easily overlooked, however, and too often gains a long start. But kidney trouble does give early signs, and backache, headaches, dizzy spells, rheumatic pains, too frequent scanty or painful urination should not be neglected. When these warnings appear, use Doan's Kidney Pills, the reliable, successful, strongly-recommended kidney remedy. Assist the medicine by taking things easier, reducing the use of liquors. A severe attack of kidney disease may be avoided. Doan's Kidney Pills have won the grateful praise of Weymouth people. Read this Weymouth resident's endorsement.

ADDED PRAISE

Over Three Years Later Mr. Binney said: "My faith in Doan's Kidney Pills is just the same as it was after I first used them. I still get the same good results whenever I have occasion to take a box or so of Doan's Kidney Pills and recommend them as highly as in the past."

Price 50c, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mr. Binney has twice publicly recommended. Foster-Milburn Co., Props, Buffalo, N. Y.

We Want a Business Man

A business man who has selling ability. The man we want may be in the automobile business now; he may be in some other business; he may be a farmer; he may be retired.

Whoever he is or whatever may be his occupation, we want him if he can fulfill the conditions of our proposal.

We are in search of a real, live, wide-awake man, who has had business training, who has some capital, who can sell Maxwell Motor Cars.

We are represented in almost 3000 of the leading cities and towns of the United States, and our dealers are prosperous and happy.

They should be, and will continue to be, for the Maxwell Car is the unquestioned leader of its class.

It is a car for which there is a nation-wide and growing demand—because it represents more real value, dollar for dollar, than any other car in the world.

We have no dealer in this locality. We want one immediately. Our representative will call and explain the details of a very attractive proposition.

Anyone interested should inquire at once.

FOR MAKING HARD SOAP
Cold Process

Use three pints of water with contents of one can of Lye. Stir well. The Lye will dissolve immediately and become quite hot. Allow it to cool. Melt six pounds of clean grease, tallow or lard until luke-warm; then pour the cold Lye into the melted grease gradually until thoroughly mixed and will drop from spoon with the consistency of honey. It is then stir for about 10 minutes. It is then ready to pour into any desired mold.

THE CAN and the Label that tells HOW

MAKING soap at home is easy if you have the right kind of Lye and the right directions. The best Lye for soap making is Hudson, and the directions on the can of Hudson Lye are the most reliable and simplest. The work is easy—no special utensils are needed and you don't have to upset your kitchen. Soap made with is purer because it doesn't contain any adulterants or fillers like rosin. It is better because it contains more glycerine which largely comes from the fats you boil but which the soap factories extract.

Hudson Lye is the very best for every purpose for which Lye is used. Do not accept substitutes which may be inferior and worthless. Hudson Lye meets the U. S. Government requirements for strength. Sold at all grocers and druggists. Big can 10c.

GOOD BUILDING FOR PIGEONS
It Costs From $1.25 to $1.75 Per Pair for Construction of Pen, Including Fittings.

A gable roof building 10 to 15 feet wide, 6 feet from the floor to the eaves, and 8 to 9 feet to the ridge makes a good pigeon house. A pen 8 by 9 feet will accommodate 25 pairs of pigeons, while 40 pairs may be kept in a pen 8 by 13 feet. The necessary floor space to allow per pair varies from 2 1/2 to 3 square feet, according to the size of the pen, as a pair of birds requires less floor space in large than in small pens. From 20 to 75 pairs of pigeons may be kept to advantage in each pen. It costs from $1.25 to $1.75 a pair to construct pigeon houses, including interior fittings and a small outside pen or fly-way.

Fittings should be as simple as possible and easy to clean. Two nest boxes should be provided for each pair of pigeons, and there should be some extra nests. The nest boxes are usually about 12 inches square, yet some breeders prefer this width and height with a depth of 15 to 18 inches. Egg or orange crates may be used for nests, but they are difficult to keep clean and less desirable than nests made with one-inch boards. A good method of construction is to use lumber 12 inches wide for the floor of the nests, arranging each floor so that it will slide on cleats and can be easily removed and cleaned. The nests are usually built in tiers against the rear wall of the pen, extending from the floor to 7 or 8 feet high, but they may also be placed on the side walls. All partitions should be solid to the top of the nests, but it is advisable to use wire netting above the nests for ventilation.

PRODUCING EGGS IN WINTER

First Essential is Hen Bred for That Particular Purpose—Proper Feeding is Important.

If you want winter eggs the first essential is a hen that is bred for winter laying. This character of winter laying is inherited from the male bird. The next essential is proper feeding methods.

Many fowls take the feed given them and convert it into fat, while those with the born tendency to lay convert the surplus above that needed for body maintenance into eggs. Every hen is born with a certain number of small oviducts, which the hen will develop if she is fed such feed as she needs to nourish them.

CHICKENS WITH WEAK LEGS

Trouble Caused by Feeding Young Fowls Too Much Protein or by Too Much Heat in Brooder.

Leg weakness in chickens is caused by feeding the young chicks too much protein, or too much heat in the brooder. In case the brooder is overheated reduce the temperature but not to a degree that will make the chicks uncomfortable. In case the difficulty is caused through excess of protein, increase the ash by feeding oyster shells. Leg weakness generally is overcome when conditions are changed by proper feeding methods.

SELL ALL NONLAYING FOWLS

Close Culling of Overfat and Determined Sitters is Recommended—Bringing High Price.

Old hens are bringing an unusually high price now and for this time of year. A close culling of overfat and determined sitters is recommended.

Sell those idle nonproducing hens; if they won't lay in this kind of weather it is a "clinch" that they won't do much this winter.

GET RID OF "STAR BOARDERS"

Early-Molting Fowls Not Efficient if They Persist in Being Broody—Watch the Flock.

It is a poor layer that idles away her time and is not laying now. Early molting fowls are not efficient producers if they persist in being broody and fail to utilize the favorable season of production. Watch your flock and cul out the "star boarders."

TOWN WARRANTS.

One way to get out a larger attendance of voters at town meetings is to advertise the meetings in the local papers. All warrants, for elections, whether they be special, annual, State or Presidential, should appear in the local newspapers, that the voters may read them carefully at the fireside and be prepared to vote. When the voters go to the polls next Tuesday, for example, they will be surprised to see that there are so many offices to be filled. Positions of which they have heard little or nothing during the campaign. Then there are several questions to be voted upon which should not be passed upon haphazard. The voters cannot be enlightened too much on any measure which is to come before them for action. It should be incorporated in the town by-laws that all warrants for town meetings should be published in all newspapers of Weymouth that have been established three years.

SHIPYARD TAXES.

President Powell, of the Fore River Shipbuilding Corporation, has intimated in an open letter to the Mayor of Quincy, that the company will protest the big increase in tax valuation this year, and intimates that a location may be sought elsewhere. Quincy has increased assessment 90 percent. over 1915, and the shipyard taxes 48 percent. Elsewhere, President Powell says, the large shipyards are favored with low valuations, and in one case exempt from taxes. Weymouth should invite the shipyard to move across the river. Weymouth would not give any industry such a roost as was handed out in Quincy.

PRESS CORRESPONDENTS

All churches, lodges and other organizations in the Weymouths are requested to appoint press correspondents, and instruct them to forward news promptly every week to the Gazette and Transcript. Please send as early in the week as possible.

The men are specially invited as this meeting is for the interests of men. But the ladies, who are always interested in men's welfare are also invited. There will be a chorus choir to lead the singing.

—A peculiar thing happened at the home of Anthony Smith this week. On Sunday Mr. Smith tried to build a fire in the cook stove without much success. The smoke refused to go out the chimney and came back into the house. Everything was cleaned that might possibly interfere with the proper drawing of the fire. But on Monday morning the stove refused to draw again. So the stovepipe was removed from the chimney and reaching in Mrs. Smith extracted a lifeless owl.

Cataract Deafness Cannot Be Cured
by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure cataract deafness, and that is by a constitutional remedy. Cataract Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result. Unless the inflammation can be reduced and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever. Many cases of deafness are caused by cataract, which is an inflamed condition of the mucous surface. Hall's Catarrh Cure acts thru the blood on the mucous surfaces of the system. ELECTRICITY FOR HEATING

October Price, $4.75

In the fall of the year when you want heat, you want it quickly. It does not pay to wait till the furnace gets heated up, because by that time you do not need it and then it is too hot and up go the windows. The remedy is the use of ELECTRICITY for heating.

Heat comes at once, continues as long as needed, and ceases when you push the button or turn the key at the lamp socket.

NASH SHOULD WIN.

Souther, Defeated by Walsh in Congressional Contest, Now Butts In On Senatorial Contest.

The Boston Transcript says: William O. Souther of Cohasset, having signally failed at the September primaries to defeat Congressman Joseph Walsh of New Bedford, for the Republican nomination for Congressman in the sixteenth district, and his occupation, now like Othello's being gone, is trying to defeat Kenneth L. Nash of Weymouth, the Republican senatorial nominee in the new Norfolk and Plymouth district, by running as a "Republican Independent."

Souther has no chance to be elected. The most he can do is to elect Nash's Democratic opponent, George E. Mansfield of Rockland.

Speaker Channing H. Cox, in speaking of this contest today, said: "I regard Mr. Nash as one of the leaders of the House, as one upon whose judgment it was always safe to rely. I have appointed him to important committees, which positions he has held with great credit to himself and benefit to the Commonwealth. I should greatly deplore his defeat."

Representative Alvin E. Bliss, chairman next to speaker Cox of the Committee on Rules, and Republican "whip" of last year's House, says:

"Mr. Nash was a valuable man in the House. Souther cannot be elected. His candidacy simply increases Mansfield's chances. If Mansfield is elected Senator he will do right and vote right."

Mr. Bliss is also vice chairman of the Republican Legislative Committee. That committee has sent out this letter to the ward and city committeemen in the Norfolk and Plymouth districts:

We are familiar with the circumstances of this campaign in the Norfolk and Plymouth senatorial districts. Mr. Souther, who has entered a contest as a Republican Independent, has served for three years in the House as a Democrat, with an independent endorsement. Mr. Souther has followed the Democratic party leaders in all party measures during his tenure in the House, and though the field is opened for any candidate to compete in the primary, Mr. Souther did not see fit to enter and should abide by the result of that contest.

Mr. Nash is the straight Republican nominee and has the support of the Republican State Committee, and should receive the support of every Republican in the district. If it is possible for you to further Mr. Nash's candidacy in any way we hope you will do so.

Souther was never elected as a Republican and he never had even a Republican party endorsement. His three elections to the House were as the regular Democratic nominee, with an independent endorsement against a regular Republican nominee.

In 1913 he was the only candidate for the nomination in the Democratic primaries, and was elected over Edward Clarence Hovey, Jr., of Cohasset, who had the Republican and Progressive nominations.

In 1914 Mr. Souther was again the only candidate for the Democratic nomination and was elected over Ellery H. Clark of Cohasset, who was unopposed for the Republican nomination.

Only last fall he was nominated by the Democrats for a third time and won over Robert D. Brewer of Hingham, who was unopposed for the Republican nomination.

Every election was as a Democrat with an independent endorsement, against a man who was nominated by the Republicans unopposed.

Souther's first appearance after election in 1913, was in the Democratic House caucus of 1914, when he made a eulogistic speech in favor of Martin Lomasney for speaker against Grafton D. Cushing, Republican. Representative Peter Tague of Boston, was finally nominated by the Democrats, and when Tague, on the opening day of the session, threw his vote and strength to George P. Webster, Progressive, in an effort to defeat Cushing Souther voted on four straight ballots in favor of Webster, as did all but four Democrats in the House.

The same day Souther voted steadily with the Lomasney-Teague Democratic forces in an effort to so revise the rules of the House that the committees should be elected by the House itself and that the power of making appointments to committees be taken out of the hands of the Speaker. The Republicans defeated this proposition and on the following day, when the Democrats held up the inauguration exercises, while they simply filibustered in an attempt to defeat the Republican action of the previous day Souther voted with the Democrats on every one of a series of rollcalls.

Upon his re-election to the house of 1915, Souther voted for Representative Edward F. McLaughlin of Boston, Democratic candidate for Speaker, against Speaker Channing H. Cox. Only this year he voted for Representative William H. Sullivan of Boston, Democratic candidate for Speaker, against Speaker Cox. Souther was recognized at the State House throughout his three years of service as a democrat and nothing else. The presiding officers in the House on all three occasions were among those who so recognized him, and his assignments to committees were made by the Speakers on the basis that he was a Democrat.

Nash's opponent for the Republican senatorial nomination at the September primaries was Representative Edward J. Sandberg of Quincy. Nash was serving his third term in the House from the then seventh Norfolk district, consisting of the town of Weymouth. Sandberg had then represented the old sixth Norfolk district—wards 4, 5 and 6 of Quincy—for five years. The primary fight was a hot one, one of the principal issues being the Simon Swig affair. Nash had voted for an investigation, while Sandberg had voted against an inquiry. Nash lost no opportunity to criticize the position taken by Sandberg. The controversy grew so warm that Swig himself went to Quincy the Sunday before the primaries to endorse Sandberg. Nash, however, continued his fight, and the result showed that the voters of the district were with him in the position that he took. Nash had 3182 votes to Sandberg's 2009 in the whole district. Even in Sandberg's home city Nash had 1484 votes to Sandberg's 1550. Nash carried his own town of Weymouth with 993 votes to Sandberg's 95. This showed the esteem in which each man is held in the community in which he resides.

Souther voted against the Swig investigation order.

Nash is also opposed by George E. Mansfield of Rockland, Dem., and Alonzo B. Henderson of Hanover, Rep.

The primary fight in the sixteenth congressional district was particularly bitter, chiefly because the religious issue was raised by some of Walsh's opponents. Walsh was backed by most of the substantial business men, and his record as an ardent opponent of the "pork barrel" in Congress had made a deep impression upon the voters. Souther on the other hand, had little better than the religious issue to urge against Walsh. Furthermore, he was really a Democrat. Walsh received 5528 votes in the district to Souther's 2657.

MEN' CLUB.

Illustrated Talk Given on the Use of the X Ray.

About 70 men, including most of the Weymouth physicians, attended the November meeting of the Men's Club of the Clapp Memorial Association on Wednesday evening, and enjoyed the usual hot roast beef supper with a few extra fixings.

It was the annual meeting of the club and with one exception the officers were re-elected, viz:

President, W. C. Earle.
Vice President, H. P. Tilden.
Secretary, F. W. Preston, Jr.
Treasurer, W. A. Hodges.

Executive Committee with above, W. A. Wheaton, H. R. Drinkwater, W. H. Holbrook, F. M. Crocker, T. F. Lynch and Frank F. Prescott of the Gazette and Transcript.

Reu. Fred A. Line was advertised as the speaker, but was called out of town, and in his place Dr. Holmes, of the Massachusetts General Hospital was secured to give an illustrated talk on the X Ray. His lantern went on a strike, and it was not until a lantern was secured at one of the local churches that the lecture could proceed.

Meanwhile Henry G. Young, chief engineer of the Weymouth Light and Power Co., was called upon impromptu for remarks. He was equal to the occasion. Taking "Chimneys" as his subject, he gave a humorous talk which might appropriately be called a monologue. He said a stranger often sized up a town by its chimneys, whether they were tall and straight. He hit the Board of Trade, the high cost of living and other things. Great applause.

Dr. Holmes showed different parts of the human body and how they were affected by disease and fractures. It was a very instructive talk.

Douglas Easton in reporting for the nominating committee, had stories to tell in his humorous way.

The December meeting will probably be the Goose supper, if geese can be secured, and Rev. Mr. Line is expected to speak.

Halloween Party.

The Parish Guild of Trinity church held their annual Halloween supper and entertainment in Pythian Hall Tuesday evening which was well attended. The hostesses were Mrs. Charles Beltring and Mrs. Tom Liley. An excellent supper was served by them assisted by the supper committee, Mrs. Imsey Young, Mrs. Ellen Blanchard, Mrs. Henrietta Davidson, Mrs. Louis Ellis, Mrs. Northup, Mrs. Tyler, Mrs. Mallen, Mrs. Payne, Elizabeth Hyde and Agnes Hyde.

The entertainment was "The Witches Carnival," arranged by and given under the direction of Miss Agnes Hyde. Miss Hyde took the part of the first witch with Mabel Moffat and Elizabeth Hyde as second and third witches. They were the weird and masterful leaders of the play.

The sea nymphs sang and looked beautifully, they were Alice Northup, Eva Ellis, Irene Liley, Magerite Beltring, Roberta Finlay, Cissy Hemmingway. The singing and dancing of the tiny fairies was delightful. Edith Payne was the Queen and the other fairies were Barbara Pray, Phoebe Lavery, Jane Spence, Ida Adams, Evelyn Adams, Hazel Liley, May Girtin, Hannah Spence, Belle Lavery and Clara Lavery.

The gnomes and brownies made a hit all right both with their singing and fun. The gnomes were Charles Caine, Joseph Donaldson, Harry Lavery, Cyril Hemmingway, Norton Hemmingway and Harry Tipperore. The brownies were Charles Tipperore, Charles Pray and Richard Spence.

The ghosts were mystic and at the same time amusing. They were Eva Ellis, Evelyn Jansen, Helen Wyman, Josephine Lavery, Alice Northup and the Misses Liley, Finlay and Hemmingway and Beltring. Miss Lillian Beltring and Master Joseph Mallen presided at the piano.

The whole play was a complete success. A social dance followed with excellent music by Nagle's orchestra.

Catholic Club.

The Catholic Woman's Club of Weymouth held its second meeting Monday in the basement of the Sacred Heart church and elected the following officers:

President, Miss Annie Scollard.
Vice Presidents, Miss Evangeline Martel and Miss Mary Sheehy.

Recording secretary, Miss Anna Kennedy.

Corresponding secretary, Miss Joanna Connell.

Treasurer, Mrs. Alice Doyle.
Custodian, Mrs. J. Clinton.

Auditors, Miss Annie Coffey and Miss McEnroe.

Directors, Mrs. John Sullivan, Mrs. Byron Hall, Mrs. Godin, Miss Margaret Sullivan, Miss Nellie Roche.

Chaplain, Rev. J. B. Holland.

It was agreed that the next meeting should be held Nov. 13, 1916.

Union Church.
Sunday morning worship at 10:30. Mr. Watson will preach on "Europe's challenge to America." Sunday School will meet at 12 o'clock. A new class for women was formed last Sunday. All women are invited to attend.

Prayer meeting, Thursday evening, at 7:30. Chapter 6 of Dr. Trumbull's book "Individual work for individuals" will be discussed.

FOR THE STOUT YOUNG LADY

It would appear that Dame Fashion devotes more than enough time to the styles for the slim and well-rounded young lady and gives scant time and attention to her stouter sister, who finds it hard to dress becomingly and in the latest style without accentuating her stoutness. This is one of the many new fall fashions to which much care has been given. It is of plaid taffeta overskirt with plain taffeta bodice, sleeves and underskirt. It possesses very effective sleeve gatherings, which are trimmed with buttons. The collar is of taffeta finished with jet ornaments.

ONE-PIECE FROCKS POPULAR

They Are Made of Satin, Gabardine, Velours and Velvet Trimmed With Chiffon and Embroidery.

We are inundated with one-piece frocks made of satin, gabardine, velours and velvet. Chiffon plays a larger part than georgette crepe, and embroidery is spread over the surface of the frocks, but does not touch the tailored suits.

The best choice of material in these is velours. The best style at the present moment is the moderately long and wide skirt arranged to hang limply against the body, and a coat that is reminiscent of the days when men dressed in a more conspicuous manner than they do now—a coat that is tightly buttoned in at the waist, has a full peplum cut on an even line halfway between knees and waist without stint of fullness in its folds, and wide revers and collars that again suggest the directoire.

With these are worn high, draped collars with full frills in front. Those who seek something new in every form of dress are having neckwear especially copied from old, historic portraits of men who were famous in America during and after the Revolution.

NOVEL USE FOR OLD BANGLE

Either It or a Bracelet Can Be Utilized in Making a Safety Pin Holder.

Most of us possess an old bangle, and our sketch shows a novel way in which it may be utilized in making it do duty as a safety pin holder. House pins and brooches can also be fastened upon it in the way illustrated. All that has to be done is to tie a prettily colored piece of ribbon upon one side of the bangle and arrange it in a long loop that can be slipped over the post of the looking-glass.

Should one be available, an old bracelet with a clasp can be used in the same manner, and will be found even more handy than a bangle, as the bracelet can be unfastened and pins and brooches easily slipped upon it, and also it will form a very safe holder for rings, from which they cannot fall off and get lost.

THREE PIECE SETS

HAT, SCARF AND MUFF THAT MATCH ARE MUCH IN FAVOR.

One of Purple Velvet and Ermine and Another of Black Velvet and Sapphire Blue Taffeta Are Shown in Sketch.

Hat, scarf and muff or bag that match are quite approved by dame fashion for the coming season, and two very charming sets are shown in the sketch. The upper one employs purple velvet and ermine in its construction. The little toque of velvet is banded in ermine and an ornament in oriental colorings centers the front. The scarf may be worn open, as illustrated, or it may be draped high about the throat. A narrow band of ermine borders the scarf on either side and an ermine-covered button of generous size serves to conceal the scarf's fastening. The small round muff is edged with ermine. Color of velvet used and type of fur may be varied to suit the individual taste. Chinchilla squirrel and silver rabbit are two effective furs that might be attractively combined with velvet in the development of a three-piece set similar to the one sketched.

In the lower set, consisting of sports hat, scarf and bag, black velvet and sapphire blue taffeta are combined. An effective method would be to cord the taffeta, thereby making it heavier and richer looking. The hat is turned up at one side and caught with a bright ornament.

Smart Three-Piece Sets That May Be Made at Home.

Novelty dress accessories may be developed at comparatively small actual expense if patience and some cleverness at designing are possessed, and with the aid of these little odds and ends a very plain gown or suit becomes quite distinguished.

French women are notably well dressed, and in large measure they accomplish this result not so much by the richness and variety of their costumes as by the individuality and smartness of their accessories.

Charming hat shapes may be bought all ready to be covered and trimmed, and either of the sets illustrated could be perfected without a great outlay of either time or money.

FASHION'S WHIMS

Monkey fur, which was worn last winter, already appears on some of the autumn garments. It is used as trimming on a georgette crepe cape.

In underwear the empire waistline is noticeable this autumn. Another noticeable detail of autumn lingerie is the number of fine pin tucks which appear.

Fine metallic thread embroidery is featured in many of the new French model frocks.

Much lace is used to trim Italian silk underwear.

Ostrich feather for trimming finds a place in autumn fashions. Clipped ostrich feather fans are shown in the smart shops and they will probably be much used with the new evening frocks.

Seal is a fur that will be much used for trimming broadcloth models for the street.

There is more ribbon this season on lingerie than artificial flowers.

Crocheted bags in silk are one of the smart handbag models. The crochet is usually done in bright colors.

Beaded bags are as much used as predictions indicated. Sometimes the beads are sewed to velvet or silk, sometimes they are worked into a crocheted foundation.

Silk voile is a fabric used in the new lingerie for petticoats and combinations.

Deep sailor collars of fur adorn some of the autumn coats.

The Moment's Destiny

By GEORGE MUNSON

(Copyright, 1918, by W. G. Chapman)

"Geoff, Powell, you must be mad!" "Maybe I am, or maybe there's a method in my madness. Of course, again, there are things I value more than money."

The manufacturer took Geoffrey by the sleeve. "See here, my friend," he said, "I'm offering you a position at two thousand a year, because you're a college man and understand the special mathematical work that this contract calls for. It's a job that fifty applicants are after, and I'm offering it to you for your dead father's sake, and because I believe in you."

"Go on, Mr. Woodstock. And because, as an ex-jailbird, I couldn't get a job anywhere else. And because I'm in rags."

"Geoff, what's the trouble? You don't act or speak like a normal man. I guess I can mind my own affairs, Mr. Woodstock."

The manufacturer turned back to his desk. "All right, sir, you don't have to take it," he said. But as Geoffrey was going toward the door he turned toward him. "If you change your mind by Saturday let me know," he said. And then, to himself, "It's for his father's sake."

Jim Woodstock had known Powell, senior, all his business life. It was his friendship for him that induced him to offer the position to his worthless son, Geoffrey. Geoffrey was the younger, Arthur the elder. Geoffrey had been wild at college, and had ended by forging a bill for fifty dollars. It was as much thoughtlessness as any evidence of crime; but the boy had been sent up for six months, and after that every door had been closed against him.

Ellie Mayhew had been away when he returned. If anybody could have kept him straight it was his boyish sweetheart. She had written to him when he was in prison, imploring him to turn over a new page in his record, begging him to remember that all had not forgotten him. But when Geoffrey turned up at the village he thought Ellie had barred her door against him. And so he had left, after a furious quarrel with Arthur, now the sole inheritor of his father's property.

There had followed five years of aimless traveling. Geoffrey had never run quite straight; he drank and gambled, but he had never been dishonest again. Deep in his heart there was the desire to live a clean life, but there was also the shame of intolerable wrong. He had at last decided, after long brooding, to leave it out with his brother, his supplanter; and was on his way homeward, with the plan of killing him when he encountered Mr. Woodstock, who had made him the offer of the position.

Geoffrey laughed as he went away. What did he care about a position when the dream long brooded over was to come to fruition at last?

He meant to kill his brother, his supplanter, who lived in luxury while he was a tramp upon the roads. He would show these village people what it meant to kill a man's soul and grind him down in the dust.

It was almost dark when he reached Farningham. He had spent his last twenty dollars on the purchase of the revolver snugly hidden beneath his coat. And, reaching his brother's house, he stood, a ragged tramp, leaning outside the garden pailing, and looking through the window at the lights.

He saw his brother, seated in his chair, reading, and his brother's wife her fair hair bent over the needle work at which she sewed. He had always hated Jenny, and had thought that she was the cause of his brother's refusal to help him. From where he stood he could hear and see a better through Arthur's study door, but he meant to have it all out with him, and now, tired, worn out and weak, and from his furious thoughts, he was trying to nerve himself to enter when the door opened and a little boy ran out.

The brother's child! He had not thought of that. In fact he had not known that Arthur had a son. So much the better for his purposes, though. No doubt Arthur had disparaged him in the boy, holding him up as an example, using him as a sort of bogey. In the old days when Geoffrey and Arthur had been very close to each other, Arthur's engagement had been a great pleasure to Geoffrey, and he had often hoped there would be a boy. He had planned to mean so much to him. Now the bitterness in the outcast's heart overflowed.

But the child had spied him, and with a shout, had run to him.

"Hello!" he called confidently.

"Hello!" answered Geoffrey morosely, noting the face of the brother in that of the boy.

"Are you my Uncle Geoffrey?" inquired the other.

"What's that? What do you mean?" demanded Geoffrey, starting.

"But I see you are not," answered the boy, looking at the man's clothes in the light of the lamp. "Uncle Geoffrey will come home dressed finely, and you are only a tramp, aren't you?" "Only a tramp, my boy," replied the other.

"Well, I'm sorry you aren't Uncle Geoffrey. But I guess he will come along soon. I've never seen him, and he can't stay away much longer. I wish he would come."

"Why?" demanded Geoffrey curiously.

"Because we all want to see him so much. You see, grandfather told father that he was to give Uncle Geoffrey his share of the money as soon as he settled down, and father has been trying to get news of Uncle Geoffrey for ever so long, so as to help him. And he says he's the finest uncle in the world."

"He does, does he?" demanded Geoffrey in grim amusement.

"Yes, and mother says some night he'll turn up, as sure as fate, and then I'll see what a fine uncle I've got. And that's what Miss Mayhew says too. You know, you mustn't say anything about it, but Miss Mayhew's going to marry Uncle Geoffrey some day. She's just waiting for him to come back."

"Who told you that?" demanded the man fiercely.

"O-h! You're hurting my shoulder. Why, she told me herself, and she told me not to tell anybody, so of course I mustn't. But I did tell mother, and she said she guessed it was true, and Miss Mayhew will be a girl that any man had ought to be proud of. You are sure you aren't my Uncle Geoffrey?" continued the boy wistfully.

"No, I'm not your Uncle Geoffrey just now, but he'll be coming along presently."

"Oh! Are you sure? Do you know him?"

"Harry! Harry!" The mother's voice was calling. Geoffrey saw her rise. He whispered hastily:

"Tell them all—including Miss Mayhew—that your Uncle Geoffrey's coming home soon—just as soon as he's shown his worth and made a man of himself. And—would you like to kiss Uncle Geoffrey's friend?" he added bending down toward the child.

And he strode off into the darkness whistling. For he knew that Uncle Geoffrey's fortune had set true.

LOSS OF WEIGHT IN COINS

Abrasion by No Means Only Cause According to Leading Metallurgical Expert.

In the latest report of the British mint, Sir Thomas K. Rose, a well known metallurgical expert, calls attention to the effect of grease derived from the sweat of the fingers, or from other sources, in accelerating the wear of coins, which is usually attributed entirely to abrasion, says the Youth's Companion. Sir Thomas says that the fatty acids of the grease have a corrosive action upon the metal. Copper, in particular, even if present only in small quantity as an alloy for gold or silver, is converted into an oleate, stearate or other salt. Haager Smith of the Utrecht mint found by analysis that the dirt on a bronze coin contained 35 per cent of copper in the form of powdered compounds of the fatty acids. When the coin is handled the dirt is in part detached, and the coin undergoes a loss of weight. Gold or silver is not readily converted into salts, but removing the copper leaves the less easily attacked metals in a spongy form that offers little resistance to abrasion. In new coins the rapid loss of weight that occurs is doubtless caused at first by abrasion, but when the rough edges have been removed chemical action may prove to be of the first importance in the succeeding deterioration.

Playing Both Ends.

"This would be a good time for me to take a vacation," remarked the secretary and treasurer of a city concern.

"But you returned from one only a week ago," said the president.

"Oh, that was my vacation as secretary; I wish to go now as treasurer."

All Ready for "Hip Hip, Hooray."
The long-heralded, much-discussed New York Hippodrome Show, euphonicously and appropriately entitled, "Hip, Hip, Hooray," will begin its engagement in Boston at the Boston Opera House on Monday evening, Nov. 13. That it will be an entertainment to delight the eye and to tickle the sense of childhood and of the grownups is foregone conclusion.
Charles Dillingham's plan is to reproduce exactly the great pageant which broke all records at the big playhouse in New York last season. All the great stars and all the brilliant features have been retained.
There will be 400 in the ensemble—mostly pretty girls—and the entire organization, it is said, will be the most pretentious that any theatrical producer has tried to take on tour.

Disagreeable Persons.
When I see a disagreeable person approaching I walk away. I don't wait until he gets started. The most disagreeable people, when they approach, say a few agreeable things to begin with; then is the time for disappearing. It's no use to argue with disagreeable people. If they could help it they would. Possibly they regard the annoying things they say as criticism; every one likes to think of himself as a critic. The only complete answer to a disagreeable person is flight or a fight, and no one cares to be mugged up constantly by fighting.—Ed Howe in New York Independent.

ELECTRIC ARC MELTS STEEL

Most Intense Heat Produced by Man is From the Carbon Flame.

The most intense heat produced by man is that of the electric arc, and the possibilities of its application in various branches of American industry have only begun to be realized. Like many other useful scientific agents, the electric arc has been adopted by the burglar. There is no safe known that will not yield to the electric carbon applied by the skilled "safe cracker."

Aside from lighting, the most useful purpose to which the electric arc has been put is in the mending of broken or cracked castings and metal parts of all kinds. A broken shaft, for instance, can be resurrected from the junk heap if a skilled workman, with adequate apparatus, is given a chance at it. Moreover, a broken metal piece repaired by the electric arc is as serviceable as when new. In fact, strain tests made upon repaired castings often result in breakage at a different point than where the repair was made. Operators are well protected against danger. Due to the intense heat at the point at which the carbon pours its electrical fire upon the metal, the operators usually wear helmets or at least hold between their eyes and the arc a thick plate of cobalt glass. The amount of protection required depends upon the strength of the current fed to the arc.—Popular Science Monthly.

EXHAUSTING A SUBJECT.

A Satirical Hint to Both Young and Old Writers.

Writers should early learn not to try to exhaust a subject. If there is one thing above another thing that a subject will not stand for it is to be exhausted. It is the one tireless thing extant. In every other way subjects are amiable and tractable.

If you go at a subject in the right spirit you can say nearly anything you wish about it, but immediately you try to get a rope around a subject's neck and chase it around a ring until it is absolutely used up the said subject takes on a dry, dogged, stubborn air and refuses to be interesting, and of course a writer who cannot keep his subject interesting is lost.
Think of the most uninteresting books you ever read. They were written by men who quite evidently sat down with the mental resolution, "Now, I'll just clean up on this subject once and for all, so that it will henceforth be clear to all posterity, even unto the day of judgment." But of course no such aim was ever realized.

The only sure result of trying to exhaust a subject is to prove that it is exhaustless.—Life.

An Awful Experience.
A native diver descended into the water to see whether one of the piers, then in course of construction, had set. While he was engaged in this work a great iron cylinder subsided a little, crushing his hand between it and the masonry. When, on a signal being given, another diver came down he found his unfortunate comrade imprisoned under water without hope of escape. After a few moments of mute despair and harrowing uncertainty a speechless decision was arrived at, and the newcomer proceeded with chisel and hammer to hack off his unhappy companion's hand at the wrist. The prisoner was thus liberated, but died soon after reaching the surface from the shock. Never, I think, has an optimum enter in his dreams imagined a more pitiful spectacle of hopeless human suffering.—"Travels in India."

The most disagreeable people, when they approach, say a few agreeable things to begin with; then is the time for disappearing. It's no use to argue with disagreeable people. Her First Victim.
Lossie, aged two and a fraction, but precocious in all feminine arts, was discovered by her mother standing on a chair before the mirror and brushing her hair according to a fashion of her own devising with a coquettish and provocative sweep to one side. As her mother entered unnoticed by the intent artist, she heard the mink remark to herself with complacency, "Daddy will kiss me now."—New York Post.

NASH AND SPINNEY ARE ELECTED

HUGHES	1331
WILSON	1223
McCALL	1470
MANSFIELD	1086
LODGE	1384
FITZGERALD	1094

This was Weymouth's verdict at the election of Tuesday, with pluralities for all the other Republican candidates with one exception—Henry L. Kincaide of Quincy, for Congressman, running behind his ticket, giving Richard Olney, the Democrat, a plurality of 755 in this town. Kenneth L. Nash of Weymouth, the Republican candidate for Senator, went out of his home town with a plurality of 392, and won in the district. The vote of Weymouth was: Nash 1187; Mansfield 795; and Souther, independent, 615.

Burgess H. Spinney the Republican candidate for Representative, received a handsome vote, 1409, and defeated Dennis J. Slattery, whose total was 1135. Hughes carried all but two precincts of the town, the precincts against him being the Weymouth Landing and Weymouth Center.

McCall for Governor ran 139 ahead of Hughes, but 24 behind Coolidge for Lieutenant Governor.

Senator Lodge was 53 ahead of Hughes, but 86 behind McCall. Burrell for Treasurer was high man on the State ticket, but Congressman Olney, with a vote of 1615, was the highest where there was an opposition candidate.

Our townsman, Louis A. Cook, for County Clerk of Courts, had no rival, and headed the list with 1619 votes. The school house amendment was defeated 1260 to 671, but there were 876 blank votes, enough to have reversed the verdict, if cast in favor of the amendment. Weymouth voted in favor of all the other amendments.

The vote in detail for all the candidates will be found in another column.

Senator Nash. Representative Kenneth L. Nash of Weymouth was successful in his contest for the Senate as the Republican candidate, winning by 2453 plurality over Mansfield, and 2787 plurality over Souther. The only town which did not give a Nash plurality was Rockland. The vote of the district was:

	Nash	Souther	Mansfield
Abington	447	215	391
Cohasset	229	180	144
Hanover	213	122	83
Hingham	457	283	237

Whitman	569	306	508
Weymouth	1187	614	795
	6946	4159	4493

Congressman Olney. The big surprise of the election locally was the defeat of Henry L. Kincaide the Republican nominee for Representative to Congress, who failed to carry his home city of Quincy, the vote being: Olney, Over Ninety Per Cent.

Weymouth has 3101 male voters and over 90 per cent. visited the polls on Tuesday, a grand total of 2807. Precinct 3 at Weymouth Landing, cast the largest vote and precinct 5 of South Weymouth was second. The following summary shows the number of assessed polls by precincts, the number of male voters, the total vote cast by the male voters, and the number of female voters qualified to vote for school committee:

Election Echoes.

All the Norfolk county senators and representatives elect are Republicans. Quincy voted to adopt a new form of city charter known as Plan A which goes into effect immediately. It will reduce the city council from 23 to 9, all elected at large; give the mayor a two-year term and also the chairmanship of the school board. No caucuses will be held, all candidates being placed in nomination by papers without party designations.

Only six democrats were elected to the Senate, and five of these are from Boston. The amendment providing for a constitutional convention was adopted two to one, and also the amendment to provide for party enrollment.

Massachusetts will have the same number of Republicans and Democrats as at present in the next Congress.

The Republicans made a gain in the next Massachusetts House.

Braintree's vote for President was: Hughes, 974; Wilson, 558. For Governor: McCall, 1102; Mansfield, 499. For Senator: Lodge, 986; Fitzgerald, 520. The Representative elect is Arthur W. Paine, of Holbrook, Republican. Rockland went Republican for the first time in many years, 789 for Hughes and 771 for Wilson. McCall received 776 and Mansfield 770. Lodge led Fitzgerald by 7 votes.

Monopoly of Barnabas Beagle

Story of a Projected Reform That Came to Naught.

By CLARENCE BUDINGTON KELLAND
Copyright by Frank A. Munsey Co.

Jacob Whittle, newly elected town councilor, was excited. He rushed up the stairs to the office of Martin Good-hand, who had been president of the board for a time so long that the memory of man runneth not to the contrary.

"Martin," Jacob began shrilly as he burst into the room and mopped his brow with a huge blue handkerchief,
"we been neglectin' our duty—not knowin'ly, Martin, nor delib'ately, but neglectin' all the same. What d'you s'pose, Martin, is existin' in this town right under our noses, without our seein' it, that has got to be stamped out in the grasp of a iron hand? What d'you s'pose?"

Martin leaned forward, his jaw setting grimly.

"Ain't nobody violatin' the Hecker law, is they?"

"Worse! Worse'n that! And who'd ever thought one of 'em would 'a' growed up right here in Sand Hill? It's a monopoly, Martin—one of them graspin', grindin', unholy monopolies, that's what it is!"

"Who's monopolizin' in Sand Hill?"

asked Martin.

"It's our one and only public service concern. It's our bus line, that's what it is! It's Barney Beagle. Look this thing in the eye, Martin, and tell me if there's any competition. Does any one else own a bus? What other feller carries passengers and trunks to the depot? Nobody! Barney Beagle holds us in the holler of his hand. He's grasped off this here necessity and is runnin' it to suit himself. I tell you, Martin Goodhand, if he took a notion he could raise the fare from the depot to the hotel to a quarter instead of 10 cents, that's what he could do. He could charge folks 50 cents for takin'
'em and their baggage to a train, and we couldn't raise a hand to prevent him. Now what you got to say?"

"What's your idee?" Martin asked.

"Competition! As officers of this here town it's our bounden duty to look to the interests of all the folks that live here. We'll start a village bus line, and the profits can come off'n the taxes. It's bound to be a poplar measure, Martin, with everybody exceptin' Barney."

"Jacob"—Martin struck his table a tremendous blow—"I'm gratified! I didn't think you had it in you, Jacob.
You're a man of brains, and how you've bid it all these years beats me. I wouldn't be s'prised to see you sent to the legislature after this—no, sir, I wouldn't. How'll we begin?"

"Call a meetin' of the council and summon Barney Beagle in front of it.
Peaceful measures is best if they'll work. If he'll give bond and guarantee never to raise his rates, all right."

The village councilors were called together, and Jacob Whittle's discovery was laid before them. One and all sat aghast at the calamity that had well nigh overtaken them, and one and all gazed on Jacob with eyes of admiration and envy.

"Has Barney been sent for?" demanded Jacob.

"He's comin' up the street now. I kin hear the rattle of his bus," said Abel Martin.

The councilors waited breathlessly.

"DOLLAR 'N A HALF!" GROANED JACOB.

There came a clatter on the stairs, and Barnabas Beagle entered noisily.

"Afternoon, gentlemen, one and all!"
he roared. "What kin I do for you?
Ticked to death to be of service to the council?"

"Sit down!" President Goodhand ordered sternly. "It's been discovered that you're a monopoly. Know what a monopoly is?"

"I calculate it's where a feller has got all there is of it and is reachin' out for more."

"You've got the idee, all right. That describes you to a tee. You've got all the busses there is, and for all we know you may be stretchin' out after more."

Barnabas looked from one councilor to another, and his eyes disappeared in a mass of wrinkles that always came at the commencement of a laugh.

Then he opened his mouth and roared until the lamp in its bracket threatened to fall.

"Gentlemen, one and all," he said, with solemnity, "you're right. It hadn't never occurred to me before—never. I'm what you said—one of them monopolies. It's a mean thing to be and a hard name to be called, but, like the dog said when he killed the sheep and was wonderin' whether to eat it, I might as well have the game as the name. Therefore, gentlemen, one and all, beln' 's I'm a monopoly, I'm a-goin' to monopolize a little. Follerin' out that line of argument from and after the present minute, my rates for carry-in' folks from the depot to the hotel is 25 cents, and for carryin' 'em from their homes to the train is half a dollar."

With that Mr. Beagle stamped out.

"We got to fight!" Jacob rasped.
"We will not be trod on. We'll run a competin' line, and we won't charge but half of Barney's old prices. Then we'll see where he'll be with his monopoly!"

Meantime Barnabas Beagle hurried to the printing office and had printed two huge placards, with black letters, on red paper, reading:

BARNABAS BEAGLE
BUS MONOPOLY

Prices Doubled and Custom Solicited.
These he fastened, one on each side of his bus, and drove noisily down Main street.

Jacob Whittle, with the burden of the campaign on his willing shoulders, gave thought to ways and means.
First, it was clear, a conveyance capable of transporting passengers and baggage must be had. For an hour Jacob vainly endeavored to scale this obstacle, but his indomitable will finally led him to a path that might reach its crest.

The path took the shape of the village band wagon, a cumbersome affair on wheels, consisting of a huge wooden body, with long, parallel, cloth upholstered seats. It was uncovered, but would serve its purpose. It was owned by Henny Richards.

Forth sallied Jacob to the Richards home, where, behind the barn, stood the objective vehicle. He summoned Henny, who emerged from the barn.

"You'd be willin' to do a service for the community?" asked Jacob, rubbing his hands.

"Depends some on the service," he hesitated.

"If it was lendin' the village this here band wagon for a spell?" suggested the diplomatic Jacob.

"Gratis?" asked Henny.

"Gratis," nodded Jacob.

"In that case," Henny said positively, "I feel my public spirit oozin' out rapid. Besides, I've—"

At this moment Barnabas Beagle appeared around the corner of the barn.
He glanced at Jacob and nodded. "I came to see you," he said, addressing Henny, "about rentin' this old band wagon of your'n."

"But," Henny wheezed.

"I want to hire it for a few weeks," declared Barnabas.

Jacob seized Henny by the arm.

"I was here first!" he said excitedly.

"I came first!"

"To borrow, not to hire," observed Henny, who had resumed his usual calm.

"I'll pay—I'll pay!" exclaimed Jacob.

"How much?"

"Fifty cents a day."

Barnabas grinned scornfully.

"I'll give 75 cents," he said.

Jacob glared at the monopolist. "A dollar!" he shouted.

"And a quarter," bid Barnabas.

"Dollar 'n a half!" groaned Jacob, his face working convulsively.

"Two dollars," raised Barnabas.

Jacob hesitated until he saw Henny turn to his rival and open his mouth.

"Two 'n a half!" he bellowed.

Barnabas was silent.

"It's your'n," observed Henny.

"Cash in advance!"

Jacob paid over a day's rental with reluctance, his eyes fixed on the proprietor of the local monopoly with a baleful glare. He even shook his fist.

"This'll come out of you, Barney Beagle!" he vowed. "You'll be made to pay!"

Barnabas smiled tolerantly, and Henny Richards doubled up with suppressed laughter. Presently the latter recovered enough to ask if Jacob desired horses and a driver.

"I kin rent 'em to you and drive myself."

"How much?"

"Two dollars a day for the hosses and a dollar a day for me."

Jacob recognized the price as reasonable and closed at once. His campaign against monopoly was costing $5.50 a day, and he was pledged to carry fares at half Barnabas' old rate. He hoped the opposition would be unable to hold out long against such competition.

The following morning the active campaign opened. Henny appeared at the depot platform on the seat of the band wagon just as Barnabas drove up on his bus. Barney's sign was still displayed. On the band wagon was a legend which begged all public spirited people to help break the monopoly and save money at the same time. Prices of 5 cents to the hotel and 15 cents elsewhere were offered. Barnabas serenely made demand for a quarter to the hotel and 50 cents beyond.

The train drew in, and a dozen people alighted. Two were traveling men with heavy grips, and with glad shouts, as of those who sight an old acquaintance, they hailed Barnabas. Mutely, but grinning, he pointed to his sign and to the band wagon.

They loudly demanded to be enlightened as to what they called "the joke," then threw their baggage on the roof and entered the bus.

Two other individuals chose the band wagon. Next came Higgins the grocer, returning from the city. He took in the situation at a glance and with very mouth climbed into Barnabas' conveyance. Four strangers took the band wagon, all passengers beyond the hotel. That was all.

That afternoon Jacob approached Grocer Higgins frowningly.

"What's the matter?" he demanded.
"Ain't you goin' to help bust the monopoly? Be you goin' to let a restraint of trade rob you?"

"When Barney Beagle is it I am," said Higgins. "His trade is worth more to me than savin' a quarter two or three times a year."

So matters went on for a couple of weeks, the reformers spending $5.50 for their conveyance each day and never taking in more than $3 in fares.
The dead loss of $16 or $18 a week, for no trains arrived on Sunday, was

"I GOT A CROWD OF VILLAGE COUNCIL-ORS HELPIN' ME OUT."

carving great chips off their enthusiasm. Barnabas' earnings were being cut into, of course.

Jacob alone of the councilmen was indomitable, and he inspired his colleagues to fight on for another week.

"He'll never hold out," Jacob reiterated. "He's got to come to terms.
He's got to! Then we kin fit an iron-clad agreement out of him, and his monopoly will be busted. We'll be able to control rates!"

But Barnabas did not surrender, and after the fourth week the village councillors had had enough. Seventy dollars wasted in four weeks! It was not to be heard of longer. Besides, the town lawyer told them that it might come out of their own pockets if any taxpayer protested, for the expenditure was beyond their authority. Learning of this, Barnabas promptly lodged a formal protest.

Forthwith the monopolist was summoned again to the council chamber.

"Be you willin' to sign a agreement to let this here council fix your rate of fare?" demanded Jacob.

"Now, Mr. Whittle," said Barnabas in a pained voice, "how could I do that? Maybe you'd have me carryin' folks for a cent a ride."

"You're a illegal monopoly!" shouted Jacob.

"Maybe so; maybe so. 'Tain't my fault. Nobody knew it till you found it out."

"You raised your prices."

Here Martin Goodhand made his presence felt.

"If we pull off our band wagon will you promise to come back to your old prices and stay there? You're losin' money every day."

Barnabas made no reply, and Martin kicked the table in disgust. His anger got the better of him.

"We'll show you, Barney Beagle!
You can't go playin' no tricks on us.
We'll fight this here thing to a finish if every cent has to come out of my own pocket. We'll bust you!"

"Just a minute," returned Barnabas soothingly. "Let's talk this over quiet.
See how long it's goin' to take to bust me and how much it'll cost you to do it. Let's jest see. Now, I guess I rec'lect right—you're payin' two-fifty a day for that old band wagon, eh?"

Martin nodded.

"And two a day for the hosses?"

Again a nod.

"Who be you payin' it to?"

"Henny Richards, of course."

"Um," grunted Barney. "Now let's look at me. I'm makin' a livin' off my bus. Even with the fallin' out in trade I been comin' within a dollar a day of what I made before. But—he paused and grinned amiably at Jacob—
"I got other resources."

Everybody sat erect and stared.

"What d'you mean?" demanded Martin.

"I got a crowd of village councilors helpin' me out," Barnabas explained, with a broad grin; "payin' me a matter of four-fifty a day, and two-fifty of that is clear profit."

"What?" roared Martin, seconded by Jacob Whittle.

"That gives me a dollar an' a half more profit than I was makin' before," Barnabas pointed out. "You see, Hen-ny Richards don't own that band wagon nor them hosses."

"What?" shouted the council.

"No," replied Barnabas happily. "I bought 'em from Henny just before Jacob turned up to borrow 'em."

"And then bid agin me to raise the hire!" yelled Jacob.

"You was wantin' competition," said Barnabas.

Martin Goodhand arose slowly.

"I guess we got it, all right—plenty of it! I reckon, Jacob, we better leave monopoly bustin' to them that's used to it. For me, I'm satisfied."

Barnabas walked to the door, recognizing surrender.

"Seem's competition's withdrew," he said, "my charges comes down to the old figger. That was good enough for me."

To Make Good Soap

Use This Lye
And Follow
Directions

FOR MAKING HARD SOAP Cold Process

Use three pints of water with contents of one can of Lye. Stir well. The Lye will dissolve immediately and become quite hot. Allow it to cool. Melt six pounds of clean grease, tallow or lard until lukewarm; then pour the cold Lye into the melted grease gradually until thoroughly mixed and will drop from spoon with the consistency of honey. Continue to stir for about 10 minutes. It is then ready to pour into any desired mold.

HERE is the Lye you need and here are directions that will help you make good soap. These directions are absolutely reliable—they have been thoroughly tested. There are many reasons why you should make your own soap and use

HUDSON HIGHEST TEST LYE

According to the above directions you can make your own soap at less than 2c a lb. Thus you save money. Soap made this way is purer because it does not contain fillers, like rosin, such as factories use. And your home made soap will contain all the glycerine from the fats you render —soap factories extract the glycerine because it commands big prices. Be sure you get Hudson Lye—do not accept substitutes which may be stale and worthless. Hudson Lye meets the Government demands for strength. Sold by all grocers and druggists—10c a big can.

Shipyard May Move.

It is among the possibilities that the Fore River Shipbuilding Corporation may seek a new location because of the big increase in assessed valuation in Quincy. The Herald prints the following dispatch from Philadelphia which will be of interest to Weymouth people:

Concerted efforts are being made by members of the Chamber of Commerce to have the Fore River Shipbuilding company, one of the largest construction companies of its kind in the United States, remove its yards and plants from Quincy, Mass., to the banks of the Delaware river.

Although no definite action has been taken by the Fore River company to the present date, the recent announcement that the company served notice on the authorities at Quincy that unless the taxes recently increased are lowered the company will move its plant from that city is considered favorable to the campaign being conducted by the chamber of commerce.

The vigor of the campaign being conducted by the chamber of commerce was explained today by F. W. Alexander, secretary of the industrial bureau. He said: "Months ago we canvassed the entire shipbuilding industry of the United States, asking them to come to this section of the country. We are directing special efforts toward the Fore River company."

"There is no reason why that company should not be on the Delaware river. Every facility for labor and for materials that goes into ship construction work is here, and there is no question that we have the land sites in 'Greater Philadelphia' and vicinity."

"Efforts have been made to interest the Fore River Company to come here for some time, and we are preparing to present our argument with renewed vigor since this disagreement has risen at Quincy."

"We are endeavoring to enlist the interest of Charles M. Schwab, who represents the controlling interest of the company, in our proposition. Conditions that would especially interest the Fore River Company prevail in this section."

John Buchanan of Quincy, publicity agent for the Fore River Shipbuilding Company, said last night that at the present time the company is not considering prospective plans for removal to Philadelphia or any other place. He further asserted he had no knowledge of the fact that Charles M. Schwab, holding a controlling interest in the company, had been approached by the Philadelphia Chamber of Commerce and urged to favor the removal.

Park Theatre, Boston.

A special feature double bill all next week at the Park Theatre, one of extraordinary merit. Alice Brady the winsome star of the screen will appear in person on Monday afternoon and evening at the Park Theatre while she is appearing at the same time in one of the successes of the day, "Bought and Paid For," in five acts. The screen version of the play far surpasses the spoken stage presentation as it affords a much larger production in every way. The popular little actress has been entrusted with a star part in this play and has built up a character which will not easily be forgotten by all those who see it.

Preparing for Summer.

"Why did you get such a tremendous refrigerator?"
"I wanted one that would hold a watermelon occasionally without putting everything else on the floor."

WEYMOUTH PEOPLE WILL DO WELL TO HEED THE WARNING

To have good health, the digestion, heart, lungs and kidneys must work perfectly. When there is anything wrong with the digestion, heart or lungs, a very noticeable pain or distress gives prompt warning. Kidney trouble is more easily overlooked, however, and too often gains a long start. But kidney trouble does give early signs, and backache, headaches, dizzy spells, rheumatic pains, too frequent scanty or painful urination should not be neglected. When these warnings appear, use Doan's Kidney Pills, the reliable, successful, strongly-recommended kidney remedy. Assist the medicine by taking things easier, reducing the use of liquors. A severe attack of kidney disease may be avoided. Doan's Kidney Pills have won the grateful praise of Weymouth people. Read this Weymouth resident's endorsement.

ADDED PRAISE

Over Three Years Later Mr. Binney said: "My faith in Doan's Kidney Pills is just the same as it was after I first used them. I still get the same good results whenever I have occasion to take a box or so of Doan's Kidney Pills and recommend them as highly as in the past."

Price 50c, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mr. Binney has twice publicly recommended. Foster-Milburn Co., Props, Buffalo, N. Y.

POULTRY

FOR SUCCESS WITH PIGEONS

Variety of Good, Hard Grains is Essential—Not Advisable to Feed Birds on Wet Ground.

A variety of good, hard grains is essential to success with pigeons, and grains which are in poor condition should not be fed. Old grains which are hard are better than new soft grains, especially for pigeons with squabs. Red wheat is considered better than white wheat by many pigeon breeders. Good wheat screenings are often fed with success, as they usually contain a variety of seeds. Various stimulating seeds, such as lentils and vetch, are sometimes fed as a tonic to breeding birds during the molting period.

The grain may be fed on the floor of the pen, in troughs, or kept before the birds in hoppers. It is not generally considered advisable to feed the grain on the ground, especially on heavy soil where it may get wet and moldy. Unless the floor is kept clean it is better to feed the grain in troughs than on the floor. The troughs should be made so that the pigeons will not roost on them and soil the feed with their droppings.

Hoppers are used with good success but may attract rats in some pigeon houses. They should be fitted with wires or nails about two inches apart so that the pigeons cannot waste the feed by throwing it out onto the floor. If the grain is not fed in hoppers the pigeons should be fed twice daily, in the morning and in the afternoon, at regular hours, giving from one and one-half to two quarts of grain at each meal to 20 pairs of pigeons and adding an extra pint if the pigeons have many squabs. The feeder must regulate the quantity of grain according to the appetite of the birds, giving them all they will clean up in one to two hours.

KEEP VALUABLE MALE FOWLS

Confine Roosters in Separate Pens and Market Infertile Eggs—Sell All But Breeders.

(By T. E. QUISENBERRY.)

No one asks or expects a farmer or poultry raiser to kill or sell valuable breeding males. You might not be able to find what you want to take their places the following season. The males would be better off, however, and so would the females and would make better breeders the following season, if the males were confined to separate quarters and kept with but few, if any, hens.

Keep the males from the laying hens and market infertile eggs. Unless you are certain you will need the males another season, it is best to sell them and to give the room to the young stock. The feed the old males will eat and which you would save would almost pay for new males, thus giving you new blood and, perhaps, better males. Consider all these facts before acting.

OLD HENS ARE UNPROFITABLE

Aged Fowls Cause Low Average in Egg Production—Three Years is Limit of Usefulness.

Old hens are the cause of low averages in egg-production. The pullets work regularly but the old hens lay about a dozen eggs and rest the remainder of the year.

Unless you are raising a particular stock of chickens of which you have only a few hens, you cannot afford to keep the old hens as layers. A hen is not profitable after her third summer as a layer. Selling the old hens and using the incubator for hatching is the best plan for the small poultryman.

HINTS FOR POULTRY RAISERS

Keep Overactive Cockerels in Separate Yard—Soft Fresh Dirt is Good for Chicks.

Sour milks is valuable in any ration. Summer shade insures thrifty chicks.

Remove overactive cockerels to a separate yard.

Clean up the incubator, remove the lamp, and throw away the wick.

Soft fresh dirt is an insurance against leg weakness in chicks.

FRIDAY, NOV. 10, 1916

Not until last night was it known with any certainty the verdict of the Presidential election. But California was then placed in the Democratic column, and Wilson is re-elected by 276 electoral votes to 255 for Hughes.
Necessary for a choice 266.

And Weymouth High won again too, defeating Arlington High at Arlington 28 to 0.

Few towns got out a larger percentage of the voters on Tuesday than did Weymouth, over 90 percent.
But in one of the East Weymouth precincts there were at least three voters who did not put a single cross on their ballots. Another voted for two groups of Presidential electors.
Doubtless many made mistakes as the number of blanks was too large.

How does the South Weymouth school lot question stand now? It should not be difficult to get a good lot at the right price.

Now that New Year's Day has become a legal holiday, we wonder if it will be observed as such. It falls on Monday.

Again Weymouth will have a senator in the Legislature.

Not much doubt locally about the election. A decisive election is always more satisfactory.

Weymouth Board of Trade.

In the absence of President Wright, at the November meeting of the Board of Trade on Wednesday evening, Vice President Louis A. Cook presided.

The subject for discussion was the standardization of traffic rules, as they relate to automobiles and street cars.
Chief of Police Pratt was a special guest, and told of conditions as they exist in Weymouth today especially at such points as Washington square, Lincoln square, Jackson square, Columbian square and other centers.

Among other speakers were M. Sheehy
M. E. Hawes and Sidney Cook.

At the December meeting the board will probably be addressed on the new income tax, and bank facilities of Weymouth.

Student Night.

For the great "Student Night at the Sunday tabernacle in Boston, Friday, Nov. 17, when Mr. Sunday will give his notable address, "Forces that Win," tickets can be obtained free by Weymouth students, including those boys and girls in the high school, by applying directly by mail or telephone, or through local pastors or students' committees to Rev. Henry C. Alvord, South Weymouth, or Rev.
Edward T. Ford, East Weymouth, by Saturday morning of this week, tickets being received next week.

Monday Club.

The regular meeting of the Monday Club was held in Masonic hall, East Weymouth, with the president, Mrs. Worster, presiding.

The Treasurer reported a balance of $520 in the treasury, and read the names of forty three new members who have joined the club this year.

Mrs. Arthur W. Burr read a report of the state federation meeting at Franklin
Oct. 30.

Rev. Abraham M. Ribbaud gave an interesting talk on "The foreigner in America," and Miss Madeline Gale sang a charming group of songs.

Promoting Disturbance.

"Of course, you want peace?" "No,
I don't. And just to prove it I told my wife to go ahead and buy a phonograph, a poll parrot and a cuckoo clock."

sticking to the job is because the route is too long—covers too much area. When put on the route, to insure the prompt de-

A Distinctive Reason

What is the chief reason for the superiority of Royal Baking Powder?

There are several good reasons, but there is one which distinguishes Royal from other baking powders.

This reason, which every woman should know, is that Royal Baking Powder is made from cream of tartar, which comes from grapes. This means a healthful fruit origin.
It means natural food as distinguished from mineral substitutes used in other baking powders.

There is no alum nor phosphate in Royal Baking Powder.

TOWN MEETING.

Vote Passed Unanimously for Another Steam Road Roller.

The adjourned town meeting of Monday evening was not attended by many more voters than a week previous, but no one desired to retard progress, and therefore the question of a quorum was not raised.
George L. Barnes was moderator.

Under Article 5 it was voted on recommendation of the Appropriation committee to appropriate $600 for deficiency in Board of Health department.

Under Article 3, $1000 additional was voted for deficiency for removal of snow to be transferred from reserve fund.

Under Article 4, calling for $1,500 for deficiency in Highway department, it was recommended that no action be taken, and it was so voted.

Article 2, called for $4200 for purchase of a Buffalo Pitts maintenance road roller.

The committee recommended to purchase, that the town pay $1000 cash to be taken from any sum in the treasury; and that a note for $3200 due April 1, 1917 be given for the balance.

A voter enquired as to the needs of such a roller. Chairman E. W. Hunt of the Board of Selectmen explained at length, and was followed by Selectman Bradford Hawes and Selectman Henry E.
Haley. Someone wanted Supt. Johnson to give his views, but the motion of the committee was put to vote and adopted unanimously. There were 117 votes in the affirmative.

The committee recommended that no action be taken under Article 6, to pay second premium on bond of the Tax Collector.

Tax Collector Tirrell said that previous to 1914 when a small bond was required that he had always paid the bill, but now it was regarded as a bill against the town, and he thought the town should pay.

Voted against acceptance of report of committee.

But Mr. Tirrell neglected to follow up his vantage, and the meeting was dissolved without taking any action.

Attorney General's office the revised by-laws of the town of Weymouth.

A. Delorey that street drainage entered upon and damaged his land. Referred to superintendent of streets for investigation and report.

Joseph H. Sherman was granted a permit to dig clams.
Complaint was received from G. T.
Merrill, who objects to street railways having locations on the side of streets.

ies received while riding in an automobile on Broad street, near Central square, be-and will be given a hearing Nov. 20.

MEETINGS First Monday of Each Month.

"THAT'S DIFFERENT."Men's Class Receive Returns and Hear Several Speakers

Sixty-six men responded by accepting the invitation to the supper given by the Men's Class of the First Congregational Church, South Weymouth, Tuesday night. Fifty-eight of these sat down at the table anxiously and daintily provided with good things to eat; eight other men, dressed in white duck, served, at the tables, which were so arranged that all the men faced each other. The early election returns were received by wire from Boston, and placed on the board in view of all.

After the tables were cleared the speakers for the evening were successively introduced by Rev. Mr. Price, pastor of the church, and teacher of the class, who acted as toastmaster. Frank E. Vaughn, a business man of Everett, Supt. of the Sunday School of the First Congregational Church, spoke of his interest in men's work and of what the Marshall class has been doing in Everett. Allen Emery, a wool merchant of Boston and chairman of the Sunday campaign committee, spoke on "Winning the Race." Mr. Emery spoke of how men as never before were finding religious work a man's job; how the big things in religion are taking hold of men's hearts, and men are finding themselves in it. Mr. Emery has big brains for business. He also believes in putting big brains into religion. His address was a straight talk from the heart on religious living and the need of men today to live straight clean lives and put their service in something that counts for making life.

Rev. John Mason, pastor of the M. E. church of Malden spoke and answered questions for an hour. The story of how he built a class of 100 in a month, and in six months enlisted 170 men in organized men's work, was a wonderful story of that men can do when they really have religion at heart and mean business in helping men to live. Even an hour was so short for Mr. Mason to tell all he had to say. His men have set a goal of 500 to be reached by the first of the year 1917, and they expect to reach it.

The Men's Class of Union Church believe that what has been done in other places can be done in South Weymouth. The class was started four Sundays ago. Mr. Price called three men from the audience that morning. These men got to work, outlined plans and started a class. The following Sunday there were nine. Twenty-two men are now enrolled. They believe that an organized class of 100 men can do more for any community and for men themselves than any other thing that can be done. All over the country the ablest men of all classes and creeds are determining to make religion count for something real in their lives, their homes, their churches and their communities. "The Men's Class That's Different" was started for that purpose. They have set out to gain 100 men. The class meets every Sunday at noon in the gymnasium. Later they plan to widen the interest and scope of their work to include recreation, athletics, missionary and social service, all backed with the sacred passion to be of use in "helping men to live."

We believe every man ought to be in some church and men's organized work.

We believe men ought to fill the churches with their manly, virile, positive passionate desire for real fellowship and emphasis on the essentials of religion. Then will men get together, the churches love each other and Christ be exalted and the kingdom come among us. So we have made it a rule to urge men to get into some men's class work, speak the spirit of fellowship and love to all. We extend to every unchurched man a cordial welcome to come with us if he is not going other places. A hearty handshake and a broad smile will greet him. We want love to triumph and fellowship to rule. Each heart that speaks love to the world makes love the stronger in other hearts. The way to bind the world together and to bind communities together is to bind them by the cords of love. Love spoken and love that make love live.

Much Wasted Money.

The economic importance of paleontology has been repeatedly shown in this country. In the earlier exploitation of anthracite coal thousands of dollars were fruitlessly expended in New York in search of coal beds until the New York geologists showed that the beds in that state could contain no coal. The fossils in the New York rocks exploited are of Devonian age, whereas the fossils of the Pennsylvanian anthracite coal beds belong to the Carboniferous, a much later period. This discovery at once stopped a useless expenditure of money.

ELECTRICITY FOR HEATING

October Price, $4.75

In the fall of the year when you want heat, you want it quickly. It does not pay to wait till the furnace gets heated up, because by that time you do not need it and then it is too hot and up go the windows. The remedy is the use of ELECTRICITY for heating.

Heat comes at once, continues as long as needed, and ceases when you push the button or turn the key at the lamp socket.

Don't put off your purchase until the cold snap comes, but buy an electric radiator and be prepared.

EVENING PETTICOAT

TO BE MADE OF SOFT TAFFETA AND CREPE DE CHINE.

Width of Garment Depends Upon Gown With Which It Is to Be Worn—Wide Variety of Colors and Materials.

The sketch illustrates a very dainty "evening" petticoat, employing soft taffeta in one of the pastel shades for its upper section, the lower part being of crepe de chine in blending or contrasting shade. Each of the pointed tabs of chiffon is ruffled in silk, the same finish being applied to the edge of the skirt.

If desired pompadour flowered silk may be used with plain color chiffon, and the effect will be very pleasing.

Manufacturers of petticoats, as well as the retail shops, state that experience has convinced them of the folly of trying to sell plain, "sensible" undergarments, and this is especially true of petticoats. Women buy the showy kind most freely.

In evening petticoats especially it is impossible to give an ironclad ruling as to correct width. If a flaring frock is worn it must be held out by equally flaring petticoats; and if a dress cut on straight lines is worn, then obviously a narrower skirt will be required, which literally means that ev-

Evening Petticoat of Silk and Chiffon.

To make the petticoat sketched, two and a half yards of silk 36 inches wide will be required for upper section and ruffings, with approximately three yards of chiffon or other sheer fabric for flounce.

In utility petticoats of taffeta and satin developed for the coming season, purple is quoted as a favorite color. However, a range of bright shades is popular, including rose, gold, Copenhagen blue, wistaria, Belgian blue and several shades of green.

Petticoats, like separate blouses, are developed in shades to match the suits, and womankind may select a petticoat to tone exactly with the street tailleur with which she intends to wear it, or she may go to the other extreme and select one that contrasts as vividly as possible, and in either case be satisfied that style approves her choice.

Shot silks and some pretty brocades have been pressed into service for the development of petticoats.

TOOK INK STAIN FROM RUG

Prompt Use of Salt Left Costly Floor Covering Immaculate as Before the Accident.

While stopping at a new and expensively furnished hotel a guest spilled a bottle of ink on a costly velvet rug, light blue and pink in color. A friend who was calling on her at the time quieted her fears by assuring her that she would "fix it so that not the slightest stain would be left."

First she had a quart of fine table salt sent up at once. Sifting the salt through her fingers she covered the ink spot entirely. To all appearance there was nothing but a pile of fine table salt on the rug.

Over this she placed a heavy chair, cautioning the guest not to disturb it nor to allow the maid to do so. After promising to return the next afternoon to finish the job she went cheerfully about her own affairs.

True to her word, she made her appearance the following afternoon, and calling for a dustpan and whiskbroom removed the salt. There was not the slightest stain of ink on the rug. The salt having been carefully sifted on the spot had slipped into the pile and absorbed all the ink. Of course, the salt, except a thin layer on the outside of the pile, was as black as ink could make it.

This method of preventing ink stains is as effective as it is simple. The secret of success lies in acting promptly, having fine salt, sifting it on the spot so slowly and gently that it slips into the goods, and allowing it to remain undisturbed until it is bone dry. Then it may be safely removed with a whiskbroom and dustpan.

DEBUTANTE'S DANCING FROCK

This is one of the latest frocks to pass the critical eye of Dame Fashion. The skirt of this costume is a combination of tiny ruffles of sage green chiffon edged with narrow velvet ribbon. The puffed side-drapery is of the same shade, being of green tulle and with a wide band of gold lace. The bodice is of gold cloth, a wide berth of heavy corn lace. The three rows of black velvet add the finishing touches.

MANY USES FOR A MARK

Monograms for Household and Table Linen and for Note Paper in Favor Again.

The monogram, which for several seasons was more or less out of favor, is in again. Separate letters formed into initials in round, diamond or square panels are also used. Single initials are used, too. Then there are ciphers, cryptic combinations of initials or other arrangement of initials or the letters of the name in odd and hidden fashion.

Marks of all these sorts can be used on household and table linen; on note paper they are engraved. Sometimes a book plate is no more than a cipher, and anything of this nature, because it is so personal, is sure to be effective.

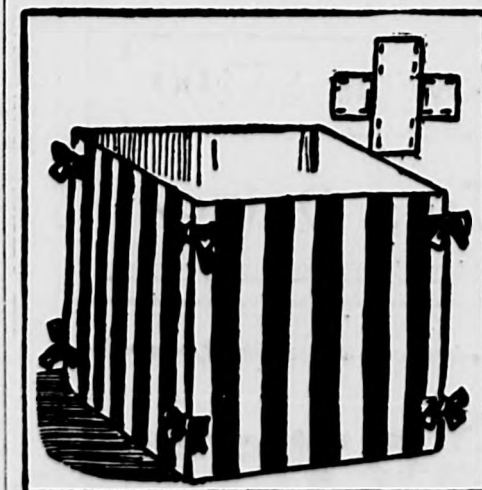

Some women make a point of having their marks on everything alike. This, of course, is so when a crest is used. But the same idea can be carried out with any other sort of symbol.

When it comes to ready-made marks there are many kinds. There are names woven in tape and initials, for linens, and there are paper and cloth initials over which one can embroider. There are printed book plates to paste into books, and there are dies for sealing wax and ready-stamped initialed paper.

This is a quickly made and very cheap receptacle for waste paper. First decide on the size you wish to make it, then cut two oblong pieces of cardboard that will divide into three squares the height and width you wish the basket to be; cover one side with plain saten or paper and the other with black and white stripe; either paste or seam the edges; place one piece over the other evenly to form a cross as shown in small diagram; stitch edges where they cross to form a firm foundation; make two holes in each side as shown by the short lines; bend the sides up, letting each form an even edge to the square bottom when folded, then join the edges of sides together by passing ribbon through the holes and tying in bows.

For Rugs.

To clean rugs and carpets use the following compound: Make a suds with a good white soap and hot water and add fuller's earth to this until it is of a consistency of cream. Have plenty of clean drying cloths, a small scrubbing brush, a large sponge and a pail of fresh water. Put some of the cleaning mixture in a large bowl and dip the brush in it. Brush a small piece of the rug with this, then wash with the sponge and cold water. Dry as much as possible with the sponge, and finally rub with dry cloths. Continue this until certain all the rug is cleaned, and then let dry.

Golden Wedding.

Mr. and Mrs. William H. Moran, 58 Center street, observed their golden wedding anniversary Saturday, Nov. 4. They were married at the parish church by the Rev. James Hannigan fifty years ago.

Mr. and Mrs. Moran were tendered a surprise by their neighbors, who presented them with a bouquet of yellow chrysanthemums and a purse of gold. Mrs. Keene, in behalf of Reynolds Relief Corps presented a bouquet of yellow chrysanthemums; and Mrs. Farrington with the best wishes of the Daughters of Veterans, of which order Mr. and Mrs. Moran's two daughters are past presidents, presented them a bouquet of fifty carnations, and they received numerous other gifts.

Mr. Moran was born on East street, this town, June 8, 1840, in the house now known as the Weymouth hospital being one of six children of John and Theresa (Keough) Moran. In June, 1863, Mr. Moran enlisted in Co. E, Third Massachusetts Heavy Artillery, serving until the close of the Civil War. Mr. Moran met Lincoln at one of his Wednesday receptions, and was on guard duty in Washington at the time of his assassination. Mr. Moran has been a member of Post 58, G. A. R., since April 27, 1869, and has served as officer of the guard for 25 years.

Mrs. Moran was the oldest of seven children of Edmund and Mary (Meade) Tobin. She was born in County Limerick, Ireland, Dec. 25, 1843, but came to this town at the age of seven years, and has resided here from that time. For more than twenty years she has been an active member of Reynolds Relief Corps, No. 102.

Mr. and Mrs. Moran are the parents of six children three of whom are living, Mary Elizabeth, wife of James Brassil, J. Henry Moran and Miss Gertrude L. Moran, all of East Weymouth. They have two granddaughters, Miss Clara M. Wilder, a school teacher at Mendon, and Miss Clara E. Brassil a senior at Weymouth High School.

FATALITY IN A WORD.

Why France Changed the Name of the "Life Saving Belt."

A vivid illustration of the power of mere words over human beings was once brought to the attention of French people by Francisque Sarcey.

After the wreck of the Bourgogne many passengers were found floating drowned with life preservers on. These life preservers were fastened upon the bodies, but round the middle instead of under the arms, and the greater weight of the upper part of the body had tipped the head under water and the person of course was inevitably drowned.

Now it appears that the greater number of the persons so drowned were French. The French term for life preserver is ceinture de sauvetage, or "life saving belt." This word ceinture suggests to the mind its moments of disorder and unreadiness, such as a great catastrophe brings, the idea of putting on a belt, and as a belt is put round the waist and nowhere else the frightened person instinctively adjusts the life preserver close about the hips. The result is that as soon as the person so provided falls into the water his body tips over, with the heavier part downward, and the head is plunged beneath the surface.

The word "belt," therefore, was the cause of the loss of many lives in the Bourgogne disaster. Sarcey accordingly proposed to counteract the fatal effect of the French word by renaming the article and calling it a brassiere, which is a kind of waist, and by bringing the word bras, or arm, to mind to teach people to put a life preserver on just underneath the arms.

ANCIENT POSTAL SERVICE.

The Old Persian and Roman System of Couriers on Horseback.

While the Roman postal service of ancient days was, of course, a crude system, yet the mails were forwarded with considerable speed. The system of couriers on horseback was borrowed from the Persians, who, according to Xenophon, had established it under Cyrus. The Roman adaptation of this was the best system of transmitting letters among the ancients.

All along the great Roman roads stations were erected at distances of five or six miles from one another. At each of these stations forty horses were constantly maintained, and by the help of relays it was easy to travel 100 miles in a day.

These services were intended for the state only, it being imperative to secure the rapid interchange of official communications. In the time of Julius Caesar the system was so well organized that of two letters the great soldier wrote from Britain to Cicero at Rome the one reached its destination in twenty-six and the other in twenty-eight days.

Private citizens were obliged to resort to the services of slaves, and it was not until the end of the third century that there was an establishment of a postal system for private persons by the Emperor Diocletian, but how long this system endured history does not inform us.

The supply of horses and their maintenance was compulsory, and only the emperor could grant exemption from it.—Washington Star.

Weakness of the Great.

The two greatest men who appear in "Julius Caesar"—namely, Caesar himself and Cicero—are allotted but minor parts in Shakespeare's play, and to each with daring originality the dramatist has attributed a physical defect, for the existence of which history supplied him with no evidence. Caesar, for instance, confesses to deafness. bidding Antony—

"Come on my right hand, for this ear is deaf," while Brutus speaks of Cicero's "ferret and fiery eyes," as if no one could fail to note them. Respect for those two immortals was no doubt thus diminished, but by showing them as not above human weaknesses Shakespeare made them more easily realized. —London Opinion.

Smiling at Breakfast.

One should always wear a smile at breakfast. If you are in a good humor at breakfast you will be merry and bright all day. The breakfast face is the most important face to cultivate. The other faces take care of themselves, for if the face is pleasant and easy to look upon in the morning it will improve as the day goes on. But if the breakfast face is hard, scowling and forbidding it becomes set in its disagreeable form, and it takes hours for it to smooth out into a smile, and that smile is of the sickly, half-hearted nature that only expands the heart slightly. It is worth trying.

Not Good For the Gender.

The following sign is displayed in a certain bathhouse:

"This Place Is Closed at 1 p. m. Sunday So We Can Go Home and Take Our Baths."

Which is very similar to the note a traveling man found on the door of a luncheon in a small town:

"Gone Home to Dinner."—Indianapolis News.

The Largest Painting.

"Paradise," by Tintoretto, is the largest painting in the world. It is eighty-four feet wide and thirty-three and a half feet high. It is now in the Doge's palace, Venice.

Sure to Grow.

"What you said about Jack isn't worth repeating."
"It's young yet, give it time."—Exchange.

The future is purchased by the present.—Johnson.

Weymouth, 57; Belmont, 0.

Weymouth High extended her excellent record by defeating Belmont at the Clapp field, Saturday afternoon 57-0.

Captain Curtin by his excellent judgment outgassed his opponents on every play, using the forward pass for great gains. Mauro as usual, pulled a number of spectacular runs. In the second period Mauro took the ball on the kickoff and carried it to the Belmont 10 yd. line, a distance of 60 yds. Richardson had a big day getting four out of nine touchdowns, Captain Curtin and Garafalo getting two a piece.

In the line, Sprague at center was as staunch as the Rock of Gibraltar, he received the best of support from his mates McIntosh, Mahoney, Palmer and Haviland.

Loomer, Belmont's quarterback played a whirlwind game. The game was so late in starting, that the last period was played by moonlight.

CEMETERY FAIR NETS $250

Farce of "Tommy's Wife" is Presented

"Tommy's Wife", a farce in three acts, was the great drawing card at the annual fair of the Ladies' Cemetery Improvement Association on Friday evening, Nov. 10, given under the direction of Mrs. Harold South. All the parts were by well known local amateurs, and the actors did very well.

In the cast were: Thomas Pittman Carothers, a promising young portrait painter, as yet unknown to fame, Harold Brackett Rose Carothers, his sister Evelyn Floyd Dick Grannis, Carother's chum, in love with Rose, Edward Sweet, Patty Campbell, a student at the Broadway Dramatic School, Helen Hunt Mrs. De Yorburch Smith, a wealthy society woman, Margaret South Sylvia, her daughter, young and impressive, Ruth Stewart, Pierre De Bouton, a French fencing master, C. Irving Bates, Edith Bronson, a friend of Rose, interested in charities, Florence Adams. There was also music by an orchestra. Bates Opera House was prettily decorated for the occasion under the direction of Mrs. Harriet B. Bachelder.

Tables for the sale of useful and fancy articles, cake, candy, etc., were about the hall, the chairmen being:

Fancy, Mrs. W. E. Pray.
Domestic, Mrs. Wm. D. Altken.
Cake, Mrs. H. F. South.
Candy and Flowers, Miss Dora Cate.
Children's, Mrs. Edwin Senior.
Box, Mrs. C. O. Miller.
Vegetable, Mr. Clifton Harlow.

Miss Helen Lund was chairman of fair committee; Mrs. Francis B. Peyton the treasurer, and Mrs. Percy B. Cook, the secretary.

Refunds were made at a meeting of the committee on Wednesday and showed the net proceeds to be about $250.

Hunter-Cooke.

Miss Margaret M. Cooke of 79 Lake street East Weymouth and Ralph E. Hunter, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hunter of Hull street, North Cohasset, were married in the Church of the Immaculate Conception Wednesday afternoon at 3 o'clock by Rev. C. I. Riordan.

Henry Butler of Nantasket was best man and Miss Anna McCloskey of East Weymouth, a cousin of the bride, was maid of honor. The ushers were William Prott and Thomas Cooke.

The bride was beautifully gowned in white tulle trimmed with silver lace and wore a veil caught up with orange blossoms. She carried a bouquet of white bridal roses. The maid of honor was dressed in pink silk, trimmed with duchess lace, and wore a black velvet hat. She carried a bouquet of pink roses.

Following the ceremonies, a reception was held at the home of the bride from 6 to 9 o'clock, where guests from East Bridgewater, Nantasket, Cohasset and the Weymouths gathered with a multitude of good cheer. Potted plants and chrysanthemums were the decorations about the house, and the later flowers were also in the church.

The young couple were assisted in receiving by Miss Mary Cooke, an aunt of the bride, and Mr. and Mrs. Hunter, the groom's parents.

At the conclusion of their bridal trip to New York, Mr. and Mrs. Hunter will reside on Hull street, North Cohasset.

Football League.

The long string of victories by Weymouth High is evidently making some teams sore on Weymouth, but charges of rough play are hardly warranted. The Quincy Patriot says:

"Football division of the South Shore league may not be re-organized next year unless at least one change is made according to reports circulated throughout this city."

"Accusation of unsportsmanship tactics by Weymouth champions of this year's league are being hurled right and left and players say there are some grounds for the charges."

"Coach Roberts of Brockton is understood to have shelved all his desires to pit his men against Weymouth again and coach Mansur of Quincy is said to be entertaining similar thoughts. It would not be surprising if both teams declined to join the league next year should Weymouth continue as a member."

"The rumor started Friday when the players of Brockton and Quincy got to talking over the season at the close of their game. Several of them felt that fans would say they were sore with Weymouth because their team had won the title, but they strenuously denied any such feeling. They said that Weymouth is entitled to all the credit that is coming to it but that the fact still remains they could have done fully as well if roughhouse playing had not been encouraged."

LADIES' CIRCLE ANNUAL FAIR

Two Days' Event of the Pilgrim Church

The Ladies Circle connected with the Pilgrim church held its annual fair on Tuesday and Wednesday afternoons and evenings.

The fancy work table was in charge of Mrs. Henry Farrington and Mrs. A. J. Hildinger. Mrs. Rufus Clark and Mrs. Emory Cushing sold aprons. The food table was attended by Mrs. George Beane and Mrs. Manuel Page. Candy table was in charge of Mrs. Arthur Alden and Mrs. Henry Dyer. The ice-cream was in the care of Mrs. Edward Marshall; the 5 and 10 cent table, Mrs. Higgins; and the Christmas novelties, Mrs. Gardner Alden.

Supper was served on Tuesday evening by Mrs. Libby, Mrs. Collyer, Mrs. Cushing and Mrs. Basteby.

The entertainment for both evenings was arranged by Mrs. Henry Farrington, Mrs. William Tyler and Mrs. Gardner Alden. The entertainment for Tuesday evening was furnished by the Bohemian Trio in costume and consisted of violin solos by Samuel Crocker, soprano solos by Annette Dahlke, contralto solos by Marie De Greux, readings by Miss Doris Goodspeed. It was a fine program and worthy of a much larger audience.

The two-act comedy on Wednesday evening drew a larger attendance. Sixteen of the young people of the church presented the drama and all took their parts extremely well. The ever popular High School orchestra furnished music during the evening. The vestry was prettily decorated with flags.

The articles for sale were in demand and it is hoped that the ladies who worked hard for the success of the fair will be pleased with a good sum to add to the treasury.

The seniors of the Sharon high school will present the drama, "Old Folks" Dec. 8.

AUTOMOBILE TURNS TURTLE

Two South Weymouth Men Have Narrow Escape

Charles Simpson of 698 Main street and Fred Jones owe their lives to an inundation in the road at Fountain square, near the Abington line, when the large touring car in which they were riding turned turtle Monday evening, and threw the two men into a ditch, just deep enough to protect them from being crushed by the heavy machine.

The car, the property of Alonzo Newbert of Fogg road, was being tested by the two men. It skidded, ploughed the road for 40 feet, and then turned over, hurling them into the ditch.

Dr. Mayberry found that Simpson's left foot was cut and that he was considerably bruised. Jones was removed to the home of Charles P. Borlenghi. He sustained an abrasion of the forehead; his chest was injured and he was badly bruised. Several stitches were necessary.

W. R. C. Inspection.

The annual inspection of Reynolds Woman's Relief Corps was held in Grand Army hall Tuesday afternoon, with Mrs. Fannie E. Wheeler of Brighton, P. D. I., as the inspecting officer. The officers and members of the corps gave a full amplification of the work. Mrs. Hattie Tuttle of Dorchester, P. D. F. C., was guest.

In the evening there was a social and entertainment, also a banquet, presided by Mrs. Sarah A. White, Mrs. Howard Pratt, Mrs. George Lord, Mrs. Elizabeth Berry, Mrs. James Donnan, Mrs. Mary Boyle, Mrs. Joseph Lovell, Mrs. Thomas Abrams, Miss Sarah McCue and Abraham Horsey. Miss Marjorie violinist, and Miss Clara Sterling, provided musical numbers. A guessing contest was won by Carrie Loring, P. P.

Corps members are invited to Quincy, Saturday evening, Nov. 18, to attend the S. of V. fair. Your badge will admit you.

Our next meeting of the corps will be held Nov. 23, at 7.30 p. m.

Donations will be gratefully received by the committee for the sale of Dec. 6.

TOWN BUSINESS.

Selectmen Would Investigate High Cost of Living.

The Selectmen, at their regular meeting Monday, voted to cooperate with other towns and cities in promoting a statewide movement to memorialize the incoming session of Congress for prompt action in inquiring into the cause of the present excessive and burdensome cost of living, including the price of coal, flour, potatoes and whether a smaller production, inadequate means of transportation or speculation shall be charged with the responsibility for present conditions.

The Selectman and H. Wilbur Dyer of the South Weymouth laundry have come to an agreement relative to relocating a drain through land of the latter, to care for the surface water of Main street, Columbian street and Adams place. An easement has been drawn up for signatures.

In granting the Bay State street railway a relocation on Front street, Columbian street, Pond street and Pleasant street, the Selectmen put in a provision that the work should be completed before March 1, 1917.

An entertainment permit was granted to Wilkey lodge, I. O. O. F., to expire May 1, 1917.

King's Daughters.

Weymouth now has two vice presidents on the board of trustees of the Pond Home at Plainville, the Norfolk county home of the King's Daughters and Sons. The election of officers Monday resulted in the following choice: Miss Eleanor E. Fales of Wrentham, president; Mrs. J. Cushing of East Weymouth, first vice president; Mrs. E. A. Robert of Brookline, second vice president; Mrs. C. J. Lane of Norwood, third vice president; Mrs. E. S. Lovell of East Weymouth, fourth vice president; Mrs. Thomas Fenwick of Wollaston, treasurer; Miss M. E. Foxboro, clerk.

Teachers' Association.

A meeting of the Weymouth Teachers' Association was held at the Jefferson School, East Weymouth, on Wednesday, Nov. 8. A comprehensive report of the fall meeting of the federation, at Riverbank court, Cambridge, was given by Miss Annie A. Fraber. At the December meeting the Association will be entertained by the teachers of the High school.

FORE RIVER DEVELOPMENT

Weymouth Interested in Job of New Commission

The Weymouth Fore River is one of the important keys to the harbor of Boston and industrial and commercial development of Massachusetts and New England, Chairman John N. Cole of the new Waterways Commission told the Quincy Board of Trade on Tuesday evening.

He added: "In recognition of that position your citizens must have the broad view so frequently and fully expressed by one of your most far visioned men, (Frank Fessenden Crane), whose recent death was such a loss to the best sort of commercial development of this section of the State."

"There must be no narrow sectional thought in control of either the city in its own administration, or of its citizens, in their co-operation with every force that is available for the big job itself."

"That big job involves much more than making your waterfront available for vessels important as that is; involves much more than transportation facilities that shall give southeastern Massachusetts access to all northern New England important as that is; involves much more than waterways to connect the great ocean itself by properly constructed canals with those sections of the interior of the State where nature's path is already inviting man's interest."

"Above and beyond any or all of these interests is the great big interest of New England and the nation itself, which will serve a particular section like Quincy and Weymouth only as it serves the entire larger community. The co-operation that your community can give in solving the particular problem in which our Commission is at the present time interested within your ports, is important and needed, but much greater is the need for the kind of co-operation that will lead you to let your development be considered as a part of the one big problem with which public service in Massachusetts is concerned at the present time, and let it be developed not to the advantage of any particular community but rather with the sole thought in mind of greater prosperity for New England as a whole."

"For me to set forth at this time in any detail development that ought to take place in connection with the proposed taking of land at Hayward's creek would be not only very unwise but would be most difficult, inasmuch as the determination of that matter is entirely in the hands of the Commission as a whole and not any single member of it."

"If it is true that the relation between the north and south sides of the city of Boston is such that at the present time it takes longer for a shipment to go from Quincy to Lynn than it does from East Boston to Chicago, whether the shipments are little or big, there is a loss represented that must be eliminated for the advantage of both Lynn and Quincy."

"If it is true that the entire system of handling freight in Boston is behind the times and does not provide a development of our great business center, which Boston is, so that it is holding its own with any other port of the country, it is time to forget the past and get together and correct the evils."

—Mr. and Mrs. John H. Stoddard of Hingham observed their golden wedding last Saturday. Both are well known in Grand Army and Odd Fellows organizations.

LATEST!

WILL BUILD DESTROYERS

Big Contracts for Fore River Shipyard

A Washington dispatch of yesterday says:

Indications tonight were that the battleships included in the program would be built two by the New York Shipbuilding and Drydock Company and two by the New York Shipbuilding Company, their bids having been found most acceptable by the board which reviewed them.

The board is understood to have recommended the awarding of contract for eight destroyers to the Fore River Shipbuilding Company, Quincy, Mass.; six to the Union Iron Works, San Francisco, and two to William Cramp & Sons, Philadelphia. There are many points in the modifications proposed still to be worked out, however, and awards may be delayed even if the board's recommendations are followed.

Frederick B. Dwyer, Dead.

Frederick B. Dwyer one of the best known citizens of this town died at his home on Kensington road Wednesday afternoon after an illness of but two days. He had for several years conducted a waiting room at Lincoln square. He was about as usual up to Monday forenoon when he complained of a severe cold, and went to his home. His death was a great shock to his friends, many of whom did not know of his illness until informed of his death. He was of a genial disposition and it won him a host of friends, and was always the first to offer assistance in time of trouble.

He was born in this town 51 years ago, and was a son of ex-Representative and Mrs. John F. Dwyer. He leaves besides his parents, his widow who before her marriage was Miss Sadie Warnsley, two daughters and several brothers and sisters. He was a member of the Weymouth council, Knights of Columbus; Division No. 6, A. O. H.; Combination 3 of the Weymouth Fire department, and the Weymouth Firemen's Relief association.

The funeral will be held Saturday morning from the church of the Sacred Heart at 10 o'clock.

Johnson - Cronin.

Miss Mary Cronin of Hingham and William Johnson of East Weymouth were married at the parochial residence of St. Paul's Catholic Church Wednesday afternoon by Rev. Peter F. McCall, rector. Miss Anna Cronin, sister of the bride, was maid of honor and James Johnson, brother of the groom, was best man. On their return from a wedding trip to New York Mr. and Mrs. Johnson will live at 824 Commonwealth Street East Weymouth.

Back to Shirtsleeves

By Augustus Goodrich Sherwin

(Copyright, 1916, by W. G. Chapman.)

"It will be simply delightful!" exclaimed Ned, heartsome Eloise Dorsett, and her father groaned.

Wallace, her brother, just feeling the importance and dignity of admission to the bar, stared at her in marvelling wonder. Her mother, in tears, increased her sobs.

"Sis is right!" proclaimed the vivacious junior of the family, bright, ambitious Ned Dorsett. "I'll have to leave college—for good! I've told you educating me in the dead languages is a rank waste of time. I want something practical. Why, dad, get back in the old factory, back to shirtsleeves and real work; put me where I can handle tools, and see the wheels go round, and I'll be a happy kid!"

"It's shocking to contemplate the old humdrum life in that dead town, Bayville!" moaned Mrs. Dorsett.

"My brother might be a little more considerate," grumbled Mr. Dorsett. "Of course, I've lost a lot of money in promotion, but if he would refinance me for a spell, I know I will make a killing. He is set in his decision, however. He offers us the old home and the old factory. It's our only prospect so I guess we'll have to take it."

"The old home has always been life's fondest vision to me!" declared Eloise. "Why, mother, we'll get our mind on raising garden stuff, and chickens, and flowers, instead of fun."

"Keep on Working at It. You'll Succeed."

ing and striving amid shallow high society functions."

"And my favorite physician two hundred miles away when I get one of my sick spells!" complained mother families.

"You won't have any spells when you get among the flowers, and the fresh air, and real heartsome neighbors," insisted Eloise cheerily, but her mother would not be comforted.

John Dorsett had formerly operated a hardware manufacturing plant in a moderately successful way at Bayville. Then he made some twenty thousand dollars within a few months on some very large sales of material he had bought on a low market. His ambition was to shine in a sumptuous office, discussing big deals. He financed a copper mine, sunk all his money, and now his brother, who had some means, informed him of his dictum. So the old plant and the old homestead were rejuvenated at the expense of his relative, and John Dorsett began life all over again.

"It isn't so bad, after all," spoke Mrs. Dorsett, two months later, after the return to the old home. "I don't seem to have any more of those weak spells, and I'm delighted the way things are growing. Why, we shall have enough small fruits to can for two years ahead!"

Eloise smiled wisely. Her father still had wild dreams of wealth and was not much good about the little plant, but Ned was in a fever of delight most of the time, and, young as he was, made a most efficient manager.

Ned was proud and confident when he came home from a business call on a city manufacturer. The latter had contracted to take their entire output for two years on a staple line of plumbers' tools, and prospective profits were large. They had to double their working force and Mr. Dorsett, at this signal stroke of business prosperity, began to take more interest in affairs.

Then Eloise got the inventive fever. There was a demand for a graduated vegetable and fruit slicer for restaurants. Ned was wildly enthusiastic when Eloise showed him her first model.

"It's famous, if you can make it work!" exclaimed Ned.

"But can I?" questioned Eloise dubiously. "You see, to perfect the movements necessary there is needed some kind of a double ratchet joint, and I can't think out just what it must be."

"Keep on working at it. You'll succeed," predicted her optimistic brother.

One day Eloise came into the office of the plant, to find her brother discussing business with a remarkably handsome and attractive young man. Ned introduced him as Mr. Russell Boyd, the son of the wealthy city hardware exporter. Courteous and pleasant greetings were exchanged. Ned, accompanying him to the depot when he went away, Eloise found a small metal object under the chair he had occupied.

She could not suppress a cry of surprise, for the little device fitted precisely the vital requirement in her invention. It was the coveted, worried-over accessory which made the operation of the slicer perfect.

Of course, Eloise knew that the device did not belong about the factory. The handsome young man who had just left must have accidentally dropped it. She was still looking over the device and admiring its capabilities when Ned returned. Eloise told him of her find. Ned telephoned to the railroad station. The message reached Boyd before the train started, and inside of a half hour he was back at the plant.

This led to a stay of several hours. The young man told Eloise that he had been working on the device for over a year. It could be applied to a number of uses, and, when perfected, he expected to place it on a royalty with several manufacturers. Eloise showed him the slicer. Boyd examined it with attention.

"When I come the next time, I will bring just the size of device that will fit your really valuable invention," he promised.

Which he did, and took not only an unusual interest in the slicer, but in Eloise as well. Her heart beat proudly the day that her invention made a perfect demonstration of its abilities.

The patents on the device were issued to Eloise. Then this kind-hearted young man undertook to test its selling qualities. He came to Bayville one day with glowing accounts of his success.

"I can get you a fine price for your invention outright, or a partner who will finance its publicity and distribution in a large way," he reported.

"You think there is money in it?" fluttered Eloise.

"I know it. The partner would be myself, Miss Dorsett. That would mean a merger of our mutual share in the construction of the device, and would do away with royalties."

"I should be glad to do as you think," said Eloise, and she flushed consciously, and Russell Boyd looked pleased. He was thinking of a more important partnership, for Eloise had been the principal attraction for him at Bayville for some time past.

"Things are looking up, I declare!" acknowledged John Dorsett one day when the monthly statement of business showed generous balances on the right side of the ledger.

"I have turned in my profits on the slicer, papa," observed Eloise, "and that will mean something for the business right along."

"Dad, we're back to shirt sleeves in a grand way, aren't we, now?" piped in the volatile Ned, and Eloise felt that they were on a safe and happy basis at last.

One day Eloise came to her father with a folded paper.

"Papa," she said, her face deliciously suffused, "I have legally transferred my share in the slicer to you."

"Why, Eloise—" began Mr. Dorsett, but Eloise interrupted with the statement: "Russell told me to do so."

"Russell?" repeated the old man, pricking up his ears. "Seems to me it's been Mr. Boyd heretofore?"

"Yes, but he asked me to be his wife yesterday," announced Eloise demurely, "and so I thought—I thought—"

"You blessed angel," enthused her father, "you've made everybody happy all around!"

Quite True.

Young Mr. Hollowell was not much of a preacher, but, much to his own surprise and everybody else's, he was appointed chaplain on a battleship. He desired to amuse as well as instruct his men, and to that end he arranged a magic lantern lecture on Bible scenes and incidents.

A sailor who possessed a gramophone was secured to discourse appropriate music between the slides. The first picture shown was Adam and Eve in the Garden of Eden. The sailor cudgeled his brains and ran through his repertoire, but he could think of no piece exactly appropriate.

"Play up, play up," whispered the chaplain.

Suddenly an inspiration struck the sailor, and to the consternation of the chaplain and the delight of the audience the gramophone squawked out:

"There Is Only One Girl In This World for Me."

Bird Preservation.

Ornithologists have been saying for a good many years now that the decrease in the number of insect-eating birds and the increase in the depredations of the cotton boll weevil, the gypsy moth and the Hessian fly are closely related. But the government regulations merely provide a means.

Such regulations are worthless unless officials charged with their enforcement are vigilant not only in apprehending offenders, but in enlisting the aid of the public in the work of conservation. The boy who looks upon a bird as merely a target upon which to practice with his new airgun must be educated, for he soon becomes the man with the shotgun.—Exchange.

Helpfulness.

"Do you laugh when your husband tells a funny story?"

"Oh, yes," replied the helpful woman. "He depends a great deal on me to start a giggle and show the rest just where the laugh is due."

Tendency Is What Counts.

Of course there can be no such thing as perfection in this vale of tears, but the man who turns his back upon it on that account hasn't good common sense. The man who is low down and tending upward is nearer perfection than the man who is high up and tending downward. Tendency is the profoundest fact in life—in religion, education, society, politics. When an astronomer sees a comet for the first time he will ascertain its direction, even if its progress is only a minute or two, and will describe its course among the stars for weeks ahead. He simply studies the tendency, and one can tell where a man will be ten years from now by the same sort of mathematics. That tendency may reach human perfection if it is started right and the direction maintained.—Ohio State Journal.

Recognition.

One morning on the street car I noticed a large negro woman, very much overdressed and, judging from her expression, much pleased with herself.

A negro girl of about seventeen came in and sat beside her, saying genially, "Howdy do, Missus Brown?"

The woman turned and, looking down upon the girl, said:

"Chile, yo' face looks pow'ful similar, but Ah fails to organize yo'."—Exchange.

The Apocalypse.

There is no other book in the New Testament about which so much has been written and to so little purpose.

Dr. Smith said of it, "It either finds a man mad or makes him so." It is said of Calvin that he showed his wisdom in not writing a commentary on this, as he did on other books.—Chadwick.

PRACTICAL HEALTH HINT.

Nosebleed.

Whatever may be the cause of bleeding at the nose, always send at once for a physician and see that he is told the cause of the bleeding if it is known.

While waiting for the doctor to arrive take care of the patient as best you can.

Unfasten all tight clothing around the neck; make the patient sit down on a chair or a sofa with his head slightly thrown back (never allow a patient to hang his head over a basin); open the window; raise the arms of the patient, stretched to their full extent well above and behind his head, and keep them in that position; apply a cold, wet sponge or a wet towel or a lump of ice to the back of the neck between the shoulder blades, also apply to the root of the nose. If the bleeding does not stop pinch the nose just below the bridge (where the soft part of the nose begins) between the thumb and forefinger, or a clean piece of soft rag or handkerchief can be wrapped up tightly and passed gently into the bleeding nostril.

Testing Textiles.

In a machine invented in England to test the durability of textiles, dull-edged blades are rubbed by an electric motor against the fabrics until they are worn through.

Don't Guess— Know!

So the call was made without any reference to the directory which lay beside the questioner. And the wrong connection was made, because the right number was not what either of the speakers guessed—it was 3261.

This illustrates one frequent cause of wrong numbers, namely, the transposition of digits in the guessing of numbers. It is so easy to do this that we ask our operators to repeat each call distinctly, so that they may be corrected in any errors due to misunderstanding.

There should be no guessing when a telephone number is wanted. There are two ways to get the correct number: one way is by looking in the directory. If, on looking in the directory, you cannot find the name of the person with whom you wish to speak, then you should ask for the Information Operator at the desired exchange, and she will give you the number from her records.

WITH STALE BREAD

MANY DISHES MAY BE PREPARED FROM REMNANTS.

Can Be Put to Excellent Use for Stuffing and Meat Frying—Bread Custard Pudding Is Good—Jelly for Invalids.

Of all the left-over remnants of food from the kitchen bread is the most common, perhaps, and many pieces are daily thrown away which a little thought would turn to excellent use. If the left-over pieces are not utilized the same day, an excellent plan is to wrap them in pieces of waxed paper and store them in a stone jar. They will keep well for a week in this way.

Dried Crumbs for Stuffing and Meat Frying.—Put the crusts and small pieces in a baking pan and dry in the oven without burning. They may then be put through the food chopper and stored in clean Mason jars until wanted. They may be used as a basis for meat croquettes, poultry stuffing and other things.

French toast may be made from the whole slices of left-over bread. It is an excellent luncheon pick-up dish. Beat an egg and add a little milk. Dip the slices of bread in this and fry a nice brown in hot drippings. Serve with butter, jelly or marmalade.

Bread Custard Pudding.—Cut the bread in dainty shapes and butter liberally. Make a plain custard of eggs, milk and sugar. Put in baking dish and float the buttered bread on top. Sprinkle with grated nutmeg and bake in a quick oven until brown. This is excellent.

To make croutons for the various soups so much relished in season, cut the bread in cubes and fry in butter or dripping just before serving with the soup. Add five or six to each plate of soup. These are delicious with almost any soup.

Bread Jelly for Invalids.—Scald the stale bread freed from crusts. Mash to a paste until of mushlike consistency. Add a little sugar and flavoring mold, chill and serve with cream.

Sterilized bread crumbs are especially valuable for the young children in the household. A jar should be kept filled with these. They may be heated when wanted and sprinkled in soft eggs, soups, milk, fruit juices and, indeed, anything eaten by very young children where fresh bread is often positively dangerous.

Dried bread is also valuable for mixing with various other foods for feeding the household pets.

Peach Dumplings.—Mix and sift two cups of flour one teaspoonful of baking powder, one-half teaspoonful of salt and one-half teaspoonful of sugar. Work into this two teaspoonfuls of lard. Mix with three-quarters cupful of ice water. Have all of the ingredients very cold mix quickly, handling as little as possible, and roll out thin. Cut the dough into pieces just large enough to cover one-half of a preserved peach, roll them up and bake in a quick oven. Serve with hard sauce and the sirup from the preserved peaches.

Apple Chutney.—Twelve sour apples, one mild onion three peppers, one red, one cupful of chopped raisins, one-half cupful currant jelly, two cupfuls of sugar, juice of four lemons, one tablespoonful of ground ginger, one-quarter teaspoonful of cayenne, one tablespoonful of salt and one pint of cider vinegar. Chop the apples, onions and peppers very fine, add the vinegar and jelly and let simmer one hour, stirring constantly. Store as canned fruit.

Stewed Kidneys.—Remove the fat and center from six kidneys and soak in cold water. Slice season with salt and pepper, roll in flour and saute in butter. Add to the fat in the pan one tablespoonful of butter and two tablespoonfuls of flour; brown, and add three-quarters cupful of stock. Season with salt, pepper onion juice and table sauce and pour over the kidneys.

American Cream.—Half box gelatin, one quart milk. Set on back of stove to heat gradually. Boil a minute or two. Take off stove and stir in yolks of four eggs well beaten with three tablespoonfuls sugar. Then add whites, well beaten with three tablespoonfuls sugar and two tablespoonfuls vanilla. Put in dish ready for table. Serve next day with cream.

For Bamboo Articles.—A soft rag saturated with solution of equal parts of spirits of camphor and linseed oil is a handy thing to keep around the house. It is the best thing you can get to rub down bamboo furniture with, for it loosens the fiber and makes the wood more elastic. For this reason it will not crack when exposed to changes of temperature.

Combination Cake.—One-third cupful of butter, one cupful granulated sugar, three small eggs one-eighth cupful coffee, one and one-half cupfuls flour, two level teaspoonfuls salt, one cupful of dates, cut small, one cupful of chopped English walnuts. Marshmallow frosting is nice if you like it.

To Pick Up Broken Glass.—Even the smallest pieces of broken glass can be easily picked up with a bit of wet absorbent cotton, which can then be destroyed by burning.

FOR BAKED COD OR HADDOCK

Method of Preparation That Has Long Been in Favor With Housewives of New England.

Wash and wipe a small cod or haddock. Now, hold in an upright position and have a needle and string handy. Take the threaded needle and run through the head from side to side, then in the opposite direction through the middle of the body, then reverse and put through tail, then draw up, and it will form a letter S. Tie ends of string together on under side of fish. If fish is to be stuffed it must be done first. For stuffing, one-half cupful bread crumbs and four teaspoonfuls melted butter, four teaspoonfuls of finely chopped parsley or onions, two teaspoonfuls salt and one of pepper. Add milk to moisten, put in fish and sew it up. When fish is put in the pan it is resting on its belly. Cut gashes in back of fish about two inches apart and insert narrow strips of salt pork. Dredge with flour and baste often with the pork drippings. Allow ten minutes to every pound and ten minutes extra. When done remove string, place on platter and pour over it this egg sauce: Three tablespoonfuls flour, two of butter, and one pint boiling water, one-half teaspoonful salt and a little pepper, and one hard boiled egg. Melt butter in saucepan, add flour and stir in boiling water slowly. Let boil five minutes, stirring constantly. Add the egg chopped fine, and salt and pepper. Garnish with parsley.

WILL BE ENJOYED BY ALL

Rich Chocolate Cake Suitable for a Birthday Celebration or Any Special Occasion.

Two cupfuls of sugar, three-fourths of a cupful of butter (good measure), one cupful of buttermilk, whites of six eggs, yolks of four eggs, one teaspoonful of soda, one-half cake of good chocolate, three scant cupfuls of flour sifted together with the soda, one teaspoonful of vanilla. Cream the butter and sugar, add the yolks of the eggs previously beaten to a cream, then alternating, the buttermilk and the flour. The vanilla and chocolate are added last, the chocolate having been melted in a bowl set in a boiling tea kettle. Bake in a moderate oven. Test with a broom straw and when this, thrust in the top, comes out dry the cake is done.

The frosting, also brown, is made with one cupful cream, two cupfuls sugar, butter size of an egg, three squares of chocolate. Mix together and put on to boil. Let it boil slowly until it balls when thrown into cold water. Remove from stove and let the bubbling subside, then beat until it can be poured on the cake and glazed with a knife.

Berry Pudding.

Beat to a cream one cupful of butter with two cupfuls of sugar, add four well-beaten eggs, one cupful of sour cream in which one teaspoonful of soda is dissolved, and four cupfuls of flour. Stir all together and add one quart of berries, dredged lightly with flour. Wring a pudding cloth out in boiling water, dredge it with flour and pour the batter in, tying it loosely enough to allow the pudding to swell. Plunge this into boiling water and boil for three hours. This pudding can be steamed, but an hour longer should be allowed for the steaming. Serve with wine or vinegar sauce.

Invalid's Chair.

A chair for an invalid or an elderly person may be made very convenient by placing a drawer beneath the seat, arranging it to pull out at one side. It can be provided with a lock if desired. The drawer can be readily manipulated by anyone occupying the chair, and makes the invalid feel fairly independent, as many useful articles and treasures may be kept there, and he will not have to ask for every little thing he uses.

Delicate Cakes.

Buy a nice jelly roll with not too much jelly. Cut in slices an inch thick. Frost with white, pink or chocolate frosting on top and sides and put coconut or chopped nuts on top. Frosting—Four tablespoonfuls milk; make quite stiff with confectioners sugar and flavor and color as you like. Chocolate frosting must be a little thinner than plain before chocolate or cocoa is added.

Pickled Red Cabbage.

Slice up the cabbage fine and place it in a colander; sprinkle each layer with common salt. Let the strips drain for two days, then put them in a jar and cover with boiling vinegar. If a spice is used it must be put in with the vinegar in the proportion of one ounce of whole black pepper and one-half ounce of allspice to the quart.

Some Egg Tips.

A tiny pinch of salt added to the whites of eggs makes them beat up quite quickly. A tablespoonful of water added to each white of egg before beating will double the quantity. To prevent eggs from cracking when boiling always dip first in cold water.

For Greasy Woodwork.

Paint or woodwork that has become greasy should be cleaned with a cloth dipped in turpentine. Then wipe with a cloth dipped in water to which a little kerosene has been added.

To Boil Cracked Eggs.

An egg that is cracked can be boiled by inclosing it in a piece of soft paper.

Catarrhal Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure catarrhal deafness, and that is by a constitutional remedy. Catarrhal Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result. Unless the inflammation can be reduced and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever. Many cases of deafness are caused by catarrh, which is an inflamed condition of the mucous surface. Hall's Catarrh Cure acts thru the blood on the mucous surfaces of the system. We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Catarrhal Deafness that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Circulars free. All Druggists, 75c.

CAUSES FOR THANKS

Season is a Time for All to Remember the Blessings of the Year.

WHAT does Thanksgiving mean to you? Does it mean only a day of special feasting? Does it bring to you only the pleasure of rich foods and elaborate meals? Or do you remember in the midst of feasting that it is a day for giving thanks? We should all take the time from this day, filled with pleasures, to look back over the past year and remember all the blessings for which we have to be thankful. No matter how much sorrow and trouble may have to come to us in the past 12 months, there have been many blessings as well if we will stop to consider them. Perhaps at the time of trouble we were blinded to the blessings, but now, if we look back with clearer judgment, we can see that they were there all the time, sometimes blessings in disguise, but blessings none the less.

We can surely afford to spare from this whole day of pleasure a couple of hours for silent retrospection and appreciation. Let us each slip away from the crowd for just a small part of the day and give ourselves up to a mental review of the past year, with a special eye to the benefits we have received. It will come as a surprise to many to see how many the blessings have been and how comparatively few the misfortunes.

There is first of all, health. Those who have sound health never stop to be grateful for it, it seems so much a part of them. And yet were these healthy ones laid on a sick bed for months at a time they would soon realize how much of a blessing health really is. The chronic invalids in their beds and wheeled chairs appreciate to the full the blessings of good health. Let those of us, then, who are well and strong be thankful for our health.

Then there is love. Those of us who have the devoted love of a mother or father, of a sister or brother, of a child or a husband, will do well to send up an extra pean of thanksgiving for the blessing of this love. Only too often, the only ones who appreciate the full blessing of love are those who have lost all earthly ties.

If the family circle about the festive board is unbroken is not that a reason for full rejoicing? When so many fathers, husbands, brothers and sons are falling on every side in Europe's inhuman war we should give thanks with all our hearts that our own dear ones go unharmed. So each of us will find, if we search our minds, that we have many blessings to be thankful for. It is only the hardened heart which feels no gratitude. And we should all fill our minds with love and appreciation on Thanksgiving day, of the great good we have received in the past and the hope to be more worthy of it in the future.

Proper Spirit of the Season.

The proclamations of those who hold high station as the representatives of the people very properly bespeak the spirit the nation should manifest. The manifestation of that spirit is, however, not alone in feasting and the joyous acclaim of thousands on the field of sport. The consciousness of blessing and the returning of thanks therefore by every man according as he is blessed, no less than the voicing of a prayer that he be made ever more sensible of all his blessings, will make the day for all the holy day it should be. Gratitude for the guidance thus far; strength to meet the trials still to come.

A Thanksgiving.

For days of health, for nights of quiet sleep; for seasons of bounty and of beauty, for all earth's contributions to our need through this past year: good Lord, we thank thee.—William Gannett.

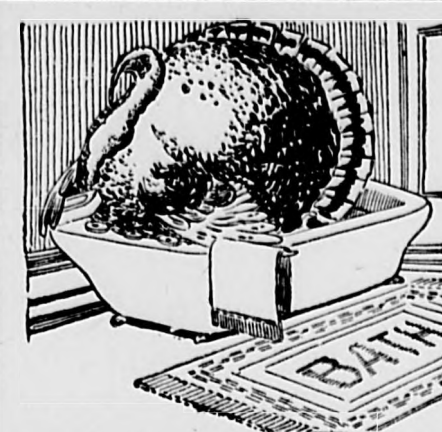

There is a Real Difference

Cream of tartar, derived from grapes, is used in Royal Baking Powder because it is the best and most healthful ingredient known for the purpose.

Phosphate and alum, which are derived from mineral sources, are used in some baking powders, instead of cream of tartar, because they are cheaper.

If you have been induced to use baking powders made from alum or phosphate, use Royal Baking Powder instead. You will be pleased with the results and the difference in the quality of the food.

The Election.

By JENNIE F. STODDARD
O Wilson, 'tis of thee
Thy name we'll often see,
Of thee we'll chant,
We bet a pile of dough,
On you four years ago
This time we had no dough,
So bet we can't.

Through town and countryside
Election was Wilson-wide,
Of thee they spoke.
Some mentioned other n-ews
Some said "O what's the Hughes,
"We're down and out for true,
"We're bent and broke."

To thee, O ballot box
Came many thumps and knocks,
For thee we grieve,
Badly thy top is torn,
Frayed are thy sides and worn,
We hear thee squeak and mourn
We do believe.

Our shouts have swelled the breeze,
And made us cough and wheeze,
But still we yell
"We pay for thee a price,
"I would buy a mansion twice,
We hope its not a sacrifice,
But time will tell."

Thy hand the nation grips,
The "Ship of State", it tips,
And power is thine
To guide her safely on,
Though war clouds on you frown,
Prices up and wages down,
We'll not repine.

Gone, are our bankrolls now,
No more "They'd choke a cow"
As once before.
Yet, when election comes again,
We'll enjoy the whole campaign,
We'll shout and yell the old refrain
And bet some more.

TURKEY AN "IDJUT"

At Least That Is the Opinion Farmer Has of the Great American Bird.

HOUSEWIVES contemplating the annual Thanksgiving dinner little realize the months of preparation which preceded the feast. Their cranberries are on the market. Turkeys, dressed and ready for the oven; huge yellow pumpkins, with the earth still clinging to their gaudy sides; oranges, apples, grapes and nuts all await the call of the epicure.

A trip to a market gives the layman an insight into the real business of Thanksgiving, and incidentally a quantity of rural folk lore which is illuminating. Wandering around the wagons which line the sidewalks of the market space, a reporter the other day came upon an old resident of Virginia—a man with whiskers and a magnificent quid of tobacco and a small supply of turkeys, the last named alive and protesting vigorously against the confinement of their crates.

After a little preliminary conversation the old farmer dilated upon the ways of the great American fete bird and in his conversation knocked the pedestal upon which the fowl is placed squarely from under its feet.

"Biggest fool bird in the world," he confided to the reporter. "They ain't nothin' in the world that I've ever found that's as big an idjut as a turkey."

"In what way?" was asked. "In every way," replied the farmer. "I believe that the words 'not sense enough to come in out of the rain' was written to describe a turkey. Did you ever know, for instance, that a turkey can drown itself during a rain-storm?"

"What!" ejaculated the reporter. "Fact," said the farmer. "Them there birds hold up their heads during a rainstorm exactly as if they was trying to swallow the whole creation. Naturally, they can't drink the entire output. And I tell you as a fact, that I've found cases where they managed to drown themselves."

Continuing on the peculiarities of the bird, the old man said:

"They're helpless critters, too. Ain't got as much gumption about them as a chicken. And frail—let me tell you, young man, that a turkey is the greatest natural-born invalid in the world. They have to be watched every minute or the first thing you know they'll up and die on you without a second's warning."

"I been raisin' turkeys for years and years—had good luck with 'em, too. But I reckon I don't understand more than half about them. Nobody does—particularly why the Creator, when he made 'em, didn't give 'em minds."

"Does that apply to wild turkeys as well as the tame ones?" asked the reporter.

The old man spat thoughtfully and profusely at a chip of wood in the street. He hit the mark.

"As to that," he said, "I can't exactly say. 'Mebbe there's something in the idea that a turkey, when he's tame, gets so used to havin' folks make a fuss over him that he jest naturally loses all his ambition. There's one thing certain—if every wild turkey was as big a fool as some that I've raised there wouldn't be a live wild turkey in the United States within a year."—Washington Star.

Cranberry Industry.

Study of the cranberry industry by government specialists has shown it to be confined practically to three states: Massachusetts, New Jersey and Wisconsin. Of the total crop, Massachusetts produces in an average year about 300,000, New Jersey 150,000, and Wisconsin 75,000 barrels. The industry is gradually extending to Minnesota, Michigan and Oregon, where marshes and climatic conditions are favorable.

PREPARED

By DOUGLAS MALLOCH

We may be shy of cannon and we may be short of guns,
We may not have as many men as many other ones,
We may require a fort or two, some infantry and horse,
A little more artillery to back them up, of course;
But in one matter we have not a reason to be scared—
For, when it comes to pumpkin pies, we surely are prepared!

We may be short of men of war and shy of submarines
And low in mines and other subterranean machines;
We ought to have an aeroplane, or, maybe two or three,
To nest among the mountaintops or hydroplane the sea;
We haven't any instruments for shooting—poisoned gas—
But we can beat the universe at making apple sass!

We have the pumpkins and we have the pippins big and fine;
And, if you want preparedness, pie-panciness for mine!
If someone sails across the sea America to try,
We'll shoot them full of apple sass and full of pumpkin pie.
I bet they'll throw their guns away, beneath that magic charm,
And settle in America and buy them each a farm!

DAY OF REJOICING

Thanksgiving Celebration Is a Great Event on Cotton Plantation.

THANKSGIVING day on a cotton plantation means an open heart and hand on the part of the master and a full stomach, a day of happiness, and, consequently, gratitude on the part of the worker. It means, also, another, and, for that little world, universal token, an offering up of thanks for the numerous little white pods which bring profits to the master and the winter's provisions and clothes to the worker. But it also means a day of play to all.

Hard as is the labor of the cotton plantation hands, they do some extra work willingly for Thanksgiving day for several weeks beforehand. It is a sure sign of the approach of Thanksgiving day when one sights here and there through the woods the bobbing, smoking pine torches that light the way for a dozen black, shining, grinning faces. It is the usual hunt for Mr. Possum that keeps them from their beds, and makes them scramble through thickets, jump ditches and wallow through marshes.

For several nights the woods for miles around the plantation are the scene of night activities. It is easy enough to find the trail of a possum, and when once located the dogs lead a running, howling band in the hunt. Mr. Possum is, however, a slow mover, and when he hears the yelps of those hounds and the howls of the negroes and sees the glare of the torches, he gets up the nearest tree and settles on a limb.

Somehow the light fascinates him and he usually settles on the lowest limb. It is just what the hunters want. Mr. Possum is noted for his fondness for dead meat, consequently a possum that is shot is not the most savory of meats. Their object is to catch him alive and when the tree is reached he is surrounded by a ring of blazing torches and howling blacks until in sheer fright he drops off, plays dead and is bundled into a sack, to be hustled off in the morning to the plantation pen. Sometimes two or three are caught in a night and some of them show fight. Once in the pen they are fed for a couple of weeks with food that takes away all trace of their natural food and rounds out their sides with good, sweet meat.

Several days before Thanksgiving day some of the hands are taken from the cotton fields and put to work around the plantation buildings. This is, with the exception of Christmas, perhaps the most enjoyable task of the year, for it means the preparation for the feast which the plantation is to give its hands on the day when thanks offerings are made.

Usually this is spread in one of the big buildings on the plantation, perhaps a barn or a cotton shed. The hands are set to work at first to clear out the place and make it clean. Then they put together a dozen or more long improvised tables and benches, and lastly they decorate the building with all kinds of flags and bunting. On the side near the center they also put up the fiddler's stand, for later in the day there comes the usual dance. Several days before, also, some of the hands make barrels of ginger beer and sweet cider and stow them away to ripen for the feast.

Enemy of the Cranberry.

An enemy which would rob the Thanksgiving table of cheap cranberries is the cranberry root worm, and the government has been attempting to circumvent this destroyer, too. Experts of the department of agriculture have found that by stimulating the growth of the plants with fertilizers—a practice that has not been followed in the past—the ravages of this ordinarily destructive creature can be made almost negligible.

Worthy Supplication.

For all blessings which may help to make the land we love more worthy of its fortune, its founders, its destiny. Amen.

TIME TO MARKET DUCKLINGS

Success Achieved by Feeding Fowls All They Can Eat Until Fowls Are Ten Weeks Old.

Too many small duck growers make little or no profit from their year's labor, simply because they are ignorant of the proper time to market their ducklings. Success comes only by feeding the ducks all they can eat from the time they are hatched until they are ten weeks old and then sending them right away to market.

If the ducklings are hatched early, so the top prices may be secured, they can be sold when nine weeks old. But never keep ducklings that are to be marketed longer than 12 weeks, no matter how backward they are. After this period the ducklings begin to grow their adult plumage and rapidly lose in weight and therefore will not be fit to kill until they are 18 or 20 weeks old.

It is necessary to force your ducklings to the greatest possible extent. If they are not ready for market in ten weeks, and have to be kept ten weeks longer you either will make no profit or lose on the bargain. At the older age they will not bring nearly as much as green ducks and will have cost you nearly twice their worth.

FATTEN ALL SURPLUS MALES

Pumpkins Found Quite Satisfactory—Fowls Make Quick Gains—Flesh Fine in Flavor.

A poultry breeder who experimented with pumpkins for fattening a pen of surplus cockerels, put five cockerels in a fattening coop, covered with canvas to keep it dark. The birds were fed four times a day—two meals of boiled carrots, to which had been added cornmeal for stiffening; one meal of boiled pumpkins, mixed with ground oats and cornmeal for stiffening, and one meal of whole corn. Milk and water were supplied for drinking; also grit and charcoal.

At the end of 18 days the birds had made a gain of over two pounds each, and the flesh was said to be exceptionally fine in flavor and quality of meat.

NUMBER OF MALES IN FLOCK

With Small Breeds One Rooster to Ten or Fifteen Hens Is Considered About Right Number.

The following is generally considered the proper number of females to one male: The small breeds, ten to fifteen females; medium breeds, eight to ten females; large breeds, six to ten females. Ducks, one male to five females. Geese in pairs, and turkeys about one male to five females. Stock on free range may be mated in large numbers.

DON'T CROWD LITTLE CHICKS

Endeavor to Keep Young Fowls in Small Flocks—Bed All Corners With Litter.

Avoid crowding by keeping chicks in small flocks and bedding all corners with plenty of litter. Fresh straw or dried grass serves this purpose for large chicks, clover chaff or shavings for baby chick litter.

Very often shavings can be procured free of charge at the mill.

VERMIN WORK MUCH DAMAGE

Weakens Fowls of All Ages So That They Fall Easy Prey to Disease Germs of All Kinds.

Lice of all kinds not only torment the fowls and chicks and make their lives miserable, but they weaken them so that they fall easy prey to disease germs which otherwise they might be able to throw off.

The Secret Code

By Elizabeth Schoen Cobb

(Copyright, 1916, by W. G. Chapman.)

"You understand, Mollie?"

"Yes, father."

"There isn't likely to be much out of the ordinary in this dull town, but you can't always tell. If there should be a strike or a big fire or a murder, telegraph Bridgetown for help. Be sure to sign the message 'D. D. I.' That's the regular police code and makes it official."

"There won't anything come up that I can't handle, father," declared Mollie Crawford. "D. D. I. I'll remember. You take two good days' vacation, now. Throw everything off your mind. Brother and I can take care of everything."

John Crawford, marshal of Painesville, proceeded to the door. He halted for a moment to fix a quizzical eye on his daughter.

"Hear you've got a new beau, Mollie," he chuckled—"who is he?"

"Oh, only a stranger passing through the town, that's all, father. I knew his sister at school."

"Just so. Well, good-bye."

Mollie was left alone in the little building that was the telegraph office of Painesville, where she was on night duty. Her father was marshal of the village and had been for several years. Painesville was a quiet respectable place, but it had a large mill population and sometimes there were disorders. There was a day and night

"How Much—Rush?"

watchman, however, and these had been directed by the marshal to come to his son or Mollie in case of any trouble.

Mollie had blushed when her father referred to a "new beau." There was some substance to the intimation. Vernon Beardsley had passed through Painesville twice in the past month and each time he had called on Mollie. This time he had spent half the afternoon with Mollie and had spoken some decidedly tender words.

He was a brother of a former favorite school mate of Mollie and was making his mark as special solicitor for a leading law firm of Matteson, fifty miles east of Painesville, working on an important counterfeiting case. He had hinted at gathering up some valuable evidence, and that some outside members of the gang he was after had threatened to obstruct, or "get even" with him.

Mollie was a trifle anxious over this. She reflected sweetly over the pleasant compliments Vernon had bestowed upon her. She was engrossed in a captivating day dream when two men entered the place.

"This the telegraph office?" inquired one of them. Both were strangers in Painesville and were hard-looking characters. Mollie nodded assentingly.

"Sure he's gone on to Bridgetown?" inquired the other.

"Oh, sure of that, and I've found out where he's staying. Better wire the boys."

"Yes, they'll be sure of him, with your tip."

The two men proceeded to the standing desk where the telegraph blanks were. They were there a long time. They conversed in low-guarded whispers and Mollie noticed constantly consulted a written sheet of paper. Finally they brought the completed telegram to Mollie at her little window.

"Bridgetown," spoke one of the men "How much—rush?"

Mollie counted the words. The message was directed to Barney Graff, Brown's Hotel, Bridgetown. These were the only words Mollie could understand. Then she comprehended the telegram was written after a secret code. Mollie told the men the cost of sending it, proceeded to rush it and, as the money was paid, the two trains going in contrary directions that met at Painesville every evening at that hour arrived, and the men rushed out to catch one or the other, Mollie did not know which.

In the body of the message two initials were written: "V. B." Mollie smiled, for they were those of her lover. Of course they did not apply to him, but they reminded her of him that was a pleasure. She sent the message, being careful to repeat to terminus, for the words made no sense. Then she read a little and did some crochet work, and then went out of her little den to close the door, for the night was growing quite chilly.

As Mollie started back for her operating desk she noticed a stray sheet of paper lying on the floor. She picked it up.

"Why!" she murmured, as she carried it to the light, "this is the same sheet of paper those men consulted so much. Yes, this is the key code to the funny wire which those men sent."

Mollie was glad to have something to break the monotony. She set herself to work to compare the telegram with the code. First, it was idle curiosity. Then it became sheer interest and then—alarm! For this is what the message, translated, read:

"Barney Graff, Brown's Hotel, Bridgetown. V. B. was here. Left on afternoon train. Is at his regular hotel at Bridgetown. Get him. He has the evidence with him and it's do him right or the pen for the gang."

In a flash quick, intelligent Mollie comprehended. The two men who had sent the telegram had arrived at Painesville too late to find Vernon. They had inquired about him and had learned his destination. They had wired some accomplice to do what?—rob Vernon of the evidence of their evil doings and to murder him—oh; that was certain! and Mollie was distracted.

What should she do, what should she do? How could she warn Vernon? She did not know the hotel he usually stopped at. Mollie paced the floor in an agony of apprehension and distress. She had about made up her mind to run to the house, half a mile away, and apprise her brother Herbert of the situation when a sudden thought came to her.

"The very thing!" she cried and sprang to the telegraph instrument. Her nimble fingers quivered as she clicked out the message that might mean life or death to the man she loved, according to the dispatch with which its mandate was executed:

"Jacob Bull, Chief of Police,

Bridgetown:

Arrest at once Vernon Beardsley, lawyer, staying at some principal hotel in your city. Hold without bail till advised. Wanted for burglary.

JOHN CRAWFORD, Marshal.

D. D. I."

Then Mollie sped home. She got her brother to take her place, waited three hours and caught the midnight express for Bridgetown.

"I am the daughter of Marshal Crawford of Painesville," she announced to the chief of police, whom fortunately she found at headquarters. "I came about the arrest of Vernon Beardsley."

"Yes, he's juggled, and a fine row he's raising," responded the official and then stared hard, as, blushing, palpitating, the pretty young miss told her story.

"Barney Graff, eh?" he observed, pricking up his ears. "That's a fine tip. Brown's hotel? Good for you, little one, you're a trump!"

Within an hour Graff and two other wanted members of the counterfeiting gang were behind the bars and the astounded Vernon Beardsley outside of them.

"Can you ever forgive me?" meekly asked the penitent Mollie.

"You glorious girl!" was the ardent reply. "You have saved my life, so it is yours for the rest of my days—if it's worth having," and, promptly and tenderly, Mollie insisted that it was.

Oldest Lighthouse.

The celebration by the United States government and the Boston chamber of commerce of the two hundredth anniversary of the first use of Boston light, calls public attention to the oldest lighthouse in the United States. From 1916 to 1716 may seem a long way back, but what are a mere 200 years compared with the centuries that thought must cross to reach the oldest lighthouse in the world? This belonged to the fifth century B. C., and was mentioned by one of the Greek poets, who located it in the Troad. Its most famous successor was the lighthouse of Egypt, built in the first century B. C., and classed as one of the seven wonders of the world. It was called the Pharos, because located on an island of that name in Alexandria bay. Though finally destroyed in the thirteenth century, it still survives in the word of "pharology."—Christian Science Monitor.

Pneumatic Crutch.

A crutch that shall not press painfully upon the arm pit has been devised by R. C. Pierce, a London engineer, and is in effective use in at least one of the British Red Cross hospitals. As the Lancet describes it, it is a pair of ordinary crutches from which the tops have been removed and a new top made.

This consists of a cross-piece of bass-wood with two upright ends, between which is a piece of rubber tube with its ends closed by wooden disks. Part of an inner tire is used for this and it is covered with canvas fire hose to prevent it from stretching. To this is attached a bicycle tire valve with which to inflate the tube to a pressure of about two or three pounds to the square inch.

The Bigger Fish.

"Mike," said Plodding Pete, "what would you do if you had a million dollars?"

"I dunno," answered Meandering Mike. "But I'm suspicious dat I'd be sittin' up nights worryin' fur fear some o' dese billion-dollar boys 'ud freeze me out an' git it away from me."

BILLY SUNDAY HERE

Guest on Monday of Allan C. Emery at King Oak Hill.

Billy Sunday was in Weymouth on Monday as the guest of Chairman Allan C. Emery at the "Mt. Vernon house" on King Oak hill. About 8 A. M. the party of 25 left Boston by autos for Plymouth, via Quincy, North Weymouth and Hingham, and Mr. Sunday bared his head reverently at Plymouth Rock.

At 1 o'clock the start was made from Plymouth to Duxbury, says the Herald. Here the Myles Standish monument and the John Alden home were viewed. The party then headed for the home of Chairman Emery at Weymouth, where luncheon was served, followed by a short social hour, the newspaper men again showing themselves unable to carry along the last line in "Brighten the Corner" in the "echo" plan devised by Chorister Bodeheaver. It was during this hour that the three daughters of Chairman Emery, Mabel, Virginia and Elsie, the latter about 2 years old, showed the news gatherers how to sing the song. Mabel the oldest, is about 6 years old, and Virginia about 4.

In the party were Mrs. William Asher, director of extension work; Miss Frances Miller, director of business women's work; Miss Rose Fetterolf, assistant in women's work; Miss Jean B. Lamont, assistant Bible teacher; Miss Florence Kinney, in charge of students' work; the Rev. Isaac Ward, director of men's work; Miss Alice M. Gamlin, director of boys and girls work; Mr. Peterson, Mrs. Rose Foutts, housekeeper at the Sunday home;

William T. Rich, treasurer of the Sunday campaign committee, and Mrs. Rich.

Throughout the trip Mr. Sunday showed the same characteristics which have made him famous as an evangelist, as he passed from one historic point to another. He was serious throughout the pilgrimage, becoming enthusiastic and deeply concerned. Later, at the home of Chairman Allan C. Emery at Weymouth, overlooking Quincy Bay, he was once more the light-hearted and unassuming man, as he played with the three Emery children. With Ma, Billy viewed the spacious grounds about the Emery home and both the evangelist and his wife showed intense interest in the New England bird pligs corralled in the rear of the barn.

It was 1.30 when the party arrived at Mr. Emery's home, and they did not depart until after 3. Rev. Edward J. Yaeger, pastor of the Old North Church, was the only Weymouth guest.

Wirt Discharged.

In the District court at Quincy on Saturday Harrison Loring Wirt was discharged on the charge of manslaughter. His automobile, it was alleged, struck and killed Edward Powers of Somerville, on Main Street, Weymouth, on the night of Oct. 12. Powers died at the Quincy City hospital. The case has been continued several times. Judge Avery announced want of probable cause and ordered the discharge of Wirt.

BUSY SESSION OF SELECTMEN

Further Protest Against High Cost of Living.

The Selectmen received a lengthy letter from Town Counsel Worthen explaining why the 1916 assessment for Metropolitan Parks was 300 per cent greater than for 1915. Previous to that year, he said, the town had been exempt from 40 per cent of the levy, but by the new apportionment the town was no longer exempt. An appeal has been taken to the Supreme court.

Permits were granted to move a building on wheels from Hunt's hill, through Bartlett, Bay View and Bridge streets and Standish road to land in rear of Peter Haggerty's on Pearl street. Also to Weymouth Art Leather Co. to move building from Braintree over Commercial, Church, East and Green streets.

Walter Pratt petitioned for gasoline location and will be given a hearing. Many appeals for aid were received from the needy.

The Selectmen also met witnesses and prepared to defend the town, in the case of Mrs. Charles H. Abbott who has sued for injuries received on Putnam street in 1914, soon to come to trial at Dedham. The Selectmen gave their formal approval of a relocation of Washington street, as per plan of Massachusetts Highway Commission, in the vicinity of Middle and Winter streets, near the plant of John Coffin & Co.

Arthur C. Gerstley, president of the South Weymouth Improvement Association, called the attention of the Selectmen to a hearing to be given by the Public Service Commission on Dec. 8, on the petition of the Bay State street railway, for changes in service on the South Weymouth and East Weymouth route, and the Rockland and Braintree route, with the wish that the board be represented at the hearing.

Archibald McCullough was appointed as an official weigher. A hearing was given the Weymouth Light and Power Company as a candidate for 10 poles on Essex street. No contestants appeared, and the locations were granted.

Following up the action of the board at the last meeting, a resolution offered by Selectman Hanley was adopted, requiring Congressman Olney to protest in Congress against the unreasonable demands for the high prices of the necessities of life; and further to take some action to relieve the situation.

Walter L. Jenkins.

Walter L. Jenkins died on Monday. He was born in Abington, Nov. 21, 1849, and was the son of the late George Merritt and Amelia Reed Jenkins of Abington. Thirty-two years ago Mr. Jenkins came to North Weymouth, where he has since resided.

Besides a wife Mr. Jenkins leaves a brother, Frank A. Jenkins of Campello, a sister Mrs. Florence A. Foster of Buffalo; one daughter, Mrs. Harry Newell of Everett, and two sons, Dr. Merritt Jenkins of New Jersey, and Geo. A. Jenkins a dentist in Attleboro.

Mr. Jenkins was an author and wrote under the name of Maj. Walter Leigh. At the time of his death he was the treasurer of the New England Publishing Co. Funeral services were held at his late home, 157 North street, Wednesday at 1.30 p. m. Rev. Charles Clark officiating. Burial at East Bridgewater.

ROBBED BY THREE MEN

Holbrook Man Lost Way at South Weymouth

George Ashford of Holbrook was the victim of a South Weymouth gang Sunday night. He came out of Boston on the late train, and intended to get off at South Braintree, but got carried by to South Weymouth. He asked three men near the depot to direct him to the Braintree car, and they volunteered to show him the way. When near the Highland cemetery they knocked him down and robbed him of a watch and pocket-book and also of a bottle of liquor.

Shortly after patrolmen Ford and Brennan arrested George W. Keefe and Chestnut Ford, as suspects and they were arraigned in the Quincy court on Monday. The third man is known. The men were represented by counsel and the case was continued one week.

Bazaar by Men.

The men of the Church of the Sacred Heart opened a three-days' bazaar Wednesday, the officers of the committee being J. Henry Curran, chairman; John Clifton, secretary, and Edward Lukeman, treasurer. Each night there was a special attraction, that of Wednesday evening being a drama, "A Double Deception," with Miss Helen Corridan, Miss Lillian Smith, Miss Caroline Corridan, Raymond Corridan and Thomas McCarthy in the cast. Thursday night there was a musical comedy.

The tables and booths were in charge of the following men:

Edmund P. White, Dan Mahoney, George Husbands and Thomas McCarthy, W. P. Kelley, John Barret, John Milley, Thomas Shea and Robert McCarthy. The booth, Byron Hall, Frank John Ahearn, William Cunliff, Charles O'Brien, Harry Edward Newman.

James Donagan, William Fanning, John Doucette, Raymond Corridan and Joseph O'Brien.

Midway booth, John Lyons, James P. Riley, Samuel Cushing, W. F. Tracey, J. E. Kelley, William O'Connor, Dennis McCarthy and John Cahill.

Tonic booth, James O'Connor, Thomas McCarthy and Francis Condrick.

Frederick B. Dwyer.

The funeral of Frederick B. Dwyer took place Saturday morning from the Church of the Sacred Heart, and was attended by many of the friends of the deceased, including delegations from the Weymouth Fire department, of which he was for some years a member, and from the societies with which he had been affiliated. Rev. Fr. J. B. Holland celebrated mass. The music was under the direction of the organist Mrs. John Hanley, and the choir was assisted by Joseph Eckert of Boston. There were many handsome floral tributes. The ushers were Joseph DeNeil, Thomas McCarthy, Francis Condrick and George Healy. The bearers were Dennis McCarthy, William R. McKay, William H. Coyle, Joseph Kelley, Frank Stranger of Cambridge, and James Cronin of Rockland. The interment was in the family lot at St. Francis Xavier cemetery and the bells of the fire alarm tolled during the passage of the funeral from the church to the cemetery.

FIRE SCARE NO DAMAGE

Box 39 Pulled Twice for Grass Fire.

The firemen as well as the people generally mistook two alarms from box 39 about 11 o'clock Monday night for a general alarm and all the motor apparatus of the town responded. District Chief Worcester and Combination 3 were at a grass fire at Webb park, when the box was first pulled in and did not need assistance. When another grass fire was discovered near the residence of Rev. William Hyde, Engineer Worcester divided his forces. Arriving at the latter fire Rev. Mr. Hyde and members of his household were found actively at work with brooms as their buildings were threatened. The grass was tall and burned briskly. With the assistance of the apparatus from North Weymouth the flames were soon extinguished, but they burned over nearly four acres.

Both fires were undoubtedly set by a locomotive and that at Webb Park threatened for awhile the Rhines lumber yard and the coal yard of A. J. Richards & Co. Rev. Mr. Hyde says fires occur near him nearly every fall, but this year the grass was taller than usual.

Army 24—Navy, 18.

Owing to the cancellation of the Rockland-Weymouth game by Rockland Friday at a late hour, the squad was split up into divisions and named Army and Navy. A hotly contested game was the result. As one spectator remarked it was a case of "Greek against Greek". The score was 24 to 18.

GREATEST LABOR FIGHT IMPENDING

Eight Hour Law May Bring on Nation Wide Struggle.

CAPITAL IS WELL ORGANIZED

National Industrial Conference Board Formed to Oppose Alliance of American Federation of Labor With Four Railway Brotherhoods—Board Represents Employers of 7,000,000.

A nation wide struggle between employers and organized wage earners over the eight hour day is impending.

An alliance is being effected between the four railway brotherhoods and the American Federation of Labor to gain an eight hour day for all classes of employees.

On the other side announcement has just been made of the establishment of the national industrial conference board. The membership of this board includes twelve national associations of industrial employers, comprising more than 15,000 officials, who furnish employment to about 7,000,000 workers. Approximately $8,000,000,000 of capital is said to be represented.

The fundamental purpose of the board, which was formed in New York city at the annual convention of the National Founders' association, was summed up by William H. Barr of Buffalo, president of the association, as follows:

"The developments of the last year, politically and industrially, emphasize as never before the need of more comprehensive co-operative action in industry."

Only One Phase of Big Fight.

The attack by the railroads against the constitutionality of the Adamson bill providing an eight hour working day for trainmen is only one phase of this far spread struggle. The fight against the Adamson bill threatens to be carried again to Washington. Brotherhood leaders, who will testify before the Newlands commission, will appeal directly to President Wilson for assurance that the Adamson law will be put in operation on Jan. 1.

The commission appointed by President Wilson to investigate the operation of the Adamson act is meeting in New York city for several informal sessions. The commission is composed of Major General George W. Goethals, George Rublee and Edgar E. Clark. Howard Elliott, president of the New Haven railroad, announced that suits for the New Haven against the Adamson bill were to be instituted as soon as the bills of complaint are printed. The New York Central, Erie and Pennsylvania have already filed suits.

Brotherhoods and Federation Unite.
Coincident with the formation of the industrial conference board to safeguard the interests of industrial employers came the declaration from Baltimore that the leaders of the four railway brotherhoods had allied themselves with the American Federation of Labor to wage a national fight for the eight hour working day for all classes of workers. The brotherhood leaders, Warren S. Stone of the engineers, A. B. Garretson of the conductors, W. G. Lee of the trainmen and W. S. Carter of the firemen, made arrangements to address the convention of the A. F. of L. at Baltimore on the principle of the eight hour day.

Samuel Gompers, president of the Federation of Labor, commenting on the injunction suits, declared in Baltimore that the eight hour law would go into effect "injunction or no injunction."

The railroads are understood to be preparing to ask Attorney General Gregory for a stay of thirty days after Jan. 1, pending the outcome of the suits now filed. No offer has been made by the railroads to settle the question by one test case, and as the attorney general has made no such proposition to the railroads it is expected that the department will be forced to contest each suit as it comes up for a hearing.

It is extremely doubtful, even if the case be expedited, that a final decision by the supreme court on the constitutionality of the act can be rendered before Jan. 1. For this reason the railroads are contemplating a petition for a thirty days' stay.

WANTS HIS LIFE RESTORED.

Holzinger Had Been Pronounced Dead by Courts.

Jacob Holzinger of Greenburg, Pa., appeared at the office of the register of wills there recently and asked to be restored to life again in the eyes of the law.

Holzinger disappeared in 1901 and nine years later his brother petitioned the court for letters of administration for the missing brother, which were granted. Holzinger said he went to the Pacific coast and is interested in big fruit orchards there.

Toads Barred From Mails.

On complaint of postal authorities that soldiers along the Mexican border have been sending live insects, animals and reptiles through the United States mails, General Funston has ordered that postal regulations be strictly observed by the guardsmen. The soldiers have been mailing lizards, scorpions, horned toads and other specimens of border life to "the folks back home."

Don't Guess— Know!

So the call was made without any reference to the directory which lay beside the questioner. And the wrong connection was made, because the right number was not what either of the speakers guessed—it was 3261.

This illustrates one frequent cause of wrong numbers, namely, the transposition of digits in the guessing of numbers. It is so easy to do this that we ask our operators to repeat each call distinctly, so that they may be corrected in any errors due to misunderstanding.

There should be no guessing when a telephone number is wanted. There are two ways to get the correct number: one way is by looking in the directory. If, on looking in the directory, you cannot find the name of the person with whom you wish to speak, then you should ask for the Information Operator at the desired exchange, and she will give you the number from her records.

ALL OF GERMANY TO BE ORGANIZED

All Male and Female Labor to Make Munitions.

NATION AS BUSINESS FIRM

Women From Ages of Sixteen to Sixty as Well as Men Will Be Controlled by "Office For War" Just Created. May Be Made Compulsory—Entire Empire Will Be Set to Work.

German newspapers are publishing details of the organization of the German empire on a war basis by the enrollment of all labor. Even the women from sixteen to sixty are to be enrolled and controlled by a great central organization called "the office for war," whence the threads are to be carried to the remotest country villages, even to farmhouses on the mountains and moorlands.

The picture appeals immensely, as was intended, to the German belief in the ultimate superiority and invincibility of German organizing genius.

Pinnacle of Organization.
What General Groner, the head of the newly created department of munitions, proposes, and indeed already is endeavoring to carry out, is the apotheosis of organization. All previous training, all talent for organizing and for being organized, is now to be excelled by the German people. Despite questions, criticisms and doubts the reception of this last great demand is everywhere favorable, for they are ready to believe General Groner's assurance that this is the real goddess of organization who will bring them out of the house of bondage.

Yet the Germans do not hesitate to admit that this enormous effort is necessitated by their own underestimate of the qualities of their chief adversary. The Leipzig Neueste Nachrichten, for example, says: "When in August, 1914, Kitchener coined the phrase, 'For England the war will only begin in 1916,' we sneered, for we believed long before then we should have resumed our peaceful occupations. But we had to learn we had underestimated the English as a nation. We now know the real enemy who sits upon his islands and will ruthlessly employ every means to bring us to the ground. The English will use the winter days to fill the gaps in their store of colossal supplies, which will enable them in the spring to expend more ammunition than is now at their disposal. What we have to do is to turn all Germany into one colossal munitions factory."

Nation as a Firm.
General Groner thus describes Germany organized for war work: "The new war office represents Germany as a colossal firm, which includes all production of every kind, indifferent of the kind of coat, whether civil or military, which the employees wear. The new measures are intended to mobilize all effective labor, whereas at present we only have mobilized the army of industry. All labor, women's as well as men's, must be extracted from the population. If voluntary enlistment does not suffice we will not be able to avoid compulsion."

The Volks Zeitung, pointing out the exemplary results of the efforts of the British ministry of munitions as displayed in the Somme battle, constituting a serious warning for the future, says that Germany does not lack raw material and must mobilize all the human material at her disposal in order fully to exploit this raw material.

"We must weld together in the closest manner possible," adds the paper, "our home army and our field army."

ARMY TRUCKS' RECORD RUN.

Thirty-three Machines Made 518 Miles in One Week.

Army officers are elated over the showing of Truck company No. 4, which arrived at Fort Sill, Okla., from San Antonio recently. They said the thirty-three trucks established a long distance record for the army in making the 518 miles in one week, averaging seventy-four miles a day.

OLD VIRGINIA SEALS FOUND AT OYSTER BAY

The great seal of Stafford county, Va., and the circuit court seal of that county have been found in Oyster Bay, N. Y., after having been missing since the civil war, when they were brought north by Union soldiers. They are now in the possession of Edward R. Summers, deputy town clerk, who has only just learned that the Virginia authorities have been looking for the seals more than half a century. Mr. Summers obtained them from his brother, the late Charles G. Summers, who was a captain in General Sickles' brigade and served in Virginia in 1862. Mr. Summers has written the clerk of Stafford county, offering to return the seals.

FARM POULTRY

WELFARE OF YOUNG TURKEYS

Dampness is Fatal to Poults During First Few Weeks—Allow Flocks to Roam at Will.

Young turkeys must have dry ground on which to roam. Dampness is fatal during the first few weeks. Poults that come out in bright weather and are blessed with two weeks of sunshine in which to get a start in life, may leave earlier-hatched birds behind. Assuming that the parent stock is vigorous, young turkeys are not difficult to rear successfully. The mother turkey will rid herself of vermin and teach the young to do the same if she has access to a good dust bath. A little pure lard or sweet oil on the head and under the wings of the poults will destroy lice effectively.

Unless the weather is unusually warm and dry it is better to keep the young birds in a roomy open air pen the first two weeks of their life. After that they may be allowed to go where they will, except that it is better not to let them out until the dew has dried off in the morning for a few weeks longer. Restraint is detrimental to turkeys, as a general thing. The average grower should allow the flocks to roam over the fields at will. By so doing they will pick up nearly all of their summer and early fall food.

MALE IS DISTURBING FACTOR

Practice of Allowing Roosters Freedom of Flock After Hatching Season is Over is Bad.

(By T. E. QUISENBERRY.)
The one fault in the management of farm flocks which, from the viewpoint of improving the quality of market eggs, is worse than all others combined, is the almost universal practice of allowing the males the freedom of the flock after the hatching season is over. Ninety-tenths of the vast number of eggs that are candled out every summer as unfit for food are fertile eggs in which the germ has started to develop. A temperature of 70 degrees will start the germ in a fertile egg to slowly developing. A fertile egg subjected to a temperature of 100 degrees for 24 hours will be unfit for food, while an infertile egg may be subjected to the same temperature for a week and still be perfectly good for cooking purposes.

The simple expedient of shutting up or disposing of the adult male birds as soon as the hatching season is over, if it should become the general custom, would result in the saving of a million of dollars' worth of eggs every season. Another important advantage in having no males in the laying pens is the fact that the hens without males running with them are much more gentle and quiet. The male is a disturbing factor.

CAPONIZE FOR BEST PRICES

Fowls Sell in Winter for 25 to 30 Cents a Pound—Most Attractive in Dozen Lots.

toward the backbone when making the incisions.

Always dress capons "in style"—leave feathers around necks, hocks, on wing tips and end of the tail.

GIVE ATTENTION TO SHELTER

Fowls Require Shade in Summer and Protection From Cold and Damp Weather in Winter.

Attention must be given to shelter. The fowls will require shade in the summer and shelter from cold and damp weather in the winter. To meet these requirements it will require preparations. To wait till protection is actually needed may be too late. One must anticipate the needs of the fowls.

Last Saturday evening the orchestra held a public rehearsal at the Universalist vestry to try the new piano, and quite a number of music lovers enjoyed the privilege of attending the rehearsal. Worth Careful Thought

Do you read the label to know whether your baking powder is made from cream of tartar or, on the other hand, from alum or phosphate?

Royal Baking Powder is made from cream of tartar, derived from grapes, and adds to the food only wholesome qualities.

Other baking powders contain alum or phosphate, both of mineral origin, and used as substitutes for cream of tartar because of their cheapness.

Never sacrifice quality and healthfulness for low price.

THE GLORIOUS PUMPKIN

Queen of the holiday pastries, the pumpkin pie proudly occupies the place of honor. At this season of the year at least French pastry withdraws modestly in favor of the purely American viand; nor is the bulwark of British Christmases—the mince pie—considered especially in keeping for Thanksgiving.

BLESSED ABOVE ALL

Special Reasons Why Americans Should Be Grateful to God
This Year.

IF CUSTOM had not dictated nor time hallowed the setting aside of a day for a national recognition of Divine blessings, the situation in the world today would of itself have instinctively brought about the sentiments in the hearts of Americans suited to the spirit of thankfulness.

Yet there is no occasion to resort to the elements of contrast afforded by the pictures presented here and in other countries at this time. Our people are determined to assert the nation's rights as operative at all times, and desirous of defending them as a part of the heritage received from ancestors who feared God, but had scant respect for persons or nations where these ignored the principles of liberty for which they were unyieldingly set in defense.

It is beyond and outside of the field of contrast that the country bows to day in acknowledgment of a Providence that has preserved it from the ravages of war and given it to partake richly of every form of prosperity for which a people might justly yearn. The crops are excellent. Labor in practically every field of endeavor is giving employment to the many. The distribution of material wealth is thus being effected in such manner that plenty abounds, and no table so poor that it cannot present evidences of good cheer on this festive occasion.

Mingled, nevertheless, with the consciousness of our own happy state must be the sobering sentiments that take cognizance of far other conditions elsewhere. For the war-torn nations it is wished that they may soon find an honorable way back to permanent peace. As these sentiments take form and logical order in our own minds, they cannot but suggest our own responsibilities, present and future. And among these the necessity of being prepared to assert and defend the principles for which we stand and to the preservation of which thus far in our political history we are, under the goodness of God, indebted for our present peace and prosperity, must have its recognized place.

A Prayer.

For the sense of internationalism possessing so many thoughtful minds, for the realization that no nation liveth for or by itself, for the vision of a federated world in all parts of which there shall be substituted for the mailed fist the hand of a brother, let us give thanks.

For God "our help in ages past, our hope for years to come" for Jesus Christ, the pivot of human history, the sure and sufficient revelation of the Father, forever the Master and the Savior of mankind, let us give thanks.

Come all ye faithful people, enter into his gates with thanksgiving and into his courts with praise. Be thankful unto him and bless his name, for Jehovah is a great God and his loving kindness endureth forever.—Exchange.

True Spirit of the Festival.

In recent years there has been a broadening conception of the spirit of Thanksgiving day. Besides acknowledging God's manifold blessings according to religious formulas, the true spirit of the festival will manifest itself in deeds of benevolence. The poor will be remembered and the needs of humane institutions will be supplied.

Fair Harvest.

The seed that once in sorrow we cast into the ground, On this fair harvest morn'g In joy and strength is found. That which men deemed had perished The unkindly soil beneath Hath sprung, in secret cherished, With tenfold life from death.

John Carey's Boots

By H. M. EGBERT

(Copyright, 1916, by W. G. Chapman.)

I suspected Louise Carey from the first; but in that I was no different from the farmer's neighbors. John Carey had married a second time, late in life, when his three sons were growing up to manhood. Jim, the eldest, was twenty; Frank eighteen; Leonard, the youngest, fourteen.

John Carey was rich, and Louise Brand had been a poor girl in the city when the elderly man, making a business trip there, saw her working as a stenographer in the lawyer's office. The courtship was brief, and they were married three weeks after their first meeting.

John Carey had been a close-fisted man, but a good neighbor and had been generally esteemed. He fell under the rule of his young wife. His sons resented the stranger's presence in the home. Quarrels between father and sons ensued. There was a bad one a week before the farmer's death. He changed his will, leaving everything to his wife, with reversion to Leonard, the youngest, the only one who cared for his stepmother. Between the two a devoted attachment sprang up.

The motive for murdering John Carey? Fear lest he should change his will again. Three days later Carey came in from the field, where he had been binding, in high spirits. He had his supper, pulled off his boots, lit his pipe, complained of feeling ill, and lay down on the lounge. Nobody else was in the room. When his wife entered, an hour later, he was dead, his lower limbs and body terribly swollen.

It was like snake poison; the experts said the condition of the body resembled that of a man who had been struck by a rattler. But there was no rattler in the house, though they were plentiful in the field. If Carey had been killed by a snake, the poison would have taken effect before he entered his home.

John Carey was buried, and the few whispers on the part of the neighbors died away. Jim and Frank had left the house at the time of the quarrel. They started suit, alleging undue influence. They had removed their personal effects, including some clothing, the property of their father. Close-fisted like him, they did not see the sense of leaving his effects to Louise; and she offered no objection.

It was just a month later that the second death occurred. Jim Carey had gone to the stepmother's house to talk things over with her. Louise Carey was a sensible woman and had volunteered to come to a settlement. According to her story, they had practically reached an agreement. She had given her stepson tea, and he had complained that his father's boots hurt him and pulled them off. A few moments later he began to complain. She ran to the telephone and summoned the doctor, recognizing the same symptoms as those of which her husband had died. Before the doctor arrived, Jim was dead, and dreadfully swollen.

The boots? They were a pair of high, farmers' boots, and John Carey had worn them for nearly a year before his death. If there was poison in the boots, it would have taken effect long before. Jim had worn them during his four-mile tramp from where he lived to his stepmother's house. It was suspected that she had a store of poison, which she had secretly administered. The police ransacked the house from roof to cellar, but could find nothing. It was then that I was called in.

Universally suspected, universally shunned, Mrs. Carey lived a wretched life. The little boys had begun to call out after her in the street. She would have left the house but for Leonard, who believed in her, and to whom she was passionately devoted. I resided in the village, assumed the guise of an intending purchaser of real estate, and in that capacity I visited the Carey farm, to talk over the price. Mrs. Carey was willing to sell, after the trouble had been cleared up. She struck me as a sensible woman, and I had my doubts as to her culpability.

The farmer's boots had been thrown away in the attic, with the rest of his clothing. I found an opportunity, by going to the house when Mrs. Carey was away, to look at them. It did occur to me that there might be some snake venom in them, but I assured myself that this was not the case. Besides, as most people know, snake venom acts as a toxic agent only when introduced through an abrasion. Swallowed, it is harmless. And it seemed improbable in the extreme that, even if there were poison in the boots, there would have been an abrasion on the foot of each of the two men exactly where the poison would be free to enter.

And, again, rattlesnakes, for all their reputation, only inflict a maximum of discomfort, not death. I think the number of cases of fatal rattlesnake poisoning are less than a dozen. It would have been impossible for the men to have died in so short a time.

Quite by accident, however, I learned that a circus had passed through the village six months before. Among its attractions had been a Hindu snake-charmer, who had amused and astonished the rustics until the circus passed, to be soon forgotten. I learned that Mrs. Carey had attended the circus with Leonard, and had been seen to speak to the man.

This looked bad. After all, if it was snake poison, Mrs. Carey was the only person with a motive to kill. I withdrew my favorable opinion. I watched her more narrowly.

I had actually invested $200 in an option on the property. This gave me plenty of opportunity to visit there. I was at the farm one afternoon when Leonard came out of the house; and I saw the woman's face blanch.

"Leonard!" she gasped. "Your father's boots!"

I looked and saw that the boy was wearing the identical boots which the two men had worn before their death. They were much too large for him, but they came up toward the knee, and were very serviceable for harvest work.

"Why, that's all right, mom," he answered. "They'll come in handy out in the field. Why, mom, I've had these on for nearly two hours, and if there was poison in them I guess I'd have felt it before now."

"Take them off!" screamed Mrs. Carey. And yet, agitated though she was, there was no sound of guilty knowledge in her voice, only of fear.

"I wish I'd buried the things," she sobbed wildly. "If it hadn't been for your father and brother having worn them, folks wouldn't accuse me of having killed them."

Leonard ran to her and put his arms about her. "Why, mom, folks are liars, that's all," he said. He clenched his fists. "Just let me see the man who says you are a murderess!" he cried. "And, mom," he added, "I'll take them off right away."

He sat down in the sun and pulled off the boots. Then, carrying them in his hand, he ran in his stocking feet back into the house.

I saw the tension on Mrs. Carey's face. Presently Leonard came back, wearing a pair of ordinary boots. He looked very sober and paler than before. He came rather unsteadily up to his mother.

"I don't feel well, mom," he gasped, and fell at her feet. Mrs. Carey screamed wildly, and I carried the boy into the house and called the doctor.

The doctor arrived in half an hour and diagnosed the case as hopeless. By that time Leonard's legs were swollen to three times their size, and he was black below the waist. But I refused to accept the verdict.

Mrs. Carey and I worked over him all that day. It was a desperate effort to keep him awake, and we could not walk him on his swollen feet. But we punched and struck him, and pulled up his drooping eyelids. We struck him and pushed him from side to side, trundling him about the room. Somehow we managed to prevent the coma of death from developing that night, and by morning the boy was better. The doctor, who called expecting him to be dead, was amazed.

The next day was a critical one, but by daylight Leonard was able to go to sleep, and by the next morning the swelling had gone down a little and he was on the way to recovery. Then, only, did I think of the boots.

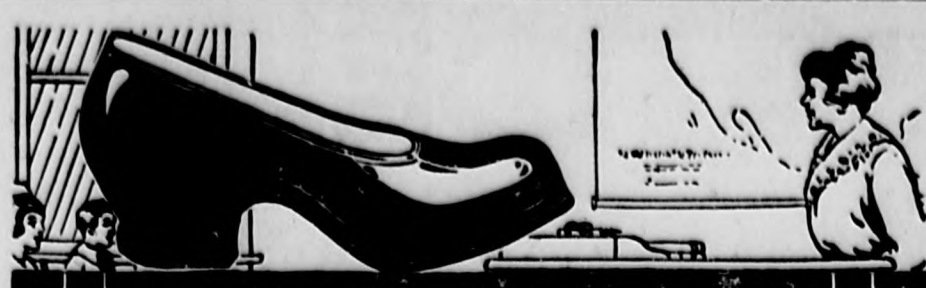

The story had spread through the village, and a warrant for Mrs. Carey's arrest had already been issued. It was I who confronted the constable at the door with my evidence. For I had slashed the boots to pieces and discovered the mystery.

In the left boot was nothing. But in the right boot, set near the ankle, was a tiny snake-fang, with a portion of the venom sack attached to it. It had been thrust out with such violence that it had penetrated the leather and carried this minute portion of the poison sack with it.

It was set downward at such an angle that it would not abrade the skin when the boot was put on, but must inevitably do so when it was pulled off.

The explanation was an obvious one, and it cleared Mrs. Carey, who now resides, with Frank and Leonard, on the old place, esteemed by everyone. The deadly poison was identified with that of the Indian hooded cobra. The snake had escaped from the charmer and had struck at the farmer's leg, without his knowledge. The fang, remaining in the tough leather, had done no injury until John Carey pulled off his boots. Then it had killed him.

The Editor's Thanksgiving

What's that? You bet I'm thankful; don't you see this two-bit smile? Why, things for me look brighter than they have for quite a while. Of course, it pleased me when my print got stewed and broke the press. And pled the forms, but I can get things straightened up, I guess. That libel suit nigh got my goat; but why should I repine? I haven't got a cent, and so they can't collect the fine; And then my wife a-leaving me—that gave me quite a jar, But I am glad that things ain't any worse than what they are. My mortgage will fall due next month, but I don't grieve nor fret; They say they'll sell me out, but then they haven't done it yet; And tho' I licked seven times today, you'll never hear me squeak; I'm still alive and put the little dope sheet out each week. These ginks who always kick and squeal, they ought to have a nurse, I've hit some rocky roads myself, but then they could be worse; And so I still retain my poise and wear my two-bit smile, And things to me look brighter than they have for quite a while.

—Earl H. Emmons in the Publishing Field.

FOR OLD AND YOUNG

But More Especially for the Old is the Season of Thanksgiving.

IN NEW England the saying is "Christmas to the young, Thanksgiving to the old." The saying, like most bits of folk lore, says the Delineator, has its roots in a common fact of living. Youth does not tend toward gratitude. It does not tend toward introspection. It does not tend toward a sense of proportion. And it is these tendencies that must unite to make the thankful heart. Not that young people do not love Thanksgiving. They do. And country children love it more than city children, and children of servantless families love it more than those of the well-to-do. The reason is obvious. Thanksgiving day to a child is a feast day, and half the joy of a feast is in its preparation. What simply reared, country bred grown-up would give up the memory of Thanksgiving day at home, for all the present comfort of a French cook and an elaborate menage? First, there was the business of the turkey. A turkey was no ordinary, every Sunday in the winter bird in those days. Turkey twice a year was the rule, on Thanksgiving day and Christmas; on New Year's day, goose or duck. The turkey was chosen anxiously, while mother poked its breastbone, father commented on the length and color of the pinfeathers. The afternoon before Thanksgiving school always "let out" early, in time for brother to fly into the kitchen and sing the turkey and for sister to break up the bread crusts carefully saved for weeks. Mother stuffed the turkey. Sister threaded the darling needle that sewed in the stuffing, brother carried the bird to the cellar to await tomorrow's oven. Then there were the first cranberries of the season, the first nuts, the first pumpkin pies. Thanksgiving day was always cold and cloudy, and about mid-afternoon when one had reached the state of coma from overeating, it began to snow. Mother always asked a schoolteacher to dinner, and always some bachelor of the neighborhood. And always some dear neighbor or friend, or once, grandmother, and once, little sister, had died during the year, and one noticed it more than ever at the Thanksgiving dinner. After dinner all the women folks and the girls gathered in the kitchen to wash dishes, and the men folks and the boys went out to look at the stock. It is for memories like these that older people are thankful, for these and other blessings. For the simple homely facts of living; for the opportunity to serve with hand and mind those that we love; for happy yesterdays spent with those who loved us and are gone; for strength to see and hear and think and work, and for an occasional bit of leisure in which to dream; these make our older Thanksgiving day.

THANKSGIVING LUCK

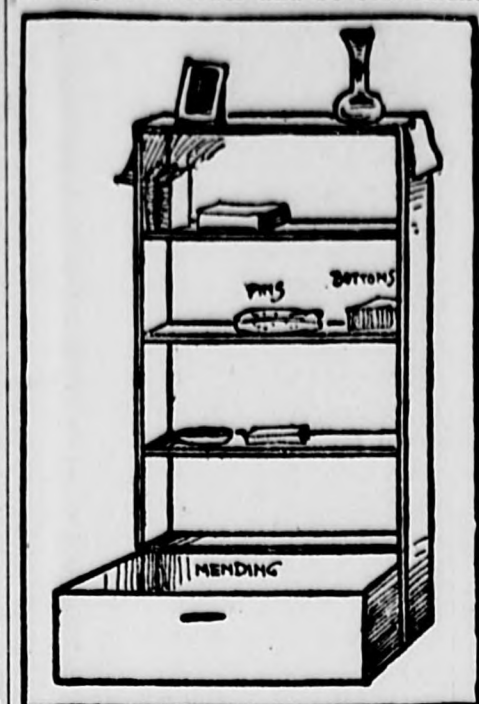

"The folks at the house yonder couldn't eat this Thanksgiving turk, so they gave it to me. Luck, ain't it?" "Yes; pretty tough luck, pard!"

December is the wheat harvest month in New South Wales.

SMALL BUT HANDY CUPBOARD

Easy of Construction and Perfectly Suited for the Purpose for Which It Was Intended.

Last fall when I found our house was too cold, writes a correspondent of Farm Progress, I concluded to close the sitting room and use the dining room for that purpose, too. In order to keep it in order and be convenient for me I had my husband make a small cupboard about four feet high and just as wide as a cracker box. He fitted three shelves about eight inches wide and eight inches apart, in the top of the cupboard. This I placed in one corner of the room, using the wall for a back. I painted it to match my woodwork. I covered a cracker box with cretonne and placed it in the bottom. I set pictures on top of the cupboard. The shelves I used for sewing articles, magazines, school books, etc. The box held my mending and unfinished articles of sewing.

TRY THIS CREOLE RECIPE

Chicken Sauté That is Declared to Be Delicious by Those Who Have Partaken of it.

Take a nice, tender chicken, wash and clean thoroughly and cut into small pieces at the joints. Separate the breast from the back and split it first down the center through the bone, and once again crosswise, and season the whole well with pepper and salt. Put one and a half tablespoonfuls of butter into a stewpan and when it has melted add the chicken. Let this brown for a good five minutes, then add one a half good-sized onions, sliced, and let these nicely brown, being careful not to let them burn in the least. Add one tablespoonful of flour and let this brown. Then add three large fresh tomatoes (or one-fourth can of tomatoes) and let these brown. Cook very slowly, allowing the mixture to simply simmer. Add one tablespoonful of chopped parsley, one teaspoonful thyme, one bay leaf and one clove of garlic finely minced. Stir, cover and let the whole smother over a slow but steady fire. The tomatoes will make sufficient gravy as yet. If you have sweet green peppers, add three, taking the seeds out and slicing very fine and stir well. Let all smother gently for 20 minutes at least, keeping well covered and stirring occasionally. Then add one cupful consommé if you have it, if not, one cupful of boiling water. Let it cook again for a full half hour, very, very slowly, over a very steady fire, and season again to taste. Cover ten minutes more and serve hot. The above is very much esteemed as a famous New Orleans dish.

Chicken a La Dixie.

The following recipe is not a widely known one, but it is an excellent dish and can be served at very short notice.

Chicken a la Dixie—Take two fat slices of ham and place in frying pan, then cut a spring chicken in quarters and fry on ham. When nearly brown add one-half can of sugar corn, season with salt, paprika and a pinch of grated nutmeg. Pour over whole enough cream and tomato sauce to cover. Put in oven for about ten minutes and serve as chafing dish.

Orange Jelly.

Two tablespoonfuls gelatine, one-half cupful cold water, one and a half cupfuls boiling water, one cupful sugar, one and a half cupfuls orange juice, three tablespoonfuls lemon juice.

Soak gelatine in cold water, dissolve in the boiling water, add sugar and fruit juices; serve with whipped cream. Very nice.

Red Peppers Stuffed With Cheese.

Drain a few canned red peppers and stuff them with nicely seasoned cottage cheese to which a few chopped nuts have been added. Allow to remain in a cool place for half an hour. These red peppers are delicious sliced and served on lettuce leaves.

Combination Pie.

Line a pie plate with rich pastry, fill with a cupful of rhubarb and one of strawberries and one of sugar. Sprinkle with a bit of flour, as it is very juicy, put on the second crust and bake until brown. It's a dandy pie.

Heavenly Mash.

Three quarts red currants, stemmed; one quart red raspberries, three pounds white sugar, one pound seedless raisins three oranges, peel and chop all fine. Boil all together until thick. This is delicious with meats.

Thanksgiving Service.

A Thanksgiving service will be held next Wednesday evening at 7:30 o'clock at the Old South church, which promises to be not only helpful to the Thanksgiving spirit, but also interesting in its relation to the coming Tercentenary Anniversary of the Pilgrims who instituted the observance of Thanksgiving day.

Rev. Tyler E. Gale, pastor of the Congregational church, South Braintree, will speak upon "The Challenge of Three Hundred Years," and the choir will render special music. The service is cordially open to all, and a general invitation is extended to the community.

Old South Church Notes.

The pastor will preach at the morning service at 10:30 next Sunday. The Sunday school at 12 o'clock will make a special offering for Mr. Waldron's Boston City Mission. Any who desire to send fruit vegetables or other gifts to the Home for Little Wanderers will leave them at M. R. Loud's store by Monday. The Church school opens promptly at 12 after the morning service. "The Men's Class That's Different" is a group of many men who meet at noon in the gymnasium of the church. Thirty-six men are now members of this class. Something of interest all the time. "A man who ignores the opportunity afforded by Men's brotherhood class work doesn't know himself," a business man said recently. Uncle Billy Watson says, "Guess we little two-for-a-cent fellers needn't apologize for our religion—hey?" after hearing what some of the "big fellers" were doing in religious work.

The Christian Endeavorers will again give a stereopticon lecture in the vestry Sunday night. The title of the lecture is "Congregational shrines." It relates to Pilgrim deeds and duties. Everybody welcome to come and hear the lecture illustrated by about 100 colored slides.

GENEROUS GIFT PROPOSITION TO TOWN OF WEYMOUTH

SCHOOL PROBLEM SOLVED

Mrs. Edward B. Nevin to Present Large School Lot to Town.

A happy solution of the school problem at South Weymouth came this week, when the School Committee of Weymouth was notified that Mrs. Edward B. Nevin was ready to present to the town her beautiful estate at the corner of Main and Columbian streets for the proposed new schoolhouse.

The proposition has not yet been put in writing, but Mrs. Nevin's offer will include a tract from two to three acres in area, having a frontage of about 400 feet on Columbian street, and about 250 feet on Main street. The old homestead is included, but with the stipulation that it shall be razed. The only condition accompanying the gift is the requirement that the new schoolhouse shall be named the "Edward B. Nevin School," in honor of her late husband who died less than two years ago.

On Monday the School Committee and Selectmen viewed the estate, and the general opinion expressed was that it is an ideal lot in every respect, character of land, location and surroundings.

Tuesday evening the School Committee held a special meeting at the High School building, and heartily endorsed the lot and terms on which it is offered by Mrs. Nevin. Resolutions were adopted, which have been forwarded to the selectmen, requesting that a special town meeting be held at an early date to act on acceptance of the gift. Several articles were drawn up to be inserted in the warrant.

Mrs. Nevin is the daughter of the late Gen. Bates, for whom the Bates school is named. The estate offered is just off the car line between South Weymouth and Weymouth Landing, and near the civic center where are located the Fogg Public Library, Fogg Opera House, churches, post office and other buildings. Mrs. Nevin is said to have refused recently an offer of $10,000 for the estate. The whole tract owned by Mrs. Nevin comprises over a million square feet, the part in the rear of the house being retained. The new schoolhouse could have beautiful lawns as well as ample room for a playground. It seems in every way a desirable lot, and Weymouth will doubtless be pleased to enroll Edward Brown Nevin and his wife as benefactors.

ACCIDENT FATAL.

Grocery Clerk Hit by Fire Apparatus and Lives But few Hours.

Combination 2 of Braintree, in responding to Box 28, Saturday morning, for a grass fire, struck and fatally injured Louis M. Goodhue, aged 45, a grocery clerk, near the Jonas Perkins school. No blame is attached to Chauffeur Albert Qualey, who is an experienced driver, as Mr. Goodhue came out of a house suddenly and started to run across the street, only a few feet in front of the fire apparatus. Chauffeur Qualey applied the brakes and skidded but could not clear him. Goodhue was struck by the mud guard on the left side. He was taken aboard the apparatus and rushed to the office of Dr. Cook near by. He received a broken leg and internal injuries. Later he was taken to the Massachusetts General Hospital, but died that night.

Mr. Bloom, the proprietor of the market where Mr. Goodhue worked, carried a liability policy. The grass fire was in the rear of the Bates Opera house and the Union church. Although it burned fiercely at times and threatened the church, chemical streams quickly extinguished it without damage. Mr. Goodhue, at the time of the accident was delivering a market order. He is a brother of Capt. Alfred W. Goodhue of the Quincy police department, and leaves a widow and two children.

Funeral services were held Wednesday afternoon from the Church of the Sacred Heart.

DOINGS OF SELECTMEN

Preparing for Hearing Relative to Street Railway Service.

The Public Service Commission has notified the selectmen of a hearing to be given Dec. 8, upon petition of the Bay State street Railway Company, for approval of curtailment of service on the Rockland-Braintree route.

The Selectmen have instructed Town Counsel Worthen to appear. Mr. Worthen says that the last time this was before the Commission that the board ruled that after half hourly service was restored in the spring it should not again be taken off or suspended until the matter was brought to the attention of the commission. He will put up a strong plea to have it continued.

Congressman Olney has notified the Selectmen in response to recent resolutions relative to high cost of commodities, that he realizes the seriousness of this problem, and will use his "best efforts in Congress to relieve the present well-nigh unbearable conditions."

F. W. Rowe, the State Forester has notified the Selectmen to proceed with the work of suppressing the moth, the amount to be expended not to exceed $5,000.

The Selectmen have invited proposals for printing the annual town reports, $750 being required this year.

A pedlar's license was granted to John Gunasso, and a common victualler's license to Sadie Dwyer.

At the close of the meeting, the Selectmen accompanied the members of the School Committee to view the Nevin estate at South Weymouth, offered as a school lot.

Mr. Smith and Mr. Bond attended a meeting of the New England section of the National Gas Association at the Boston Club on Friday evening, the 24th. W. W. Cummings the Industrial fuel expert of the Boston Consolidated Gas Co., gave an interesting talk on cooperation by departments of gas companies. Mr. Bond of the Old Colony Gas Company read a paper on his impression of the Atlantic City convention which he attended the week of November 13.

Street Railway Conference.

A "Get-together" conference of street railway officials and their union employees was held Nov. 18 at the Quincy House, Boston, that stands unique and, it is believed, will mark a new era in the relations of such naturally opposite sides of the general labor situation. A week ago, after conference extending over a period of 99 days, a new wage and working agreement was signed between the officials of the Bay Street Railway Co. and the conference committee representing its various branches of local unions of the Amalgamated Association of Street & Electric Railway Employees of America, to supersede the former agreement expiring Sept. 1.

The gathering was made up of the officials and heads of departments of the company, the general conference board of the union, and the president and a delegate from each of the sixteen local unions of the company's system from Nahus, N. H., to Newport. R. I. Its purpose was to go over in detail the various clauses contained in the new agreement so that their exact meaning might be made absolutely clear to both sides, and obviate the possibility of any future misunderstandings or misinterpretations as to just what was agreed upon. The conference developed a feeling of harmony and understanding that it is believed will do much, not only to cement the company and its men more closely together in the interests of both, but will result in better service to the public.

From the brief, informal words of representatives of the company and the men, it was plainly manifest that it had become firmly recognized and inculcated into the minds of each that they are not working as two individual parties, but as one harmonious whole, that the best interests of one are the best interests of the other and these identical interests are those of the public at large and mean a far-reaching effect in the advancement of the good of all.

Addresses were made by Robert S. Goff, general manager of the Bay Street Railway Co.; John H. Reardon of the General Executive Board of the union who was president of the men's conference committee; P. F. Sheahan, secretary of the Unions' conference committee; and President P. F. Sullivan of the company.

By Trolley to Sagamore.

If things work out as planned and reported it is likely to be among the possibilities that by Dec. 1, or close to it, there will be a chance for Plymouth people to take a trolley ride down along shore to Sagamore Beach and across the canal bridge in that village, and out by the end of that to the Main street, for one of the street railway officials is quoted as saying that a fortnight more work will see the rails all in place and the trolley wire strung in readiness for operation of cars. At the Sagamore end a short piece of track is being laid from the bridge across a private way to the main road leading from Sagamore to Buzzard's Bay, and it is possible that in the not distant future the Plymouth line will be connected with the track of the Middleboro, Wareham and Buzzards Bay, or the New Bedford and Onset line, giving a through connection to New Bedford and the Southern tier of the county towns while from New Bedford the tracks lead to many other places, so it can be seen that this connection is one which is to be desired.—Memorial.

Forecast for Weymouth.

It's a sign of cold weather when—
You see the young ladies who have gone around all summer with thick mufflers about their necks, appear on the streets with necks bare.

You see the hot chocolate sign displayed.
You see the street corners deserted and the depot occupied.

You see a fellow itching. It's also a sign he's got his woollen on.

You hear the click-click in the steam pipes. That's also a sign, too, the furnace man may know how to use a hammer for other purposes than driving a nail.

Broken Down Altars.

"Broken Down Altars" was the subject of Billy Sunday's sermon Sunday Nov. 19. The topic might have read "It Pays to Advertise," for Billy advocated sensations to fill the pews of churches and went back to the Bible to force home the strength of his arguments.

"A lot of us preachers are too afraid to do anything sensational," he said. "I have no more patience with such than I have for a horse that shies at a wheelbarrow, or the woman who goes into hysterics at the sight of a mouse."

Elijah, he explained, created a sensation when he "shut off the water supply for three days in Israel." Noah, he declared, caused a sensation when he built the ark and took into the strange cargo.

Jesus, he enumerated among the sensational producers when he went into the temple and taught the scribes. Even John the Baptist, he said, used sensational methods to gain audiences. Jonah, he said, was the first man to go down in a submarine and therefore he was a sensationalist.

"And why don't people go to church?" he asked. "Put more life into things and you will have no complaint to make about empty pews," he replied to his own question. "Call a spade a spade a few times and see if things will not soon begin to rattle."

Elijah, he pointed out, held a big camp meeting in Mt. Carmel, but he saw to it that it was so well advertised that everybody attended. He urged them to build up their broken altars as Elijah did in Israel.

It pays to advertise.

In Fifield Collection

The Boston paper of a week ago contained a very interesting account of some old buildings about to be torn down which were connected with the murder of Dr. Parkman by Prof. Webster of the Harvard Medical school. The article spoke of the tickets issued by Dr. Webster for his lecture courses, these cards, especially those having a signature, being very rare. Two of these cards are in the Fifield collection at the library and may be seen in the case. The earlier one issued to Dr. George Fifield, has the rare signature under date of 1841; the latter one, 1848, was issued to Dr. W. C. B. Fifield.

B. W. Hewett, 191 Washington St., Weymouth, says: I was annoyed by too frequent passages of the kidney secretions. I also had backache and couldn't straighten up. I used two boxes of Doan's Kidney Pills and the trouble disappeared. In my work I have to bend over constantly, but thus far I have had no return of the trouble." (Statement given March 24, 1913.)

The Elliott Family's Christmas

Santa Claus Did Not Come Down the Chimney

By ELINOR MARSH

The Elliott children were beginning to talk about Christmas, to make out the lists of things they wanted and otherwise prepare for the joyful anniversary, when Mr. Elliott came home from business one evening and announced to his wife that he was obliged to go on a journey that would keep him away for several months.

The first the children knew of this move was seeing their mother pack their father's trunk.

"Where is papa going?" asked Mamie, the oldest child.

"He is going on a journey," was the reply.

"He isn't going to be away for Christmas, is he?"

"I fear he will be away for the holidays."

"Oh, mamma!"

There was a terrible disappointment in the child's voice. Mr. Elliott was a very affectionate and kindly father, and Christmas without his presence would hardly seem Christmas at all to his family. The news spread among them, and it gave every one of them a shock.

"If papa can't be with us," said one, "I don't care for Christmas."

"I wish Christmas could be put off till he comes back," said another.

Mrs. Elliott was too disappointed herself to give them much comfort. She continued her packing, and when all was ready she and the children bade the husband and father a sad adieu. Then the mother endeavored to lighten the load so far as possible for her little ones, but her heart was not in her work, and it was not effective.

Christmas day was near at hand.

The postman had been bringing packages for the Elliott family for ten days. Mrs. Elliott had examined the addresses, noted where and whom the packages came from and then stored them in some place where the children could not get them, for they knew the packages contained Christmas presents, and every child was burning to open them and see whom they were for and all about them. But the mother would give no indication whatever concerning the gifts, telling her little ones that they must wait till Christmas.

One morning the postman called, but much to the children's disappointment, brought not a single package. He delivered one letter.

When Mrs. Elliott opened and read it she kissed every child, assuring them that the letter was worth all the presents that had come a hundred times over.

Then there was a hubbub to know what the letter was about. Johnny, aged six, said he believed it was from Santa Claus in answer to a letter he had sent asking for a rocking horse for Christmas. Mamie, aged eight, said she believed it wasn't about Christmas at all, but something else. When they had all had their turn at guessing the mother told them that it was really from Santa Claus, promising that this Christmas, if the children would be good, they should see him and he would bring each one of them something pretty.

Then they all wanted to know at what time of day Santa Claus would come.

"Of course he'll come in the middle of the night," said Johnny. "I'm going to keep awake and listen for the sleigh bells."

"He wouldn't come then," said Billy, aged four. "He says we're to see him. How could we see him in the middle of the night?"

They tried to find out from the mother just when Santa Claus would come, but she would not tell them, saying that they must be on the watch and promising that the one who saw him first would receive a silver dollar for a prize. With that the children declared they would remain awake all Christmas eve and watch the chimney. But Mamie, aged eight, said that she didn't believe Santa would come down the chimney at all. If he did that he would be covered with soot, and they couldn't hug him without being smeared themselves.

"Mamma," asked Billy, "isn't papa coming home for Christmas?"

"That depends upon whether he gets through his business."

"What's business?"

"Business is that which produces the money to feed and clothe you children and send you to school and buy toys and things for you."

Mamie declared that she would rather have papa at home for Christmas than all the gifts Santa Claus could carry to all the children in the whole world.

It seemed a long while before Christmas, though it was but two days from the time Mrs. Elliott received her letter. The children in the meanwhile were on the tiptoe of excitement. At one time there was the odor of hot mince pie in the house; then the wagon from the meat market stopped before the door and the turkey was brought in. Billy ran through the house, crying: "The turkey has come! The turkey has come!"

Every hour during the day before Christmas brought a new object of interest, and when the post wagon came around for the last delivery it seemed to the children watching that the man in charge would never get the packages for the Elliotts collected, there were so many of them.

"I wish he'd hurry up," said Johnny. "What's the use?" suggested Mamie. "We can't see what they are till tomorrow."

After it was dark—and night came early at Christmas time—the children sat together talking about the coming of Santa Claus and how nice it was of him to let them see him. Johnny said that he was sure he would get the prize, "cos he was going to stay awake all night."

"Pshaw!" said Mamie. "The sand man will get you before you've been in bed ten minutes. I don't believe Santa will come in the night at all. I believe he'll come just like any other person. You can all watch the chimney; I'm going to watch the front door."

"Will he drive up with his sleigh and reindeer?" asked Billy.

"Not if he comes in the daytime," replied Mamie. "He'd have all the children in town about him, including the ragamuffins."

"Isn't Christmas for ragamuffins?" asked Johnny.

At this Mrs. Elliott broke into the dialogue, assuring her little ones that Christmas should be as much for poor as for rich children, but often poor children had very few gifts, for their parents were too poor to buy presents for them.

"But there's Santa Claus," said Billy.

"Why doesn't he give 'em presents?"

This was a poser for the mother, who parried it by saying that the child who only thought of himself at Christmas time didn't deserve any presents.

After supper the children were put to bed. Johnny made a noble effort to fight off slumber. He refused to get into bed, fearing that he would go to sleep. And so he did, but when his mother lifted him into bed he opened his eyes very wide and asked:

"Has the sandman been around?"

He was asleep again as soon as his head struck the pillow.

The children insisted that the stockings be hung upstairs and that they sleep in the room where the fireplace was so that they could all watch for Santa to come down. Mamie did not try to keep awake. She was old enough to have an inkling as to who Santa Claus really was, and she had a vague suspicion as to this special visit and why they were to see him.

Johnny was the first to waken in the morning, and he looked straight at the chimney place. The stockings looked lank and lean. Disappointment contended with satisfaction that Santa had not yet come. He looked at Billy beside him and saw that he was fast asleep. Mamie, too, was wrapped in slumber. Surely he would get the prize. All he had to do was to wait and watch, and he hoped that Santa would come before the others awakened.

Presently he heard the doorknob turned softly, the door was partly opened and a face with a happy smile on it and anticipation on every feature peeped in. It was not Santa Claus—that is, the old man with frosty hair and beard and a stomach "that shook when he laughed like a bowlful of jelly"—but Johnny's papa, who had come home the night before.

Johnny gave a cry of delight that woke the other children and, jumping out of bed, sprang into his father's arms.

Mr. Elliott held a large basket in one hand, and after he had kissed all his children he said:

"Johnny has won the prize. Here it is." And he produced a new silver dollar. "This year I have taken Santa Claus' place. I wrote him not to come. See the stockings; they are empty."

With that he set his basket on the floor, and he and Mrs. Elliott began to take out one package after another, read the name marked on it and toss it to the child to whom it belonged. It was a happy scene, the father and mother distributing the presents, the children eagerly opening one package after another. When the last had been given and opened Billy looked up at his father and asked:

"Why didn't you let Santa Claus come too?"

"Well, Billy, the fact is I wanted to be Santa Claus myself one year, just to see how it felt to make little children happy. I don't see why papa and mamma shouldn't give their children their presents on Christmas morning just as well as Santa Claus."

"I like it better," said Johnny. "Santa Claus comes so early in the morning that the children don't see him, and that's not half the fun as when papa and mamma give the presents themselves."

"I don't see any use of Santa Claus," said Mamie, "when we have papa and mamma. Anyway, I don't believe there's any such person as—"

A look from her mother cut short Mamie's statement of unbelief, the lady preferring that the younger children should find out the innocent deception themselves when they grew older.

Whether it was that papa was Santa Claus or that he came home for Christmas, the children agreed that that was the finest Christmas they ever had. After breakfast some neighboring children came in with gifts and received gifts themselves. Then Mr. Elliott got out the car, Mrs. Elliott and the children got in, and they rode about distributing gifts to poor families whom Mrs. Elliott had already befriended.

The matter of the father taking Santa Claus' place worked so well that the family decided that next Christmas they would give a children's party and Mr. Elliott should dress up as Santa Claus and distribute gifts from a basket he would carry on his arm. After this Christmas party the children were of such age that their father and mother concluded not to carry the Santa Claus illusion any further, and it was well understood that the old fellow was none other than papa and mamma.

GIFTS for BROTHER

THE harrowing holiday question of "what to give" is again the problem that vexes the feminine soul, the difficulty of which is increased rather than diminished by the embarrassment of riches in the way of charming things displayed in the shops. The first thing to be considered in the selection of a Christmas gift is fitness.

A pair of calf boots with excellent skates to fit, like those in the cut, would warm a boy's heart.

Or give brother a dress suit case if you would wish to be held in pleasant memory every time he takes a journey. Or a small silver tipped cardcase which can be slipped into his inner waistcoat pocket.

Of if he is a university boy give him a huge red or blue silk muffler for his throat.

Or a set of books you have heard him express a wish for, and see, first of all, that the edition is a readable one.

Small boys like a watch, as suggested by the illustration, as well as pocket-knives, tool chests, a bowl of gold fish. Silk mufflers are from $1 to $12. For about $2.75 are imported mufflers in dark colors.

If brother enjoys his clothes give him a pair of spats, fur gloves if he motors, a good cap if he skates, a magic lantern, a microscope, typewriter, sweater, camera and book for camera prints. Wall paper for his room or a Morris chair, a dog, ice cream freezer, leather sofa pillow, key ring, a desk, sleeve links, stickpin, watch chain or a motorboat, as a collective family gift, would also delight him.

If brother is small an electrical heater for his room, which may also be enjoyed by small sister, would be a happy present, enjoyable on chilly mornings.

WO WAYS OF SAVING MONEY

English Method of Handling Bread at the Table is Worth Consideration—Home Baking.

In most English homes it is the custom to put the loaf of bread on the table to be cut as needed, and every family has its more or less handsomely carved bread board, matching the handle of the good English steel bread knife. Where this usage prevails, few if any odd bits of bread find their way back into the bread box or jar to be overlooked, perchance, until they are moldy themselves and have contaminated the rest of the contents. Is not this a practice worth considering, and perhaps adopting, in many a home today, when the outcry at the rise in the bakers' prices is so general and so loud?

An even more effective economy is wrought whenever the housewife undertakes to bake her own bread instead of buying the product at the great bakeries. Not only will each loaf she makes cost distinctly less than she has paid for the same weight, but if she uses a good flour, and especially entire wheat flour, the amount of nutrition will be incomparably greater than they have enjoyed before.

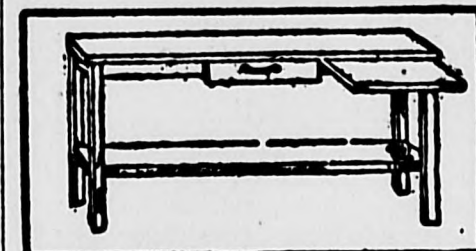

Home baking need have no terrors for any woman of average intelligence, especially if she can afford one of the patent bread kneaders which reduce both time and effort to a very moderate amount.

FOR COMFORT IN KITCHEN

Cabinet That Can Be Moved Should Be Made During the Winter for Use in Summer.

How many times during the summer we would like to move our work into the breeze when the wind changes. But the cabinet can't be moved easily, so we work on in the same old place. Then why not a "cabinette on castors"? It can be moved to any place desired.

This one is easily constructed and has only one drawer and two sliding shelves or kneading boards. The boards when pulled out make a handy table at each elbow, and when not in use can be pushed back out of the way. The top is zinc-covered.

The drawer is used for paring knives, mixing spoons and such. With a stool tall enough to allow one's elbows to come above the table the cabinette is ready. Oh, no! Be sure to put on the foot rest. That is one of the main features of this little work table. Here one can "drop down" to pare potatoes, apples, etc., and have plenty of room for apple peelers and food choppers.—Mrs. R. L. Standford in Farm Progress.

New Apple Salad.

Beat one-half cupful of double cream, a tablespoonful of lemon juice and one-quarter spoonful of salt until firm throughout. Cook two apples cored and pared, in a sirup, (two or three cloves or an inch of cinnamon bark may be added) and set them aside to become thoroughly chilled. Chop fine four maraschino or candied cherries and eight or ten pecan nuts or blanched almonds. Carefully wash three small heads of tender lettuce first removing the ragged outer leaves and cutting the stalks that the heads may stand. Dispose the heads on individual plates with an apple in the center of each. Mix the cherries and put through the prepared cream and turn it over the apples.

Creamed Ham.

Do you wish something for luncheon a dessert or something more hearty? This is very nice: Melt one and a half tablespoonfuls butter and stir in one and a half tablespoonfuls flour and blend together, then add slowly one and a half cupfuls of sweet milk and stir until smooth. Season with a little pepper and add one cupful of ham chopped fine and four tablespoonfuls grated cheese. Stir until the cheese is melted and serve it spread on slices of toasted bread.

Baked Peas and Eggs.

Take one can of peas, three hard boiled eggs (sliced). Arrange in alternate layers with the peas in a moderately deep baking dish. Cover with a thin white sauce, made with two tablespoonfuls butter, one and a half tablespoonfuls of flour, one cupful scalded milk, a little salt and a dash of pepper spread with fine cracker crumbs and dots of butter; brown in a quick oven. Excellent as a supper or luncheon dish, served with cold meat and baked potatoes.

Peach Compote.

Three pounds of peaches freed from skin and stones, three pounds of sugar, two chopped oranges and one pound of raisins. Put all on the stove and cook until of the thickness desired. When ready to put in the jars add one pound of English walnuts chopped rather fine

To Clean Windows.

Wash the glass with water to which a little ammonia has been added, and polish with a chamois which has been dipped in water and wrung as dry as possible.

FRIDAY, DEC. 1, 1916

Mrs. Clarissa L. Tower.

Clarissa L. Tower, widow of the late Dr. Charles C. Tower, who died Nov. 24, was born in Boston, January 3, 1834. Her girlhood was spent in Cohasset and there, on November 29, 1860, she was married to Dr. Tower, who had already entered upon the practice of medicine in South Weymouth. Her home since then has been in this place, and here after a very active and useful life, she was finally released from a long and weary illness early last Friday morning.

The funeral service was held at her late home at 2 o'clock on Sunday afternoon. It was conducted by the Rev. Ora A. Price, pastor of the Union Congregational church, who in Scriptural passages and appropriate selections from the poets paid a fitting tribute to her life and character. The Rev. H. C. Alvord, pastor of the Old South church, in a most sympathetic and heartfelt prayer, referred to her earlier life and activities, and of her close association with and deep interest in the work of him who is still alive in the hearts of all who knew him. This was followed by a brief committal service at the grave, where in words of tenderest love and compassion, "even as the rose petals returned to their own, so this soul was commended to its Maker."

Members of the family acted as bearers the sons-in-law, Wilson Tirrell, Arthur C. Heald, Eaton V. Reed, and the grandchildren, Charles T. Heald, Stanley Heald, and Robert W. Tirrell.

The love and sympathy of her large circle of friends was plainly expressed in the many beautiful floral tributes. She leaves to mourn her loss, four daughters, Mrs. Wilson Tirrell of Brockton, Mrs. Eaton V. Reed of New York, Mrs. Arthur C. Heald and Miss Ruth N. Tower of South Weymouth, also six grandchildren and a great grand-daughter.

"A life well lived is not lived in vain."

The speakers of the evening were Miss Gavin, president of the Catholic Women's Club of Quincy; Miss McGaughey, president of the Catholic Women's Club of Braintree; and Rev. J. B. Holland, our chaplain. The talks were most interesting.

Instrumental music was furnished by Miss Mary Donovan and vocal selections by Mrs. Charles Sheehan.

Following this a dainty collation was served by the following hostesses: Mrs. William Wall, Mrs. Joseph McDonald, Mrs. Thomas Leary and Mrs. Nora Joyce, assisted by several young ladies of the club. After a social hour they adjourned.

A special train took the party from the North Station to the United Shoe Machinery Company and returned to Boston. Which Do You Prefer?

It is important for reasons of health and practical economy for every housekeeper to ask herself this question:

"Do I prefer a pure baking powder like Royal, made of cream of tartar derived from grapes, or am I willing to use a baking powder made of alum or phosphate, both derived from mineral sources?"

The names of the ingredients printed on the label show whether the kind you are now using or any brand, new or old, that may be offered is a genuine cream of tartar powder, or merely a phosphate or alum compound.

Royal Baking Powder contains no alum nor phosphate.

KERCHIEF CUES.

Points About the Gayety of the New Season's Mouchoir.

The handkerchief today is an altogether conspicuous sort of handkerchief. In blue and pink, maize and violet, brown, tan and green, it peeks forth from pocket or hand bag in utterly unhideable brilliancy of color and strikingness of design.

Rose color, popular in everything, is much used for handkerchief this season. And the rose colored handkerchiefs are indeed lovely. They usually show much white in their makeup. Occasionally, however, one sees a very sheet square of rose colored muslin simply with a rolled, whipped edge. The whipping thread is black, white or rose.

Black is a good deal used in the new handkerchiefs. Some pink and blue handkerchiefs show a deep border trimming of white or black dots in V shaped wedges from the hem.

Colored centers in all the colors mentioned, with wide hems of white, perhaps an inch and a half, are also considered smart.

Linen is by no means the only material used today for the handkerchief. Crepe de chine, different sorts of silk, organdie and dimity are all used for handkerchiefs.

Of course it is still possible to get all white handkerchiefs. They can be had in all their old daintiness of fabric and design, with dainty embroidered wreaths of owners in the corner or dotting the edge with monograms and with initials.

Material on practical experiments in training children for industry and in guiding a child to the trade where his opportunities are best and material on the effect of premature labor on the child's health form special sections. Previous bibliographies on vocational training and vocational guidance and other subjects related to child labor, such as mothers' pensions, minimum wage and compulsory education, are noted in the bulletin.

This will be found to be very tasty and tempting

POULTRY FACTS

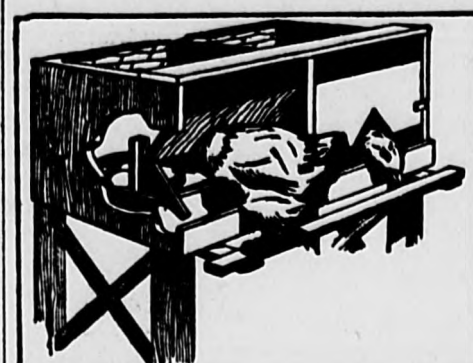

ILLUSTRATION OF TRAP NEST

Device Intended to Assist Poultry Breeder to Find Out Best Layers and Keep Pedigrees.

This is an illustration of a trap nest—not a guillotine. It is designed to help the poultry breeder to find out his good layers and to keep pedigrees. It is very simple. It may be attached to the under side of the dropping board, with the front facing the pen and arranged so that it can be easily removed. The dropping board will then be the roof of the nest.

The rear of the nest may be of wire for the sake of ventilation. If the nest is placed on the wall, slats or wire should be inserted from the front of the nest to the wall at a sharp angle to prevent the hen from roosting on the nest. When she enters the nest, the hen's back raises the door, which releases the catch and allows the door to shut. The catch should be set so that its edge just holds the door, the position being regulated by a screw or nail at the lower inside edge of the catch. A washer on the screw will prevent it from sticking. The guard around the catch holds the nesting material away. The nest should be visited frequently to release the hens.—Popular Science Monthly.

DUCKS THRIVE ON SOFT FOOD

Nutritive Organs Not Adapted to Whole Grains—Give Them Green Feed in Abundance.

The duck's nutritive organs are not adapted to whole grains. The natural diet of ducks is soft food, worms and bugs, from the banks and marshes. For best development, ducks should have soft feed, always accompanied by water in pans deep enough to permit them to submerge the beak to the eyes. Give them lettuce, spinach, beet tops, onion tops, weeds—green food of some kind in abundance.

For a few ducks the vegetable parings may be boiled and fed with mash; small potatoes, not to exceed a fifth of the mash, may be used. Too many potatoes are not good.

For stock ducks in autumn and early winter, an excellent ration is equal parts of cornmeal, wheat bran and boiled vegetables, with 10 per cent of beef scrap fed morning and evening; at noon a little cracked corn, wheat or oats. When the birds begin to lay, increase the proportion of meal and scrap, and add low-grade flour, making a mash about as follows: Meal one part; bran, one part; low-grade flour, one part; vegetables, one part with from 12 to 15 per cent of beef scrap.

GOOD REMEDY FOR GAPEWORM

Parasites Are Usually Found in Poultry Raised on Low Land—Plow Infected Areas.

Gapeworms are commonly found in poultry raised on low land; they may be seen attached to the walls of the windpipe. For treatment restrict the birds to well-drained quarters and plow the infected areas. Individual treatment necessitates the removal of the worms. By a feather moistened with turpentine swab out the windpipe.

RATION FOR GROWING CHICKS

Good Dry Mash Is Made of Mixture of Cornmeal, Wheat, Bran and High-Grade Beef Scraps.

A good dry mash for feeding growing chicks in hoppers is made of one part cornmeal, two parts wheat bran and half a part of high-grade beef scraps, though most any mixture of ground grains which does not include too much fattening material will prove satisfactory for this purpose if the chicks are on free range.

RANGE FOR BREEDING DUCKS

Fowls Should Not Be Confined During Balance of Season—Do Well Without Swimming.

The ducks which are intended for next year's breeders should be allowed to have free range during the rest of the season and if there is a place for them to swim, it will be better for them, though they do well without swimming.

POLITICS TAKES JOB FROM A "GIRL COP."

Miss Constance Kopp, formerly known as the "girl cop" of Bergen county, N. J., and more recently as the "demon sheriff," has unpinned the gold medal that marked her as an undersheriff.

The medal, along with the job, had been awarded to her by former Sheriff Robert N. Heath. John W. Courter, sworn in recently as sheriff of Bergen county, says that he "can't find anything for Miss Kopp to do," and denies that she ever was a real undersheriff. And Miss Kopp says that she will go on wearing her medal where it won't show until such time as the courts shall decide whether she has a job.

Four hundred Bergen county Democrats are protesting with Miss Kopp against leaving her office vacant for the new sheriff to fill. The new civil service rule declares that any such officers who held office for forty-five days previous to the election are eligible to reappointment. Sheriff Courter asserts that the law doesn't cover Miss Kopp's case.

Mr. Heath appointed two undersheriffs, and it is said that the civil service ruling will recognize only one, Thomas E. English, first undersheriff.

WILSON TO TAKE OATH OF OFFICE ON SUNDAY

President Decides to Avoid Raising of Questions Which Might Follow Delay.

President Wilson will take the oath of office for his second term on Sunday, March 4, 1917. The oath will then be readministered the following day.

This became known after the state department had examined its records in a search for precedents. The department holds that "there is no interval between the term of one president and the beginning of his successor."

The department also holds that the fact that President Wilson's term will expire on a Sunday will not leave a hiatus in the office until noon of March 5. To obviate the raising of any question, however, Secretary Lansing has decided to advise the president to take the oath on Sunday.

The attitude of the state department is based chiefly on a letter written by Chief Justice John Marshall to John Quincy Adams, then secretary of state, dated Feb. 20, 1821.

MOUNTAIN TO BE MEMORIAL

German Plan Transformation of Summit in Silesia.

German newspapers contain accounts of the recent opening in the city of Augsburg, Bavaria, of an exposition of designs for monuments to soldiers who have fallen in the war.

The monuments are in stone, wood and iron and show designs for monumental tablets, single graves, public memorials, tablets for churches, chapels, town halls, and "graves for heroes on both the eastern and western battlefields." There are also memorial columns and numerous designs of objects suitable for nailing purposes and adapted to the requirements and tastes of the various German states. In addition there is a collection of reproductions of ancient and modern monuments erected to the memory of heroes, including those of ancient Greece, Rome and Persia. It is announced that the object of the exhibition is mainly to educate the public eye and to introduce proper ideas of "sepulchral art" into regions where much bad taste has been shown.

The General Anzeiger of Breslau reports that a gigantic war monument to commemorate fallen Silesian soldiers is to be erected in the heart of the province on the Angers' mountain of the Zobten range. This mountain, which is about 3,000 feet high, is a prominent object and is seen from all parts of the Silesian lowlands. The intention is to cut into terraces about 800 feet of the upper part of the mountain and to give this portion a regular conical form. On the summit of the mountain and raised on a mighty base of rock a colossal building, surmounted by a cupola, is to be erected. At the four corners of the building on the roof fire will flame out all night long and be visible from all parts of Silesia.

TWO RABBITS—PRICE, $120.

It Was a Costly Dinner For the Argon Brothers.

Two rabbits of which Joseph and Albert Argon of Northvale, N. Y., were making a meal in Palisades, Rockland county, cost the brothers $60 each before Police Justice Oswald Bauer in Sparkill.

Game Warden Knapp found the men roasting one of the dead rabbits and skinning another. The pair had no hunting license and were charged with violating the game laws. They pleaded guilty and paid the heavy fines.

Red Cross Fund $25,000,000.

The London Times announced that its collections on behalf of the Red Cross has passed $25,000,000.

ENGLISH ADOPT WAYSIDE SHRINE

War Shows Value of Medieval Institution.

QUEEN MARY'S EXAMPLE

Prays Before Shrine in London, One of Many Erected at Desire of Soldiers and Sailors Who Have Observed Pious Custom in France—Shrine Carry Honor Roll.

The bishop of London, who recently, in connection with the National Mission of Repentance and Hope, has been discovered as one of the world's greatest street preachers, is official sponsor of the wayside shrine, which as a result of the war is fast finding its way into England from France.

At a diocesan conference some months ago the bishop proposed that some popular and simple reminder of the war be instituted so that the heroism of England's soldiers and sailors might be brought home to heart and business. He recalled the beauty and simplicity of the wayside shrines of Roman Catholic lands and suggested the idea be borrowed. The easily shocked saw in this an assault on the sturdy traditions of the English reformation. The bishop and a multitude of warm supporters, however, regarded it as a concession to the principle that every element of beauty is welcome that can raise our thoughts to heaven.

A Reversion to Symbols.

As a result the wayside shrine has come to London, and soon the leafy lanes of rural England will doubtless be studded with these pious memorials. Observers accordingly have remarked that religion is not merely coming into her own again, but she is reverting to ancient forms and symbols which long have been condemned as obsolete. There is noted a steady reaction in favor of symbolism as a means of refining the spiritual sense and preserving the quiet and retentive mind from the crowding and often demoralizing distractions of every day.

One point in favor of drawing from the church's treasury this particular "old" thing is that it appears to have been suggested by Tommy Atkins himself. It is referred to by a London correspondent of the Boston Transcript this way:

"Thomas, with his keen eye for realities, has noted how often the sacred emblem of the crucifix has survived the battering of guns and the destruction of village churches.

Tommy in a Pious Mood.

"Our good friend Thomas has too hard a head to trouble himself with visions, and indeed the stern actualities of fighting leave him precious little time or inclination for indulgence in day dreams. What he has noticed, as we can well believe, is the frequency of those wayside shrines which dot the landscape of France and still keep alive in cruel times the savor of an old world piety.

"The acceptance of the symbolic force of a simple object at a time of crisis in their life appears to have prompted the expression of a wish by British soldiers that some sort of counterpart of the wayside shrines of France might exist at home. Men and women accordingly have hastened to adopt the suggestion of the British Tommy.

"As you pass along a seamy thoroughfare in London, lined with stale or stuffy shops or monotonous tenements, you light upon a bit of wall that reveals an object calculated to arrest all passersby," writes the correspondent. "It is a panel of wood a few feet square with a gabled porch to protect the contents from the rain, and usually the main feature is a 'roll of honor' recording the names of men, soldiers or sailors, who have gone to war from this street or neighborhood, with a special mark for those who are slain or wounded."

One thing that has silenced the scoffers and encouraged the timid in these matters is the example of Queen Mary, the product of an ultra Protestant household, who has personally visited and prayed at some of the shrines in South Hackney, the heart of the wild northeast of London, and in parishes nearer home, and though a shrine is no more sacred because a king or queen has prayed there, there is an innate disposition in all loyal folk to note the circumstance with satisfaction and spread the news of it.

MEMORIAL TO POE.

May Be Built on Richmond College Campus.

The old Literary Messenger building at Richmond, says the Virginian, the place where Edgar Allan Poe began his literary career, must be torn down. The committee which has been working to preserve the structure as a memorial to Poe will see that the building is torn down in such a way as to render the materials available for the reconstruction.

It was in this house, it will be recalled, that Poe wrote the first of his great poems which became famous. It is possible that the council will provide sufficient funds for the rebuilding of the house. In all probability it will be built on the Richmond college campus at Westhampton.

Punishes For Meat Eating.

A most remarkable regulation affecting the food supply was one which attained its full vigor during Shakespeare's youth and which, in view of his early familiarity with the slaughter house—there are seventeen references to the butcher's trade in the historical plays—must have been brought particularly to his notice. This was the law, first enacted in 1549 and extended in 1563, enforcing abstinence from flesh for political and economic reasons, not only in Lent and on Ember days, Vigils and Fridays, but also on Saturdays and even on Wednesdays. The object aimed at in this legislation was the strengthening of the British navy through the encouragement of the fisheries, the North sea fisheries being regarded as a gold mine which the Dutch were exploiting. In 1563 four women who had a meal of meat in a London tavern during Lent were set in the stocks all night, and the woman who supplied them was set in the pillory.

Wild Cotton.

A common plant which grows in a score of shapes and sizes is the milkweed. It is called milkweed from the milky juice contained in the stems. Some bear white blossoms, others purple, while the stems and leaves have a variety of sizes and shapes. After the blossoms disappear the plants bear seed pods, which are the "bangers" for the air scouts.

Each seed has a set of wings of airy fluff. As the pods ripen and break open the wind lifts the light seeds and scatters them broadcast.

Nature came very near making a substitute for cotton when she produced milkweed. In fact, the plant is known sometimes as "wild cotton." But the fluff in the seed pods has not the twist of cotton fiber and therefore cannot be used for spinning. Nevertheless it provides a satisfactory down for stuffing pillows, a use to which frequently it is applied.—Boston Journal.

An Artist's Joke.

Holman Hunt, who began life as a clerk to an auctioneer and estate agent, was constantly drawing portraits when he should have been drawing up leases, and in his chosen profession he was never slow to seize the flying moment. The windows in his room were made of ground glass, and as he had little to do he spent much of his time in drawing flies upon its roughened surface. A blot of ink sufficed for the body and some delicate pencil strokes for the wings, and at a distance the deception was perfect. Day by day the number increased, and one morning his employer came in, stopped before the window and exclaimed: "I can't make out how it is. Every day that I come into this room there seem to be more and more flies." And, taking out his handkerchief, he attempted to brush them away.

New Zealand's Glaciers.

The great size of the glaciers around Mount Cook, in New Zealand, has been often remarked. The Tasman is eighteen miles long, the Murchison ten miles, the Godley eight miles, the Mueller eight miles and the Hooker seven miles. Most of these glaciers have moraines of exceeding roughness, but the approaches to them are not steep, as is usually the case with European glaciers. The southern Alpine snow line is only a little over 7,000 feet. Glacially polished rocks are rare, and in many ways the mountains are singularly different from those of central Europe.

His Practice.

"The footpad fired at you four times from a distance of twenty feet and yet missed you?"

"Oh, no!" replied the hero of the adventure. "I missed him. I have dodged so many automobiles and motorcycles that I had no difficulty in dodging the bullets."—Kansas City Star.

"On what business?" Going up to address business men there in the men and religion campaign. Say did you ever know that nearly all the big successful business men in the United States are religious?" "No, I didn't" skeptically answered his companion, "I'm from Missouri—show me." Then Bob took him around from city to city, from town to town, and showed him who's who in a business and religious way, a tale of a thousand cities. "Gee Whiz!" exclaimed his companion. "I never thought much about it before, but that is certainly a revelation to me." The "men's class" provides opportunity for men who want to be classed in "Who's who."
